Crop, Feed, Poultry Loans For Farmers

A. V. Allison, Field Supervisor of the Emergency Crop and Feed Loan Division of the Farm Credit Administration for Nicholas county, announces that loans are available for eligible farmers who are unable to secure credit elsewhere. These loans are divided into three distinct classes: crop, feed and poultry.

Crop Loans

Crop loans may be made for the actual production costs of such crops as corn, soybeans, oats, tobacco hay, fruits, potatoes, tomatoes, beans and other truck crops grown for market. The money may be used for such production costs as seed, feed, fertilizer, fuel or oil for tractors, spray material, minor repairs, and planting and harvesting expenses. The security required is a first mortgage on the crops to be grown.

Feed Loans

Feed loans are made for the purchase of such feeds as are usually fed to commercial stock, such as hogs, beef cattle, breeding stock or livestock, the product of which will be sold such as dairy cattle, sheep being maintained for sale of wool or lambs, or for production of popular feed crops. The security required for feed loans is a first lien on all stock that will be fed.

Poultry Loans

Poultry loans may be secured by farmers who have facilities sufficient to care for the poultry. The money may be used for the purchase of feed an dincidental supplies for a flock kept for feed production of eggs. Security for poultry loans is a first mortgage on all poultry to be fed.

Terms

Crop, feed or poultry loans become due and payable upon the sale of the crops, livestock, poultry or eggs, or upon October 31, 1946, whichever comes first. The interest rate on all loans is 4 per cent and is deducted in advance to Oct. 31 1946.

Where To Apply

Applications for all loans in this county are being taken each Tuesday and Saturday by Mr. Allison at his office in the basement of the postoffice here.

THE GARDEN

By John S. Gardner, College of Agriculture

Garden Pest Control

With corn fi;ired as it is while this is being written, it might appear absurd to discuss garden pests. But there are things that discouraged gardeners will enjoy learning now to prepare them for the vegetable insects and diseases when they come. And, surely they will come.

DDT. This "wonder insecticide" as the newspapers have it, although excellent for controlling various household pests, has little value in a vegetable garden. True, it stops Colorado beetles and flea beetles on potatoes, but so do a few of the arsenates. While it kills striped beetles on cucumbers and melons, it kills the plants as well. Too, DDT has no effect whatever on Mexican bean beetles. For the present, the part of wisdom is to continue with the "old-fashioned" remedies the Experiment Station recommends.

ROTENONE: The pre-war dust, 5-4 or 1 per cent strength, is back again, to replace the war-strength dust with which gardeners more or less contented themselves. Also back is cream of rotenone, the form used in making liquid sprays.

MAGNESIUM ARSENATE: During the war, magnesium "fought" as an ingredient in fire-bombs, but now, in magnesium arsenate it resumes its peacetime job of killing bean beetles, without harming bean leaves.

COPPER OXIDE - YELLOW: When copper became a war metal, this substitute for bordeaux but free of its failings, was withdrawn from civilian use. Now it's back. It may be had in its pure form for making liquid sprays which, if cream of rocenone is added, becomes a sure-all for all insects and all leaf-spotting diseases. It comes also in ready-mixed dust, combined with rotenone or with pyrethrum. To make a convenient means for keeping vegetable gardens free of all chewing and sucking insects and the leaf-spots. It comes, too, combined with cryolite, the relatively non-poisonous control for all chewing insects, this combination serving against the leaf-spotting diseases, as well.

MY COLUMN
(By E. Hampton Barnette)

Our school teachers deserve a lot of appreciation they seldom get. It is not enough to polish an apple and send it to them with one of our deserving "pride and joy" children. We should remember they take our children early in life and work with them until they are in the know boy group of citizens.

Many of our teachers work on and on with meager pay and great patience, until they become indispensable citizens, and we simply take them for granted. There are few among us who give more or less than our teachers. Sometimes they have less to work on than we parents would want to admit, but we expect them to work away at their task until they bring our boys and girls to top places in our social structure. The time was when teachers received no pay whatsoever. They boarded among their scholars, and lifted them to leadership in all our economic structure.

The least we can do is to show our gratitude for these deserving men and women of our land who give themselves to unselfish serving among us. But we must not forget that appreciation and gratitude will not pay grocery bills, and furnish homes for those who develop the intelligence of our nation. The cement we wolf can howl, "hubba, hubba, hubba!" or give an admiring whistle at the teacher passes. But the world knows in its heart we would be sunk deeper than the octupus if we did not have the patience of our teachers to untangle our grip on ignorance at the bottom of the lazy rivers of life.

Cooperation from the parents to the boards of education should be ever awake to the interests of the teachers. Jesus must have had the modern teachers in mind when he said: "No man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him." It is no less than a miracle to take the human mind fresh from its mother's breast, and develop it to the height of our modern level of education, and progress in development and scientific research.

Woman Ninety Swears It keeps Her Alive

"I was all stuffed up—full of gas and bloat—couldn't get my bowels to work," says Miss Hanna Dietrich of St. Louis, Mo., in a recent letter. "Couldn't eat a thing and would sit and wonder if my time had come. Then I tried Pru-lax. Now I feel years younger, can eat anything I want and my bowels are regular again."

This wonderful new herb medicine contains Cathara and Senna. If you are bloated with gas—heartburn — indigestion —vertigo (dizziness)—clogged bowels—lack of energy—sluggishness of mind or body, due to constipation, then do as Miss Dietrich does. Use Pru-lax and you will be astonished at the results. Caution: Use Pru-lax only as directed. Money back if not delighted with result.
