I WISH YOU

Through the Year of Time this is now beginning.

I wish you pleasant journey friend:

A thrill of hope at each day's dawning.

A sign of peace at each day's end.

And to know when there comes a storm or two,

It will make the sky a deeper blue.

I wish you wealth that cannot be minted:

A questing mind that freely dares;

The comradeship of kindred spirits,

The tender smile of one who cares;

And to know when sorrow comes your way,

It lessens the burden to trust and pray.

Through the Year of Time that is now beginning,

I wish you magic to charm the day.

The power to set the hours to music,

And tune your heart to sing always.

And to know the hour with service rife

Gives a sweeter tone to the Song of Life.

WINTER STORAGE OF PLANT FOOD HELP TO FARMERS

CHICAGO—The need for winter storage of fertilizer on farms is just as great this year as during the war if Midwestern farmers are to be assured sufficient supplies for next spring's planting needs, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"Food production goals for American farms will be high again in 1946," the statement declares. "Demand for fertilizer to help grow heavier crops will continue at a high level.

Ready for Spring Planting

"Wartime experience demonstrated that fertilizers can be safely stored during the winter months for use in connection with best drilling results in spring, if a few simple rules are followed. Fertilizer should be placed in the barn or any dry building with flooring above the ground. It should never be stored on the earth itself. Bags should be stacked close together to reduce circulation of air from which fertilizer absorbs moisture. Stacks should not be too high."

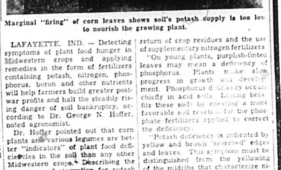
Scarcity Of Corn Plants Easy to Detect



Marginal "firing" of corn leaves shows soil's potash supply is too low to nourish the growing plant.

LAFAYETTE, IND. — Detecting symptoms of plant food hunger in Midwestern crops and applying remedies in the form of fertilizers containing potash, nitrogen, phosphorus, boron and other nutrients will help farmers build greater postwar profits and halt the steadily rising danger of soil bankruptcy, according to Dr. George N. Hoffer, noted agronomist.

Dr. Hoffer pointed out that corn plants and certain legumes are good test "indicators" of plant food deficiencies in the soil than any other Midwestern crops.* Describing the symptoms of starvation for potash and other nutrients in corn, he said:

"If corn plants bear leaves that are yellow-green to yellow in appearance, nitrogen starvation is indicated. The leaf blades begin to turn orange yellow at the tips and the yellowing follows the midrib. The affected tissues later become dry. Frequently corn growers make the mistake of attributing nitrogen starvation to dry weather. Corrective measures are the application of more legumes into the rotation, direction will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law. Driving without headlights, with one headlight and without proper taillights is a violation of the law.

CLYDE OWINGS,
Chief of Police

return of crop residues and the use of supplementary nitrogen fertilizers.

"On young plants, purplish-forest leaves may mean a deficiency of phosphorus. Plants show slow progress in growth and development. Phosphorus deficiency occurs chiefly in acid soils. Long before this these soils be covering a more favorable acid reaction. Use phosphate fertilizers applied to correct the deficiency.

"Potash deficiency is indicated by yellow and brown scorching of edges and leaves. This condition must be distinguished from the yellowing of the middle that characterizes nitrogen starvation. Potash is the mineral nutrient that determines the efficiency working of the corn plants. It has resulted in all parts of the plant for growth, for starch production, for the manufacture of proteins, and for the absorption of mineral nutrients by the roots.

"When potash starvation symptoms are noticed, a definite degree of soil exhaustion is indicated. The only way to correct this deficiency is to apply potash fertilizers."

U. S. Cow Army Still Mobilized

Well Fertilized Pastures Mean a Heavier Milk Flow and Better Quality Dairy Output

CHICAGO—Uncle Sam's 27,000,000 milk cow army is being kept in service to meet high 1946 dairy production quotas needed to supply domestic requirements and demands for overseas exports, according to a statement made public here by the Middle West Soil Improvement Committee.

"This means that steady supplies of good, nutritious feed, proper health conditions and adequate care are necessary, if the nation's dairy herds are to fulfill their 1946 production job," the statement points out. "Of essential importance is plenty of edible, body-building pasture crops. The dairy farmer's surest means of providing this for his herds is to undertake a pasture improvement program that will insure a good stand of legumes and grasses. To accomplish this, it is important, first of all, to build up the soil's productivity by the use of fertilizer containing plenty of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

"Most farmers realize that pasture is the cheapest and most valuable source of feed. It needs the reinforcement of plant foods not only to increase the tonnage per acre produced but the protein content of the grass as well.

"An investment in soil improvement will pay important dividends whether a permanent pasture crop is planned, or the land is used also as a crop rotation.

"There never was any heart truly great and generous that was not also tender and compassionate."—Charles Sumner.
