Historic First Presbyterian Church of New York City (Dr. J. V. Moltenauer, minister) is celebrating the one hundred anniversary of its location on present Fifth Avenue at 110. The church's story goes back 160 years earlier to 1786 when a group of "deserting persons of the Presbytery" met in a private home in New York. The following year, Francis Mc Kenzie visited the city, preached to the group, baptized a baby, and was arrested and thrown in prison for preaching without license. This rallied others to the organization, and by 1792 they were an organized church, called the First Presbyterian Church of New York City, 110 Wall Street. In 1793 the doors of the church building were opened for public worship.

General Jonathan M. Walworth of Bataan fame, is the great-grandson of Jonathan May Walworth, who was rector of Grace Episcopal Church, New York City from 1834 to 1884, and who became provincial bishop of New York in 1884. Bishop Walworth was one of the founders of the City of New York, which became New York University and a member of its original faculty.

Fourteen new missionaries for overseas service, and three deacons for a country home, were recently commissioned by the Board of Christian Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church. All seventeen young people are college and graduate school trained. Two—the Rev. Quintin Roberts, Jr. of Oxford Springs, Miss., and Mrs. Roberts, of Knoxville, Ind., are already in Africa. Others are Kerline M. Moore, of New York City, a missionary parent, going to India as a nurse; and Mrs. M. J. Moore, of New York City, going to India as a nurse; and Mrs. M. J. Moore, of New York City, going to India as a nurse.

PROPERTY FOR SALE

Seven Room Modern House And Attractive Lot.

Lot contains about an acre and is a beautiful view of the city on the hillside.

All modern improvements including electric, wired for telephone, good fencing. Outhouses include a double ten-house, roomy barn with built-in garage of adequate proportions, wash house, meat house, coal house, cistern of sweet water close to house. All structures well painted and in first class repair.
