DAVIS DESCRIBES

KENTUCKIANS' LIFE OF EARLY

The three principal forms of amusement and social activity of an earlier generation of Kentucky mountaineers were described by W. C. Davis, superintendent of the state office of the Division of Parks, before the Legislature in a report on the life of early days.

Mr. Davis listed these three pastimes, which were particularly popular with the mountaineers, as follows: 1. The playing of simple games, or both indoors and outdoors, and all day long.

2. The playing of simple games, or both indoors and outdoors, and all day long. 3. The playing of simple games, or both indoors and outdoors, and all day long.
