BIBLE THOUGHT
THIS WEEK

Say to them that are of a fearful heart, Be strong, fear not, behold, your God will come with vengeance, even God with a recompence; he will come and save you. Then the eyes of the blind shall be opened and the ears of the deaf shall be unstopped. Then shall the lame man leap as an hart, and the tongue of the dumb sing: for in the wilderness shall waters break out, and streams in the desert.' Isa. 35.

August 19 Date For Celebration

August 19 will be the anniversary of the historic Battle of the Blue Licks and plans to celebrate the recurrence of the date this year are being made by W. E. Curtis, curator of the famous museum and state park, through staging a patriotic program which will surpass any former observance.

Governor Simeon Willis will be asked to deliver the principal address and other leading figures in Kentucky political and civic life are to be invited to the park to take part in the observance of August 19 as one of the important dates in American history. The entire spirit of the occasion, Mr. Curtis has said, will be in the nature of a "rededication to American life, the things for which it has stood and for which it should continue to stand."

Truly there is a great need for clear definitions today. No more fitting date than August 19, the date of the last battle in the struggle of this nation to throw off the heavy hand of oppression, could be chosen for a public recognition of what this Democracy means to its citizens.

Nicholas Man Merits Honor

Nomination of George D. Scott Sr., as one of the number from which Governor Willis will soon select a representative of the Eighth district for membership on the Kentucky Fish and Game Commission, gives Nicholas county a chance for recognition which will have the active support of local sportsmen.

We earnestly hope that the Governor will name Mr. Scott to the state commission thereby availing Kentucky of the services of an energetic and a deserving Nicholas county citizen. Two members are to be appointed to the nine-man non-partisan body. One to be appointed from the Second district, is to be a Democrat. The appointee from the Eighth district is to be a Republican. Democrats and Republicans alike of this county will urge the appointment of the well-known local real estate dealer and farmer to the state commission.

STILL TIME FOR GOOD GARDEN

A lot of people in Woodford county have gardens well under way. A few people, however, have not tried their hand at gardening this summer when everyone who can should have a garden.

If you haven't a garden and there is still time to do so, according to the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, Woodfordites who failed to get an early start at gardening should get busy and start vegetables for canning and storage.

Vegetables that can yet be planted include tomatoes, cabbage, potatoes, beets, carrots, sweet corn, squash, Chinese cabbage, turnips, soybeans for food, and most kinds of beans.

Tomatoes for canning, are usually set in June and may be planted until July 1. The deadline, therefore, is a week away. Tomatoes are easy to grow and yield well, and should be grown in abundance for canning at the local community canneries.

Snap beans should be planted heavily this month for canning and drying. Pole and bush limas may be planted all through this month, and the regular pole beans may be planted up to August 1.

Sweet corn can be planted as late as July 30. Chinese cabbage should be started August 1 and turnips sowed about August 15. Irish potatoes should be planted around July 1, for the second or main crop.

The general food condition calls for extra attention to gardening. In some instances store shelves already are bare. Home-produced food must help out next fall and winter.—Woodford Sun.

CHIEF JUSTICE VINSON

The appointment of Fred Vinson to be Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court is being generally acclaimed as a fine appointment. Like two of his greatest predecessors, John Marshall and Roger B. Taney, he was one of the wheelhorses of the administration at the time of his appointment.

Just as the political experience of Marshall and Taney was of inestimable advantage to them and to the country, in the performance of their judicial duties, so will the experience of Fred Vinson in the legislative and executive branch of the government add to the reach and power of his judicial pronouncements.

Lawyers engaged only in the practice of their profession seldom have the grasp of the law as a whole that is acquired by those who have spent years in the making and the execution of the laws of the land.

With his unremitting energy and his tremendous power of concentration it is certain that no half-baked or ill-considered opinions will emanate from the Court.

It may well be that his appointment will mark one of the high points in the history of the Supreme Court and that his name will be placed, with honor, beside those of Marshall and Taney and White.—Cynthiana Democrat.

MATERIAL SHORTAGES DELAY FARM ELECTRIFICATION PLANS

K.U.'s Rural Extension Program Stymied By Lack of Poles, Transformers, Meters — President Watt Promises Early Relief

THROUGHOUT the entire United States, shortages of labor and materials are holding up distribution of products and services.

Kentucky Utilities Company is no exception among the organizations whose post-war plans are being delayed by serious shortages in nearly all key materials. While its overall goals showing the effects of America's production showdown, K. U. is fighting an uphill battle to maintain a slow but steady pace in its efforts to bring electricity to more Kentucky farmers.

Eleven companies throughout the country are suffering from lack of materials, and when it is pointed out that at least two-thirds of all electrified farms in the country are served by the top-power utilities, it becomes apparent that the key trickle of available supplies must be spread very thin. Wire, compared with transformers and meters, strikes veins and butter are plentiful.

Engineers Are Stymied

The city of near-miracles being ever with what comes to hand did not pass with the end of the war. K. U.'s engineering and purchasing departments are doing them same near-miracles today, but acute shortages of poles, crossarms, transformers, meters, and other line hardware have been stymied.

"No one understands better than we do the plight of the Kentucky farmer who wants electricity on his farm," R. M. (Bob) Watt, president of K. U. recently declared recently. "K. U. has reduced its reserve stockpiles to an absolute minimum in order to extend its facilities to an increasing number of Kentucky farms. When the present materials bottleneck clears up, K. U. will be among the first to get supplies, and we have been assured that we shall get at least our share."

Maintenance Needs Cited

MEANWHILE, Mr. Watt continued, Kentucky Utilities Company is building as rapidly as possible with the dribble of supplies that is coming in. Regular maintenance takes quite a share of this dribble, for sometimes the materials that wait a string a mile of line will keep a thousand miles in operation.

With the comparatively small amount of equipment allotted to them, K. U. was able to run only 69.7 miles of line in January and February, 1946, and to add 185 customers to its books. Hundreds of additional sales have already been programmed with the go-ahead signal awaiting only the materials with which to build the lines.
