Civil Service Examinations

The Civil Service secretary in this city announces that the U. S. Civil Service Commission will conduct nationwide examinations for stenographic and typist positions within the near future.

Applications are now being accepted and must be received at the Sixth U. S. Civil Service regional office, Cincinnati 2, Ohio no later than March 26, 1946. This is the first examination announced under the new peacetime procedures to provide for professional appointments and permanent classified civil service status. The eligible lists will be utilized to fill positions in both the departmental service in Washington, D. C. and in the field service throughout the country. It is important that all persons now employed by the federal government in these types of positions compete in the coming examination, if they do not now have classified civil service status and desire to establish such status. For further information inquire at the office of the secretary, Board of U. S. Civil Service Examiners, at any first or second class post office or at the office of the Regional Director, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Army Recruiter Here Thursday

Sgt. Orval Keller representing the U. S. Army Recruiting Service of Lexington, will be in the Carlisle Court House today from 9:30 and 3:30. Men with previous service have 90 days after discharge and before 1 July 1946 to retain their grade and reenlistment bonus. Up to 90 days paid furlough, depending on length of service, with furlough travel paid home and return, for men now in the army who enlist within 20 days after discharge, he stated.

A three year enlistment entitles each man to 48 months of education or training, a maximum of $500 a year for his tuition and fees which may amount to over $2,500. Monthly allowances for personal expenses for the 48 months he spends in school will amount to some over $3,120 if he has no dependents or $4,320 if he has one or more dependents. Educational opportunities while in the army, United States armed forces institute offers 200 different courses in elementary, high school, technical school and college levels in a wide variety of subjects. The educational advantages while actually serving in the army are in addition to and should not be confused with the educational benefits provided by the G. I. Bill of Rights, it was said.

All-Out Effort Is Being Made To Control Corn Borer

All-out effort is being made by the State Department of Revenue to encourage the filing of Kentucky income tax returns before April 15 after which date returns will become delinquent thus subjecting the taxpayers to severe penalties.

In addition to the Frankfort office and the local offices at Louisville, Lexington, Covington, Paducah, and Ashland, field representatives have been assigned to every section of the state for the purpose of assisting those who need help in preparing their returns. H. G. Royse will be in Carlisle on March 21st to assist those needing help in the locality and will be located at the county court house.

The department calls attention of taxpayers to the fact that more than $200,000 in taxes and penalties have been collected during recent months, from taxpayers who had failed to file returns for prior years and therefore, urges taxpayers to avail themselves of this opportunity so that the payment of penalties and unnecessary inconvenience and embarrassment might later be avoided.

President Urges Youth To Participate In 4-H

President Truman, in a recent statement, pledged full cooperation as a means of developing talents and leadership, and of promoting through practical democracy and good citizenship.

"To all 4-H club members in the United States:

"All young men and women in the world today face the challenge of unsettled times and new problems—but also of new ideas and great new opportunities. We have an unlimited building job to do. On the foundations of the victories that youth sacrificed so much to win, we now have the opportunity to raise up a progressive, productive civilization in which the rights of the individual, the need of the family, broken or near intact have the highest, most enduring values. We make that promise of the future come true—the realization of those values—much in the coming generations—not only in the home, but in the task of world everywhere. The eyes of the young men and women of the world are upon the youth of the United States, searching for example and ideals.

"We have an outstanding example to offer them in 4-H club work. For more than thirty years I have seen 4-H club work serve as a powerful incentive for millions of farm boys and girls in development of their talents, their leadership, and their efficiency. Time may change, but the objectives of 4-H work, as originally framed in their ten now-well points, are based on fundamental human principles that never change, and have their value.

"I urge all rural young people to take an active part in their own local 4-H club activities in 1946 and in years following. This is one of the ways in which we can build the kind of world the United States needs—strong, skilled, informed and principled. And it is one of the important means we have of demonstrating the kind of world which youth can aspire to through practical democracy and good citizenship."

HELL BE SORRY

A bridegroom at the wedding feast was persistently called upon to make a speech and felt that it was a prearranged plan to embarrass him. Standing nervously beside his bride and placing one hand upon her shoulder, he began: "Friends, this thing has been forced upon me."

And he wondered why every-body laughed.

"That is a skyscraper," announced the guide.

Old Lady: "Oh, my, I'd love to see it work."

Praises 5th Red Cross Work

Coowanin Andrew J. Cassidy, Canadian, has written an appeal for Red Cross support which is reproduced here.

To the Public:

"I have been reading a lot of papers and books, and what is annoying before my eyes is warmongers are same place Joe Blow has gone or what he has done. You may be I never see much of what is working 24 hours a day for you, me, and our country the American Red Cross. DO YOU HELP 177

"I would like to stop you for a few minutes to tell you exactly what I know was the work of the Red Cross since Dec. 7, 1941. At 7:45 a. m. on Dec. 7, 1941, the Japs bombed Pearl Harbor. I was there on board a battle ship. The ship was sunk, and I was forced to lay in the same compartment for two hours. Thanks to the AMERICAN RED CROSS.

"There were other civilians, sailors and Marines in the same boat as I was and we were all treated the same by your American Red Cross workers. They did not wait until the bombing and strafing stopped before they went to work. They were working right under the attack. I was there when your son, brother, sister and husband. We were all hungry, had no place to sleep, had no way to get you word that we were still alive. The Red Cross continued to feed, and we ate until we were no more. Then the Red Cross fed you us to keep our mind occupied. It was the Red Cross coming over to us with coffee, doughnuts and cigarettes. Then the Red Cross got word home that they were still alive? The ones who went to the Red Cross to get the message sent that you waited for. We ourselves could not get the message through because all mail to and from the states was discontinued. So the Red Cross came through with the message you were waiting for.

"If you were ever sick, or wanted to get a hurried message to some loved one in service, you go to the Red Cross if it is only for advice. I have had it done for me, and they will do it for you.

"Now your loved ones are returning home to you. When he comes to the Great Lakes Separation Center, there is no leave or liberty for him while he waits, so he is nervous and excited. So the Red Cross gives them coffee with sugar in it during their stay here. The Red Cross tries to make each person who goes through the station feel at home. "This is only what I have actually seen the Red Cross do, but I have seen none of their real work; I'm lucky.

"I will ask you to answer this one. What can you, I or our country do without a Red Cross? Why don't we help?"

AH... Your Son a Capitalist!

Now—it's just a penny in a piggy bank. But soon his piggy will be full. Then the pennies will be taken to a real savings bank.

There they will accumulate and grow into dollars. Because the bank can put your son's dollars to work, he will receive interest. Then someday he can take his money out of the bank and start a little business of his own choosing.

Let's follow this young capitalist a step farther. He is supplying an essential public need and is a success. But he requires money with which to expand. His friends invest their savings and a corporation is formed. The enlarged business provides additional employment, pays its share of city, county, state and federal taxes, helps build the community.

This is the story of business-managed electric companies like Kentucky Utilities Company. Many of its 12,000 owner-stockholders are Kentuckians. And it gives employment to 1,100 good citizens.

The story has many variations, for it is the story also of our whole American economic system, with its highest of all living standards. By preserving it, we continue to open doors of opportunity for all little boys and girls with piggy banks.
