Conservation Notes

Billy Frey and A. R. Fisher, who own a farm on the Cauley Creek road became a cooperator with the Nicholas County Soil Conservation District during the past week. A plan was worked out with Mr. Frey to carry out conservation practices on his farm in the near future.

An open drainage project has been completed on the farm of H. L. Herndon of Pleasant Valley. Mr. Herndon has also been clearing and widening a creek to prevent overflowing.

One thousand feet of terraces were constructed for Claude Linville of Mildreth. Mr. Linville was also assisted in the establishment of his terraces which were built in 1945. Part of Mr. Linville's terraces were constructed with his own equipment and part with the equipment of the District.

MAN RAISES HIS ARM ABOVE HIS HEAD FOR FIRST TIME IN YEARS

A few days ago a man said the rheumatic pains in his arms and shoulders disappeared and now he can relax his arms above his head for the first time in years. He said the pains he used to have from this rheumatism were simply awful. Sometimes his knees and hips were stiff and sore, but the pains were mostly in the back of his neck and across his shoulders. Now, however, his suffering is entirely gone and he says the change is due to taking RHU-AID. "Oh! What relief!", states this man. "Why don't other rheumatic sufferers get RHU-AID."

RHU-AID is a new formula. It contains Three Great Ingredients, so it is almost like taking three medicines in one. It goes right to the source of rheumatic aches and pains. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get RHU-AID. Hopkins Drug Store.

Stanley Hanim of Hildreth was assisted with engineering of diversion ditches on his farm which were constructed last spring.

R. M. Hildreth of the Hildreth community carried out a portion of his farm conservation plan during the past week. Twelve hundred feet of open drainage ditches were constructed on the line bordering Licking River. Mr. Hildreth also had two diversion ditches built to the base of a hill to protect valuable bottom land from erosion and accumulation of excess water. Mr. Hildreth has made plans for an extensive program of terracing.

The regular monthly meeting of the Board of Supervisors of the Soil Conservation District will be held Saturday night, November 9.

U. K. Veterans Housing Projects Near Completion

Twelve members of the University of Kentucky faculty and their families this week are scheduled to occupy the first completed units of the newest campus married veterans housing project—Shawneetown—and completion dates on an additional 62 units of veterans housing at U. K. is that construction will be virtually finished by the opening of winter quarters January 5.

Frank D. Peterson, University comptroller, disclosed this unprecedented step of providing emergency faculty housing and supported it with the explanation that "it has been made necessary due to current acute housing situation for the instructional staff which threatens to cause us to lose some able people unless we can provide living spaces for them and their families."

Some members of the faculty are commuting from distances up to 20 miles from the campus and others have refused to accept positions unless guaranteed housing. The decision last spring to allot 40 faculty families space in the Shawneetown area with 140 student veteran families, was one of the first steps taken in aid of faculty housing. It has been estimated that 100 faculty and administrative staff families need housing locally.

Shawneetown now is approximately 60 per cent complete and will probably be entirely finished by January 15. A second H-type two-story former officer's barracks, planned to house 183 single veterans, will be ready no later than December 5, according to present estimates. Thirteen scattered units of one-story barracks buildings, capable of taking care of 169 single men and 48 women veterans, will be completed by January 1, it is estimated.

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

By Dr. Gordon Wilson

The One-Roomed Church

In the fifty-one years ... started to school at Fidelity ... strange things have happened ... education, but probably the ... significant has been the upg... in many areas, of the one-room school. It is true that in some counties there are still many of them left; some of them right now without teachers, but the movement is decidedly in the direction of consolidation. Nearly all our counties have entirely done away with the one-roomed school, as Daviess county, for instance. The passing of the last small school in that county was a significant event, great enough ... warrant a Courier-Journal article ... illustrated with the picture of the school, its last teacher, and the few children left. That teacher ... one of my students, a good ... to round hose made a very ... contribution to that ... method as the school population dwindled and finally paved the abolishment of the school. ... was undoubtedly a bit of ... as when the door closed ... the last time, for it marked ... passing of a day that nearly ... of us remember tenderly. The ... ing children lived on ... another abolished district ... are now in the larger consolidated ... school, with many more ... miles for a wider acquaintance with books and people. This ... institution, like so many ... shows that it have loved, ... indicates that we grow and ... that was formerly good for ... no longer serve our ...

... a member of a large city ... congregation I have often wondered why the consolidated rural churches could not be stimulated as a movement parallel to that attempted in schools. Every county has one or many storeking churches that often do not have as many members as they had fifty years ago and sometimes no services of any regularity. Many a Methodist preacher, for instance, has eight such churches and tries to keep them going just as they were in the days when rural communities were more populous. Occasionally a country church is today far ahead of what it used to be, but that is decidedly the exception. The automobile has taken the people to far-away town or city churches or pauperize locally church. Strong old bulwarks of country churches, like our Fidelity Mr. Maddox, are decreasing in number steadily. When death took their old-time leaders, there were seldom younger people trained to take up the burdens. So decadent is the country churches become in some places that I once discovered that a county in which I was visiting did not have a single religious service on Sunday night, in fine-late-summer weather at that. I could not find out what percent ... ago of them had morning services and more. In my own county in this very year of 1946 a new country church of real pretensions has been built, which practically created a sensation. Many of the churches of the same denomination in the same county have hardly had a new coat of paint in many years, and are attended by a decreasing number of people. Consolidation could save the school interests as we changed from compact little communities to our present system, why might it not help the country, one-roomed church?

An old-timer like me cannot help feeling sad at the passing of an institution as fundamental as the rural church, but some kind of a cure is in order. I believe that even a church must meet expenses and that it is hardly fair to expect to get a young man to enter the ministry and then starve to death on some overworked circuit or group of small churches. There is genuine pathos in seeing a deserted graveyard and the site of an old church grown over in weeds and bushes. One such I often pass as I go south of town to see water birds in the spring. Once it was the meeting place of well-to-do farmers and their families, in an excellent neighborhood, then and now. In the graveyard are buried people who were prominent in the pioneer and later days. But a live church is only a few miles up a good gravelled road, and the neighborhood boundaries have widened since the church now gone was in its heyday. Slowly many such events must be taking place in our state, as the too-small church organization gives way to consolidation. I call it by whatever name you wish.
