Barkley Declares To Be Significant

Badly needed for quite some time for the storage of rapidly accumulating records, a new steel record vault arrived Saturday at the office of County Clerk John F. Sugg, and was assembled by a representative of the Cincinnati metal firm. The new vault, which is outfitted with aluminum hardware, contains 48 file boxes, five large drawers and 30 roller shelves—all 83 of which should make things quite a bit handier around the clerk's place of business from now on.

Bill Henry, local restaurateur renowned for his inimitable "seven tempers," this week received from one of the large tobacco companies a small parcel of what he told us was sample grades of tobacco. The leaves of the Oriental weed are a diminutive version of the burley leaf, in section measuring only four inches from stem to tip, and the samples were highly aromatic.

A. B. Collin, a school-mate of ours some years ago in Paris, will become plant manager of the Carlisle telephone branch on the 15th, and tells us he plans to move here very soon. A. B. is high school days used to be a trombonist of note, although he now assures us he was never quite certain WHAT note. At any rate, we hope he finds a home as pleasant a place in which to live as we have.

On the other hand, Archie Crump, who is leaving the local telephone office to work for the firm in Paris, has asked us to make it as emphatic as possible that he intends to consign reading in Carlisle. Archie is not prone to underestimate the determination of the many house seekers here, apparently.

Games Scheduled Friday And Tuesday

The Carlisle Musketeers are scheduled to meet Lancaster Presbyterian church at Lancaster on Friday this week, and on Tuesday will play Cynthiana there.

C. Myers who stands 5 feet and weighs 101 pounds, was declared at center in place of Sexton who was forced to ride the wood because of Charley Rose.

One of the brightest spots in the Musketeer grid machine was the kicking of Quarterback Emery Clark, whose punts averaged 46 yards.

Carlisle however drew the plaudits of the crowd and labeled itself as a club with plenty of fight when Crawford cut his way through a swarm of General tacklers for 75 yards before he was downed on the Danville goal line. However, fumbles again proved costly to the Musketeers and they failed to advance the ball on to pay dirt.

Outstanding for the Generals was the deceptive Polites and Pryor in the backfield and Myers and Osborne in the line. For Carlisle, Clark and Crawford seemed to draw most of the applause.

Council Discusses Gas Possibilities

Natural gas possibilities for the acquisition of a natural gas supply in Carlisle were discussed at some length by members of the City Council in regular monthly session here Monday night with Mayor W. C. Talbert presiding, councilmen heard reports on a consumer canvass which has already been completed among Carlisle residents, and City Attorney Charles M. Cox stated that of approximately 250 possible gas users in the city, 96 per cent had expressed themselves as definitely favoring the proposed gas system. Mr. Cox added that two more of Carlisle's districts are yet to be surveyed, and that when completed the canvass will include about some 350 to 365 interviews.

Definite information concerning the means of obtaining gas from the Anderson Construction Company, who is engaged in laying a "spur" gas line through this territory, were still lacking, but all possible steps are being taken by councilmen, it was reported, to have the gas supply on the earliest possible date.

In addition to an ordinance on traffic control in Carlisle, the council adopted another ordinance recommended by the Standard Safety Council in connection with fire prevention.

It was recorded by City Clerk Arthur Mullikin that the sum of $1,000 was collected for traffic court fines during September, and $312 was polleeted on replevin bonds assessed in previous months.

U S O Drive Will Open Tuesday

October 15 has been set as the opening date for a widespread USO Service Organization drive in this county, it was stated this week by Lee B. Osborne, drive chairman.

A quota of $815 has been set as the goal for this year's campaign and drive workers hope to exceed this amount in contributions. The quota this year is only about one-third of that set last year, Mr. Osborne said.

Pointing out the great need which still exists for USO funds, Mr. Osborne said that the unit still in hospitals—for whom the war has not yet ended—are now the chief concern of the organization. Contributions, he added, will make possible canteen shows and other varied forms of entertainment for these veterans.

An advisory committee for the USO drive in Nicholas county includes Billy Lawson, Judge Walter Shepherd, E. R. Kendall, Frank Hardesty, Grimes Caywood and Larry Branson.

Completed plans call for athletic events for school children of both grade and high school ages to be held at the high school athletic field at 1:30 o'clock Friday afternoon. This event will be under the supervision of Clay Richie and Mr. Day. These athletic events were scheduled originally to take place on the court house lawn, but because of space limitations were moved to the athletic field.

A total of $18 in cash will be given in three classes. Mr. Allison urged members to renew before October 31, their insurance contracts with the Association for the protection of sheep against losses by dogs. Members, he said, this month may obtain this protection by the registered sheep yearly premium of 10 cents per head of grade sheep, or 20 cents per head for registered sheep. Courier-Journal Writer Describes Legion Horse-Pulling Contest Here

Editor's Note: The following article, concerned with the recent American Legion-sponsored horse pulling contest here, is reprinted from the Louisville Courier-Journal's Roto-Magazine of Sept. 29. The story in the Louisville journal was accompanied by some excellent photographs of four teams which the Mercury regrets were unobtainable for local use.

THE DRAFT HORSE'S MOMENT OF GLORY

By Joe Creason

It has been said that Kentucky has as much to the horse that the official state flower should be changed from the goldenrod to the blossom of any of the horse-radish.

Although their respect hasn't yet gone to that extreme, Kentuckians do honor their horse in many ways. No people are more avid customers of the racetrack, and the state's fairs seem erected to that prima donna of the harness world, the Thoroughbred. Nor are people of any state more sincere in their devotion to the no-less temperamental cousin of the racer, the show horse.

Even the common draft horse, the one that can look a plow or a heavy load in the face without blanching, has its day in Kentucky. Throughout the North Central section of the State, on the fringes of the Bluegrass, pulling contests, in which farmers for miles around—even other states—put their best pulling horse against each other, are held during the spring and fall.

Object of a pulling contest is to determine which team in three classes—light, medium and heavyweight—can drag the heaviest load 15 feet. A slide with wood-en runners is loaded down with concrete blocks, and the teams in each class are given three tries in which to move it the required distance without overstepping a 15-foot-wide line on each side. After the entries have made their pull, or have failed to do so and been eliminated, more weight is added until the winner is determined. A regular set of rules has been drawn up, and referees are posted around the pulling track so two that none are broken, or even fractured. Cash prizes normally go to first, second and third teams in each class.

The most important of the contest Saturday afternoons during the months when the farmers aren't too busy in the tobacco fields. Often as many as 10 farms are entered in each class. The events draw large, good-natured audiences that have an carnival-like air, with admission charged and the usual fried-on-a-stick-only hamburgers, hot dogs and soft drinks peddled at customarily inflated prices.

And in the back of most pulling contestants' minds is the hope that some dark horse who have selected favorites in the events, and who have put down a few dollars in betting, will ride up forcefully in the home stretch—or at least—large—blizzard of dollar bills.

Pulling contests supposedly started in Canada, and the hot breed is found in Kentucky some time ago. But only in the last four or five years have pulling contests really caught on. Now, in the spring and fall months, seldom a Saturday passes but that a pull is held somewhere in the North Central section, at Georgetown, Carlisle, Bethel, Mt. Sterling, Flemingsburg, Morehead, Falmouth, Sharpsburg or some other town.

Limit for lightweight teams is 2,800 pounds for both horses. Medium weight is 2,800 to 3,200 pounds, and all teams over 3,200 pounds are heavies. The law is pulled by a team denends on several factors, particularly the condition of the ground and may vary as much as 1,000 pounds from one pull to the next. The co-ordination of the team in starting the pull also is a factor. If the horses do not heed the line the load and pull together, the effort usually is wasted. A team often is eliminated on a load much lighter than it normally can take. Many successful drivers lead their teams to the load and, after the horses are hitched to the slide, allow them to stand perfectly still for a few seconds before calling on them to pull. The theory is that both horses relax and start their pull in unison. Some heavyweight teams can pull up to 7,000 pounds if the ground is right.
