LUNCH PROGRAM

energy and better nerve with their lessons, which result in more complete growth.

"More parents—especially have found that a major problem is that their children do not get some of the fruits and vegetables which are necessary for proper nourishment. One of the important things that we should develop early in life is to learn to eat and like a variety of foods. The school lunch program has served as a natural laboratory for teaching better eating practices.

In addition to serving as a laboratory for better nourishment in fact, it has provided a natural means for teaching more graceful eating practices. There are many places where children need systematic help. Only the guest without any fear of either Emily or the children being ill at ease. Certainly every lunch program should have the two above mentioned aspects.

If the school lunch program can be justified as a means to better nourishing it must have a place in the school program and be worthy of support. Would we question providing facilities for heating the school building? No we would not. We know all of the children comfortable as they will come to school regularly and learn well. We do not provide best aids for those that are underprivileged or handicapped. We know that best make for comfortable conditions for every child regardless of what he might financially be able to buy. The school lunch program has the same purpose and in principle is very similar to the above. Every child needs three nourishing meals each day just as he needs heat for warmth, therefore, we feel that the school lunch program has a right to its place in the school program.

The children in school today will determine the type of world we live in here tomorrow.

Can we as school teachers and parents then fail to see the lesson. These young men are teaching us, and go on permitting the younger generation to grow up illiterate and unable to cope with the complex problems which lie ahead?

How can a fourth grade education equip a child to grow up and live in atomic age filled with all the complex problems that such a world will bring about.

School people, working alone, cannot solve all the educational problems, when a child fails to enroll in school or does not attend regularly there is always a maladjustment which should be located and remedied. The difficulty may arise from the physical condition of the child, from the home environment, or from unwholesome home conditions, lack of parental control or interest, or an inadequate school program. This problem is primarily a social and economic problem. The problems of attendance cannot be solved only when the efforts of the parents, the teacher, the school attendance officers, are augmented by the cooperation of the health officials and the county law enforcement officers, as well as the united efforts of all citizens.

Mystery Worm Identified!

Considerable bewilderment has existed around The Mercury office in recent days concerning the identity of a very ferocious-looking green worm which was brought in from the county. No one here was able to find a name the worm would answer to, and County Agent Bill Straw was in Lexington at the time attending a course at the University, so the curiosity mounted daily as more and more callers arrived at the office to have a look at the varmint.

Yesterday, however, we were relieved and feel obliged to pass on the comforting information we received from County Agent Straw. The worm does have a name—Bill says its common name is the "Hickory Horned Devil," and adds that it is quite harmless, and in spite of its formidable appearance, does not sting or bite. It is very rare in these parts, and it feeds on hickory, walnut and persimmon leaves. Its status as a worm, moreover, is a temporary one, for when winter comes it burrows into the ground and changes in the spring a different creature entirely—in fact it becomes a "Regal Walnut Moth," which flies only at night and is very seldom seen. The textbooks describe the moth's colors as being a combination of "mingled tan, olive brown and russet red."

Lessons of War Make Literacy More Vital Today Than Ever-Davis

By R. E. Davis, City School Superintendent

With the beginning of a new year of school every administrator, every teacher and every parent is faced with the old problem to face, how to get children in school and keep them there?

Never in all the history of our country has there been a time when every citizen of this land needed more to be able to think logically for himself, to plan for the future and stand on his own feet as at the present time. The responsibility which has been vested in us as a result of the war has earned experience which he had during this past war period. The numberless lonely hours he had on sentry duty and in the deathlike stillness of the foxholes gave him time to think and plan a future in a far more serious manner than he had ever done before. So as a result of that thinking and that planning he is returning to the school room to start all over again where he left off, or had ceased to be interested. As a result of all this the young high school graduates of today are finding the colleges and universities full of hard-working, serious minded men who are determined to finish their studies and fight the battle of peace as energetically as they did the battles of war.

The dividend will be paid to the association's 100 members in Nicholas, Bath and Bourbon counties on the basis of the amount of association stock each member owned on August 1, 1946.

Payment, Miss Kinney said, was made possible by a dividend the association received recently from the Federal Land Bank of Louisville. As prescribed by law, a part of this amount went into the association's reserves and the remainder was paid to members declared the balance as dividend.

Directors of the NFLA are W. S. Atkinson, James D. Allison, Arthur Mullikin, Ray S. Hamilton and Samuel Ham.

Attendance Drive Slated For County Schools This Year

Stating that there could be no reason for tolerating illiteracy to any extent in Nicholas county, County School Superintendent Raymond J. Wesley this week announced that a concerted drive will begin, with the reopening of the county schools Monday, to encourage—and to enforce—regular school attendance throughout Nicholas.

Mr. Wesley observed that the greatest obstacle in the way of elementary rural education, here as elsewhere in Kentucky, is the failure on the part of many parents to insure that their children attend school each day. Unless regular and uniform attendance practices are adhered to, he continued, education—even to the literacy level—is largely a fruitless endeavor.

He expressed the hope that parents would, with the realization of the importance of the task, give fuller cooperation this year in the attendance problem.

Council Grants Building Permits

At the regular September meeting of the Carlisle City Council held Monday night at the city offices, a building permit was granted to the Central Petroleum Corporation of Richmond, Ky., to erect a service station on the southeast corner of Main and Sycamore streets, opposite the post office. Building permits were also granted Raymond J. Wesley to erect a residence, and to S. T. Cameron, to build a porch on his residence on Broadway.

The city treasurer's department reported that receipts for August from water rents, lights, delinquent taxes and license fees totaled $547.98. Fines collected in police court during the month amounted to $204.

Mrs. Beusalene Frey, who was elected city assessor at the August meeting of the council, appeared before the council Monday night and qualified for the position.
