Fire Destroys 138-Year-Old County Landmark Tuesday

House Occupied By Five Generations Of Johnson Family

Fire believed to have originated from chimney sparks falling through the shingle roof Tuesday destroyed the 138-year-old residence known as the Mason Johnson home three miles southwest of Carlisle at the intersection of Ky. 22 and U. S. 68.

The old stone-and-log structure, which was one of Nicholas county's oldest landmarks, was built in 1809 by Laban Johnson, who came to Kentucky from Pennsylvania in 1805, and during succeeding years was occupied by five generations of the Johnson family.

At the time of its destruction Tuesday, the house was occupied by Mrs. Alex Miller of Millersburg, who was a Johnson before her marriage, and was operated by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Jones and family.

Flames on the roof were discovered by a passerby who notified Mrs. Jones. Most of the furniture and personal belongings were saved but the house was destroyed, along with a large smokehouse, contents of which were also saved.

Neighbors and passerby assisted in removing possessions from the old building and succeeded in extinguishing flames that ignited a garage, a coffin and a barn on the property.

Since the death of its builder, Laban Johnson, the house was inherited by his son, Mason, who in turn inherited by Jonathan's son, Mason Johnson, for whom the present owner is named.

Oscar Johnson, a son of Mason Johnson, inherited the property at his father's death and retained it until his death a number of years ago when it was inherited by his daughter, Mrs. Alex Miller, the present owner.

Known to many travellers during the early history of this section of the country, the house was one of the earliest structures along the old Limestone road to Maysville to Lexington, and which was the first federal highway in the United States. The site for the structure was selected because of a spring which was across the road. The house faced away from the original Limestone road, as indicated by the presence behind the house of old stone steps a part of the wilderness highway.

No estimate of the total loss from the fire Tuesday were obtainable. Routine matters were discussed.

1,000 Cows Is Aim Of Nicholas Dairy Group

Committee Plans Artificial Breeding Program In County

Twenty-five members of the Nicholas County Dairy Committee this week commenced a drive aimed at enlisting 1,000 head of cows as a start in the county's proposed artificial breeding cooperative.

Headed by Ovel Day, chairman, and Kenneth Stephenson, vice chairman and Glenn Booth, secretary, the dairy committee consists of Cynthiana Minister, Preston Gaunce, Lowell Hollar, Leonard Alexander, John Ferguson, Robert Hildreth, W. E. Piper, Harvey Waggoner, Reid Ockerman, Malcolm Willis, Everett Duncan, John Barrett, Luther Hollar, Grover Phillips, Dudley Conway, Willard Varnell, Otta Conrad, Milton Grimes and Homer Miller.

In summarizing the efforts of the artificial breeding program which began last fall, County Agent William T. Straw said that 102 head of cows were enrolled during a series of meetings held in October, and the goal of 1,000 head is hoped to be reached by March 8, in order that the program may be launched before the rush of farm work begins.

Contract forms for use in enrolling the cows in the program are in possession of each member of the committee, as well as the county agent and Straw stated that that is the date farmers should inadvertently miss contacting any interested farmer who may have a contract to sign by calling any committeeman.

Many of those who are interested in the new method of improving livestock, describe the plan as one of the really great steps of advancement in agriculture. Participation is particularly adaptable to the small herd owner at a small cost. The adoption of this service will correct a long

FISCAL COURT MEETS

The Nicholas County Fiscal Court held a regular meeting at the courthouse here Wednesday.

Once more—as it does each year—the time has arrived when those fortunate persons who are endowed with even a small part of the world's material blessings are given the opportunity to share some of those blessings with the millions of unfortunates who have nothing.

The opportunity is made possible by the American Red Cross, which stands ready as always to act as agent for the relief of the hungry, the destitute, and the homeless over the world. Added now to its already manifold obligations are the services rendered to the men already in the war, and to that great post-war Army of young men away from home for the first time.

The worthiness of the cause is not questioned.

The volunteer workers who will go about Nicholas county raising funds for the Red Cross this year will receive no monetary reward for their efforts. Much of their work in all probability will go unappreciated. Yet, without the wholehearted cooperation of every person in the county, the campaign cannot succeed.

How about it? Let's get behind them this year.

Musketeers Lick Sharpsburg During Last-Quarter Attack

The Carlisle high school Musketeers, after trailing their opponents throughout three quarters of the Tuesday night game, rallied during the final stanza to hand the Sharpsburg quintet a 47-44 defeat.

For Coach Tebay Rose's basketeers, it was the final scheduled game of the season, and the surprise rally during the last minutes of play came after the Carlisle had lagged behind 15-14 at the first quarter, 31-23 at the half, and 40-30 at the third canto.

Shanklin led the Musketeers in scoring 12 points, while Lyon and Stone each tallied 10 for Sharpsburg.

Jury Finds For Hunter In Contract Suit Here

McCarty Trial Continued To May

A contract for the transfer of two tracts of land in the Blue Licks section of the county from W. L. Hunter to Charles Massie was found invalid by a jury in Nicholas Circuit court last week, on the grounds that the instrument failed to make specific provisions for the methods and amounts of payment.

An equity action was filed by Massie April 12, 1946, wherein he stated that he had purchased the land Feb. 8, 1946 at public auction, and that since that date Hunter had refused specific performance of the contract executed at that time. The petition asked damages in the amount of $2000 be awarded the plaintiff.

The jury found in favor of Hunter, and awarded no damages.

Trial of Henry Ray McCarty, on a charge of murder in the slaying last Nov. 2 of Oscar Grayson Gaunce, Nicholas county farmer, was continued to the May term of court and McCarty was released on bond.

The suit of the Cincinnati Gas and Transportation Company against J. W. Bumaw of the East Union road was reported settled out of court.
