men who are just talking to the fields and streams. There has been a marked increase in the past of younger sportsmen in meeting with us and I want to state it is not our policy to be harsh with them if they don't know just how to play the game, but to advise them and help them to become better sportsmen in the future."

Constructive Policy

The old-time Game Warden is no more! The term which through misunderstanding had become almost odious in the eyes of most folks is now being used in a new and better sense. The "Conservation Officer" is now coming into common use, and it is the expressed hope of the department that the new term will carry with it a more progressive, enlightened concept of just what the duties of the job are.
