ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

Bible Scripture—II Kings 24-25; Jeremiah 37; 39-40.

When Jehoiakim died, his son, Jehoiachin, was made king, but only reigned three months when the Babylonians attacked Judah, captured the king, his other and nobles, and made him a prisoner, never to return.

The king of Babylon made Zedekiah king in Jehoiachin's place, and during his reign a man named Irijah, accused Jeremiah, the prophet, of betraying his people, and although Jeremiah denied it, he was taken and thrown into prison.

In the ninth year of Zedekiah's reign, Jerusalem again was attacked by the armies of the king of Babylon, which took Zedekiah prisoner and burnt the house of the Lord, the king's house and all the houses of the great men.

After capturing and slaughtering the people of Judah and the king's sons and blinding Zebekiah, the king of Babylon made Gedaliah governor of Judah, but Ismael and his allies slew him.

MEMORY VERSE—Psalms 29:11.

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for June 22 is II Kings 24-25; Jeremiah 37; 39-40; the Memory Verse being Psalm 29:11, "Jehovah will give strength unto His people; Jehovah will bless His people with peace.")

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

WE ARE nearing the end of Judah's history as a nation. It began gloriously under David and Solomon, and ended shamefully with the people, all but a small remnant, in captivity in Babylon.

Jehoiachin followed his father Jehoiakim, but he reigned but a short not for long. He was 18 years old when he began his reign, but he reigned only for three months. Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon, "came up against Jerusalem, and the city was besieged." Instead of fighting, Jehoiachin, with his mother, his servants, his princes and officers, went out to the king of Babylon, and was carried into captivity, never to return to his native land. After years in prison, however, Nebuchadnezzar's successor and son, took him out of prison and made him a pensioner in his house, with a regular allowance for his support.

At this time the treasure of the temple and palace were carried away by the Babylonians, and all the people who were "strong and apt for war," who could lead or fight, were also carried into captivity. Zedekiah was made king (the last) of Judah by Nebuchadnezzar.

Jeremiah Imprisoned

During his reign, Jeremiah, the prophet, who had gone out of Jerusalem to the land of Benjamin, was accused by one, Irijah, of deans. He indignantly denied it, but was, nevertheless, taken to the princes, who were angry at him, and put him in prison. He remained in a dungeon for many days, and then Zedekiah went to him and asked him, secretly, if there was any word from the Lord. Jeremiah answered yes, that the word was that he, the king, should be delivered into the hand of the king of Babylon.

In what way had he offended, Jeremiah asked the king, that he should be put in prison? Zedekiah commanded, then, that Jeremiah should be committed to the court of the prison, and should every day be given a piece of bread out of the bakers' street until all was gone.

Zedekiah tried a rebellion against the king of Babylon, which was, of course, unsuccessful, and in the ninth year of his reign Nebuchadnezzar "came, he and all his host, against Jerusalem, and pitched against it; and they built forts against it round about."

The city was besieged until the eleventh year of King Zedekiah's reign. Soon there was famine in the city, the people suffered terribly, the historians tell us. "And the city was broken up and all the men of war fled by night . . . and the king went the way toward the plain."

The Babylonian army overtook Zedekiah, however, and took him prisoner, carrying him to Babylon. They killed his sons before his eyes, and put out his eyes. Nebuchadnezzar sent his captain of the guard, Nebuzaradan, to Jerusalem, where he burnt the house of the Lord, the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem. Every man's house he burnt, and his army broke down the walls of Jerusalem. Many men still left in the city went over to the Babylonians, and the remnant left behind were carried to Babylonia. But the captain of the guard left of the poor of the land to be vinedressers and husbandmen."

All Treasures Stolen

All the treasures of the temple were taken away, even to the pots, and the shovels, and the spoons, and all the vessels of brass wherewith they ministered, took they away."

The chief priest, the second priest and the three keepers of the door were taken, and many others, and later slain. "So Judah was carried away out of their land."

Of the few people that remained in the land, Nebuchadnezzar set Gedaliah, son of Ahikam, son of Shaphan, as ruler. Gedaliah swore to the people that they should not fear to be servants of the Chaldeans and serve the king of Babylon.

"But it came to pass in the seventh month, that Ishmael, son of the seed royal, came, with ten men with him, and smote Gedaliah that he died."

"And all the people, both small and great, and the captains of the armies, arose, and came to Egypt; for they were afraid of the Chaldees."

"Thus fell the people whom the Lord had brought out of their captivity in Egypt, and made into a great nation, because they were not true to the Lord their God and deliverer.

"LOOK AT THAT WAITRESS CROSSING HERSELF"

"Some lightning!" remarked Jim from across the table in the golf club grill. "And look, will you, at that waitress crossing herself. I suppose that weird sign will keep her from being struck—poor superstitious creature."

"That weird sign," I answered, "has a history. Lets' forget the waitress for a moment and go back 1900 years to a sunny day in Rome. Look carefully at that old Jew standing by the side of the Appian Way. Isn't he too making that same weird sign? Yes, but a bit more secretively —just on his forehead or breast. Romans, Romans passing by—some spitting at the old Jew, others jeering at him. But here! —one Roman has stopped. He is stepping toward the Jew. Ha! —he too is making the weird sign—the Sign of the Cross, by which one Christian knew another and so could, with less danger, communicate about Masses or other important events.

"When Rome became Christian no longer was there need of secrecy; but always there has been, and always there will be, need of faith in the Cross of Calvary on which the God-man died for you and for me. And so the Sign of the Cross has lived down through the ages—the same sign except that it is now made conspicuously with the fingers of the right hand which outline the cross from the forehead to the chest and from the left shoulder to the right. As this sign of faith is made, the following words are spoken: "In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost," an act of Faith, also in the great mystery of the Blessed Trinity.

"All over the world Catholics begin and end their prayers with the Sign of the Cross, which we call 'blessing ourselves,' because we are sure so beautiful an act of faith brings down Heaven's blessings upon us. In the Mass, in the administering of the Sacraments, the Sign of the Cross is made many times. And we Catholics are proud of it because it is, like many of our time-hallowed customs, symbols, and ceremonies, pregnant with meaning, devotion and humble faith.

"So let the little waitress bless herself whenever the lightning flashes; for remember that as all-hearing God knows her plea and that an all-powerful God can stop a storm today as a golf course just as readily as He stopped a storm another day on the seas of Galilee."

If it's anything Catholic, ask a Catholic!

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "For, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought, that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth upon the high places of the earth, The LORD, The God of hosts, is his name." (Amos 4:13)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, Science and Health with the Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Belief in a material basis, on which may be deduced all finality, is slowly yielding to the idea of a metaphysical basis, taking away from matter to Mind the cause of every effect." (P. 268)

Escape to Freedom

SPIRITED out of the Soviet-occupied zone of Germany by a U. S. consul, Barbara Hoell, 20, is back home in Philadelphia with relatives. According to her story, she was living with her parents in Bulgarus, Rumania, when Russians took the town in 1945. She says she was among those shipped to a brick factory in the Ukraine as a "slave laborer" and forced to work 12 to 14 hours a day, with little to eat. Later she was removed to Germany, from which she escaped. (International)
