but it would require a lot of mathematics to figure away the value of a bag of Tuxedo, because, re-gardless of your figures, or ours, it contains 100 pounds of the best feed made for the production of milk, eggs, growth or flesh, and is always sold on the basis of such performance.

The time to figure, then, is upon its net re-turn to you, and, if you will keep the record, we believe you will find the price—at all times reasonable-will be of secondary importance. The more it produces the less it costs, regardless of price.
