The Peace That Comes At Christmas Time

(An Editorial)

Who would not be a child again at Christmas time? Who would not feel again on Christmas eve that thrill of anticipation, delightful and indescribable?

Cruitmas eve that thrill of anticipation, delightful and indescribable?

Could one but drink for a brief moment of the Fountain of Youth and, pushing back the scroll of the years, enter again the Land of Childhood where hopes are realized and dreams come true, few there be who would not become at this time worshipers at the shrine of that most delightful of mythical personages, Kris Kringle.

Fortunate indeed are those who may have children about them at this season, for the Fortunate, indeed, are those who may have children about them at this season, for the heart is always young, and before the wide-eyed hush of childish anticipation and the unferign-ed enjoyment of hopes fulfilled, the years drop away and, saddened by memories perhaps yet sweet withal, comes to them again the Christmas of their childhood.

"'For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Christ the

In the joy of giving and receiving, in the warmth of your Christmas cheer, in the de-light of your own youngsters, reveiling in the realization of their fondest dreams, it is well for you to remember those for whom no stocking bulges by the chimney nook; for whom there is no awakening in the silent hush of Christmas dawn to thrill with the anticipation of pleasures soon to be enjoyed—to whom the name of that dearest of patron saints is but hollow mockery.
