The Idea of March Approach
Nicholas county's traditional moving day is just around the corner. Within two weeks a week landowner-tenant contract will be terminating and a new harvest tending growing season will be planned.

Some believe, and this includes both the land and the tenant, that the date of the spring move should be earlier in the year. Both say that the moving date brings into the routine of the year work which includes cutting, plowing, sowing, and harvesting.

Others say that untimely weather makes it almost impossible to start an earlier date and that to handle their landowner-tenant contracts in the traditional manner would require an earlier date would render a hardship on those planning to move.

As in any other question two dates naturally are brought forth for consideration. The one of January and February, if an earlier moving date was established. The other would be the date of the spring move, which would be decided by both landowner and tenant.

Whoever the accomplishment of Nicholas county's youth is brought to our attention, we will help but feel certain that heretofore has been bright future. This was gradually summed up in the given earnings of just five youngsters.

The total gross income was perhaps several times the respective year. The boys who were and to all who participated, we say that the progressive work of your efforts Nicholas county is a better place in which to live, by your efforts the future of tomorrow is assured. By your efforts tomorrow's progress is recorded.

Take A Lesson From England
England was the first great power to establish representative government. The tradition of individual liberty which has been its fairest foundation in the United States had roots in British soil.

English is proving that economic dictatorship and personal freedom cannot exist together. Every day-day report from London tells of increasing restrictions, more and more regimentation of the people, more and more interference with the individual.

That is what always happens when people surrender freedom in exchange for false promises of economic security. Any form of totalitarian economy—whether it be socialist, communist or fascist—must inevitably pursue the same policies. The state must be organized like an army, and the orders must be obeyed.

It must have a legion of informers to turn in delinquents. It must have the power to reach into every corner of the national life and adapt it to its own purposes. It cannot be a democracy that respects the liberties of the people.

The most tragic development of the modern world has been the persistent failure of democracy to provide security. It should stand between us and every conceivable evil that has befallen man.

The wisdom of those who founded this nation was never so apparent as it is today. They were clear that only a government of limited powers could be trusted to preserve the liberties of the people.

Still In The Ring
Some commentators on military affairs say that the use of atomic weapons and other techniques have made almost all of the old rules of war obsolete and that we must completely jettison the traditional in favor of the experimental.

Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan recently pointed out that by restricting the country of four post developments which, at one time, would have been given to give surface vessels from the sea. The first was explosive shells of great caliber—lost improved armor plate proved the answer to that.

As an example, naval surface ships are being designed to be able to sink the enemy's fleet. The first was explosive shells of great caliber—lost improved armor plate proved the answer to that.
