The Season's Greetings

How far we have come even within the memory of living man...

How far we have advanced, each of us treading on the heels of Science and Production...

But in our race for Progress, away from the restrictions of the past, let's not leave behind the human values of love and friendship and helpfulness and faith and prayer.

First written many years ago, that thought will serve you as well for 1948 as it did the year in which it was written. I expect to pass values of love and friendship and helpfulness and faith and prayer. For I shall not pass this way again.
