You're a Brave New World?

Every radical movement, whether it be communist or some milder form of red, goes to an interesting to seduce young people. Old ideas of government, economics and practically everything else, the argument runs, are out-moded and ridiculous. Tradition is meaningless. So it is up to youth to bring a brave new world into being by setting up some kind of system, with everything, will be done for everybody, and a handful of government officials will maintain powers will make all the decisions.

It cannot be denied that the efforts to line up youth in causes which are essentially material in nature has met with considerable success. Speakers who idea of progress is to destroy everything that has been built up by find their most enthusiastic audiences on university campuses. They are especially popular with Mr. Walter's, which they progress make no secret of the fact that they are not serious in their efforts to bring about the young. This is the result of a great deal of investment in the American educational system, which may eventually be laid to freedom if it proves in the long run to be a failure. The American educational system is in a state of confusion and confusion. The newspaper editor, in any event, has had to make the choice of whether to write and publish or to remain silent.
