Woodland Supplies Farm For 50 Years

Over a period of 50 years, a 25-acre woodland on the Shreve farm in Taylor county has furnished constant source of lumber supply, reports Wilson J. Mitchell, farm forester. Every building on the farm, including four barns, a house and four outbuildings, have been made or remodeled from lumber harvested from the woodland during the present time. Hubbard Shreve is farming the acreage as part of a 240-acre farm, for which he has marketed 27,000 board feet of logs and small pattern of his lumber supply.

Mr. Shreve estimates that 3700 feet board feet remain, and that the woodland during the last half century, there have been cuts that have been cut every year for logs, poles, lumber and firewood, the cut being taken from dead trees and the tops of those cut for lumber. These still remain, and a small pattern of his lumber supply.

Kentucky Planning Its 35th Anniversary Of Sunday School Day

Sunday, May 1, is Go-To-Sunday-School Day in Kentucky. During the month of April some 2,000 Sunday school workers over the state and those interested in the Sunday school will be engaged in a strenuous promotional campaign, looking to a greatly increased attendance on May 1st.

Hundreds of attractive display posters have already been mailed by the Kentucky Council of Churches, sponsors of the movement. These posters are free but Sunday schools desiring them are urged to make requests promptly to the Kentucky Council at 554 S. Third Street, Louisville, Ky.

Kentucky was the first state to have a Go-To-Sunday-School Day, and the first date was May 3, 1914.

The Governor at that time, Hon. James B. McCreary, issued a proclamation inviting all citizens and visitors in Kentucky to be in the Sunday schools and churches of their choice on the second Go-To-Sunday-School Day. He was the first Governor to issue such a proclamation. Never before had kentucky been so Sunday school conscious; within a few years 26 other states and some areas in Canada were observing a Go-To-Sunday-School Day.

How many of these others have continued the movement is not known but it will be Kentucky's 35th observance of the day which has been the means of reaching and bringing hundreds of boys and girls, men and women, into the Sunday schools of the state. There is no limit to the possibilities of the day, said T. J. Ferguson, field secretary, "when properly promoted, observed and followed up."

The purpose of the day is to extend to each individual in Kentucky an invitation to attend the Sunday school and church of his choice on May 1st. To advertise the opportunity that the Sunday school is for all ages; and to stimulate all Sunday schools to put forth effort in bringing in as many visitors and new pupils as possible. To organize the Sunday school people of all denominations in Kentucky in a definite program for the extension of the Kingdom of Christ by building larger and better Sunday schools.

Nothing Simple In Old Dress Pattern

Barren county homemakers attending agricultural school at Glasgow under the direction of Clothing Specialist Mrs. Dorothy Hartsell, College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky, decided present-day dress pattern were simple, after examining one made in 1812. Issued by a neighbor to Mrs. Russell Gardner, county club leader, the pattern was used for different size and different figure alike. Some of the seamstress followed certain portions. The 137-year-old pattern was manufactured in Louisville.

UK Professor Says Librarians Needed

The college of library science at UK for a professional field that is not overcrowded are moving a good deal of attention to meet the shortage of trained librarians, according to Miss Mary Edna Anders, head of the University of Kentucky library school. Within the next five years alone, he says, about 10,000 librarians will be needed to staff the nation's libraries. Since the 55 full time positions in the state are expected to exceed the supply for many years to come.

Speech Festival Scheduled At UK

The annual high school speech festival will be held May 13 and 14 on the campus of the University of Kentucky April 11-13. In addition to the traditional debating tournament, contests also have been scheduled in extemporaneous speaking, poetry reading, oratorical declamation, interpretive reading and radio speaking. The festival is sponsored by the UK Extension Department and is open to the public.

Says Wheat Cover Crop Outdoes Rye

Neil Galbraith of the Bridgeville community in Robertson county has found that wheat will stand back-water and hold the bottom land better than was rye, he reported to Farm Agent J. T. Cochran. Mr. Galbraith found when the back-water receded that the wheat acreage was six to eight inches higher than neighboring farmers ground. He plans to seed wheat in standing corn this fall, to aid in holding his soil.

New Chemical To 'Burn' Leaf Bed Is Introduced In Nicholas County

The methyl bromide treatment of tobacco plant beds is being demonstrated on the farm of Hunter Judge near Moorefield. Application was made last week under the direction of Russell Hunt, burley tobacco specialist, University of Kentucky, and observation of results will be made as the season progresses.

The chemical used by Hunt is a gas that is made liquid in cans by putting it under pressure at low temperature. Methyl bromide is heavier than air, so when it is piped into the "tent" covering the plant bed it forces itself down into the soil, reaching the seed and those killing them.

Hunt recommends use of a metal evaporating trough—a short piece of rain gutter or a chicken waterer trough—at the end of the plastic hose that runs from the can of methyl bromide to the plant bed.

A simple clamp device is attached to the end of the hose where the can of methyl bromide is used. A pinching device will clamp punctures the can and seals the hole with a rubber gasket.

Methyl bromide as a plant bed treatment should be used in the fall. Air tight covering is required. The plant beds should be prepared in the usual manner by plowing, harrowing and raking.

If the new chemical treatment of plant-bed soils continues to be successful as early tests have been, burning or steaming of plant beds each spring will be a thing of the past.

Experiments at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station indicate that this gas treatment of plant beds will kill 98 percent of the weeds in plant bed sites, thus eliminating weeding of plant beds entirely.

The methyl bromide plant bed treatment at the Judge farm, the first so treated in Nicholas county, will be demonstrated this year in connection with the annual Tobacco Field Day, on August 24. This event will be held at the Judge farm.

Other practices to be listed at the field day will be the use of 2,4-D weed killers. This field has been sod tested.

ACP Planning Major Change In Formula For Farm Payments

A major change in the formula used in allocating funds under the Conservation Program funds which will allow counties where farmer-participation is highest to receive a proportionally larger share in future years was announced here today by the Production and Marketing Administration's State Committee, the group which administers the program in the state.

The new plan is effective immediately, R. G. Wilson, chairman of the committee, stated.

He pointed out that funds already allocated to counties for the 1949 program will not be affected, but in the 1950 ACP, allocation of funds to a county will depend in part on the percentage of farmers in the county who have participated in the 1949 program.

"This year and in 1948, Wilson said, funds were allocated to each county largely on the basis of the total number of farms and total cropland in the county without regard to the percentage of farmers actually participating in the ACP. These factors still will be used in making allocations with the percentage of participation factor added.

The basic reason for the change, Wilson said, is the relatively low percentage of farmers participating in the program in some counties as compared with participation in others. For instance, in the 1947 program, participation of farmers in Kentucky counties ranged from 11.4 to 94.8 percent.

Average participation for the state in that year was 61 percent of the

ONE OF THE NEWEST METHODS to kill weed seeds in tobacco plant beds is to "burn" them with methyl bromide gas. The bed is covered with a gas-proof paper, tightly sealed around the edges with dirt and the gas turned loose under it. The job is completed in about 48 hours. The picture was taken at a demonstration on the farm of Hanson Judge near Moorefield under the direction of County Agent William T. Straw. Russell Hunt, burley tobacco expert, extension department, University of Kentucky, third from left, is demonstrating the new gas, while William Sims, Hanson Judge, two unidentified men, and Howard Irvin look on. PUBLIC NOTICE CHATS

A man who has recently been through the mill of operating his small estates is puzzled and disturbed at the time he is required. The affairs of both decedents were in good financial health left valid wills, there were no disputes and no particular complications. But one estate took more than two years to settle and the other more than one.

These being his first direct experience in such matters, he is inclined to blame the delays on needless red tape. In this he is mistaken. Existing delays could have been shortened for these estates, but the law puts newly-and wisely-fixes a minimum time in such matters.

A common purpose here is for the publication in local newspapers of periods of notices of several Public Notices concerning each estate: One has to do with the appointment of the administrator; others with the presentation of any claims, and ultimately the final settlement. Each publication is for two weeks to give maximum protection to all concerned.

Honorary pallbearers were: Earl Clay, O. C. Clay, John Clay, S. Bedford and Bruce Clark, James B. Wade, Elgin Clark, Hall, John Young Chrisman and Robert Neal.

Mrs. Neal, who celebrated her 98th birthday anniversary last October, died at 4 a. m. Friday at the home of her son, Guy H. Neal. She had been confined to her bed after an illness of three weeks. Daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Vaughn, she spent her entire life in the Upper Licks section of the county, and lived in the same house for more than 80 years.

She was a member of the Mt. Zion Christian church.

She is survived by four sons, Robert, Guy, and Leo Neal, Carlisle and James Neal, Fleming county; 12 grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Other officers elected were: R. T. Fisher, vice president, and Mrs. Johnson, secretary, and Marion J. Mathers, treasurer.

The officers will be officially installed at the first Rotary meeting in July.

Musketeers To Play Spring Grid Battle With Trojans Monday

A sneak preview of the 1949 Musketeer grid machine may be seen next Monday, April 18, when the local gridders engage the Trojans of Mt. Sterling in an exhibition game under the lights on Montgomery county soil. Game time is 7:45.

Coach Tebay Rose's charges will be up against a CKC aggregation powered by 11 returning letter-men. Thirty-three candidates reported to Trojan mentor Vernon Tucker, who announced his probable starting lineup as. Kirk and Horton, ends; Martin and Henry or Marsh, tackles; Mason and Stewart, guards, Clemons, center; Bashford and Bruce or Rickett, halfbacks; Carr, quarterback; and Dale at fullback.

The Trojan line averages 170 pounds whereas the Musketeer's probable line starters, Hendy and Hughes, ends; Williams and Stephenson at tackles; Goebel Clark and Crawford, guards and Booth, center, will average about 155 pounds, a 15-pound-per-man weight handicap.

In the backfield, Coach Rose will send forth Myers, Morrison, Hardin and Harper, all seasoned performers. However, Harper, counted on heavily to replace hard driving Bruce, was injured early in May, has been bothered and slowed considerably with a bruised calf and leg injury sustained in basketball. Jim Williams, veteran lineman, has missed several days of practice this week. Also side-lined with a back injury is Jimmy Allison, capable replacement. The Carlisle starting backs average around 150 pounds.

Monday night will pit speed versus weight and experience. If the Muskies figure to "figure" they will have to show a lot more scoring punch than meted so far in the spring practice sessions. In a scrimmage Friday with seniors and alums, they were able to cross the double-marker only twice, while the "grads" racked up five touchdowns and on several occasions broke away for nice runs.

Coach Rose was silent as to the chances of his charges in the Monday night exhibition. E. A.

RED CROSS GOAL TOPPED

Delegates elected to attend the convention of the Kentucky Federation of Woman's Clubs at Paducah June 7, 8 and 9 include Mrs. Allison and Mrs. Frank C. Henry. Alternates are Mrs. Irvin, Mrs. Womack and Mrs. Sage Ewel Kash.

Mrs. M. P. Nicholas, Nicholasville, was the guest of the Carlisle Woman's Club and presented "The Big Fisherman" by Lloyd C. Douglas. The presentation of "The Big Fisherman" was timely in that it is a portrayal of the events of Christ's ministry on earth prior to and during His crucifixion and resurrection. Pair Of Easter Bunnies Hatch Local Variety Store

Yes, they did, too! And for all we know a few Easter eggs, too. A pair of ambitious rabbits, which Allie Clinkenbeard purchased for 50 cents when he was 11-years-old, what is now The Variety Store might still be the property of the 5 & 10 of some 22 or 23 years ago.

"I don't exactly remember how I got hold of that 'Bo,' the cigar-smoking owner of the "from pennies to candles to frigidaire" business related. "I remember trading pennies and nickels I earned or people owed me.

Bob rabbit rainin' 35 years ago didn't afford the present day bunches. The "Bugs Bunny" ancestors simply ran wild all over the yard and under the chicken coop, everywhere, in fact. In order to catch the rabbits to sell, anywhere from 75c to $1.50 a pair, it was necessary to lure them into a home-constructed wire cage lined with bunny-bait of cabbage and lettuce. To the open wire door trap was attached a long string.

"I'd lie in the window of my room with the other end of the string in my hand and when enough rabbits came in the cage to eat, I'd pull the string and shut them in. Pa's always got the only horse I had of catching 'em when I wanted to buy a pair," he explained. The money he derived from the sales of the "multiplying wonders" kept him in clothes and spending money until he was 14, at which time the farm at Moorefield was sold, along with his thriving bunny business.

"I'll never forget, though, the Easter when Mrs. Howard Veach called me for a pair of bunnies with 'black punts on'." The rabbits were for Frances Veach (now Mrs. Keller Hughes).

Allie Clinkenbeard was a born businessman and trader. At the "ripe old age" of three he was giving duck eggs which, later on, hatched a fine duck and drake. After declining several offers to sell his pets, young Allie decided to swap them to Walter Berry, of Moorefield, for a shoat, "about the size you could carry in a two bushel sack." The sow litered, but Allie, then eight and busy in his trade had other ideas. He traded the hogs for a cow and the cow, later, for a horse.

Here, the almost-grey-at-11 Allie made a blunder. He carelessly let his mare founder and, as a result, die. All of his building profits gave the experience of good trading, vanished with the passing of the nag. It was soon after this, however, that the "bunny-business" boomed.

When school days were over, Allie began training with the Rural Mail Service from Carlisle, where he had taken the route for a year, when it was assigned from the road and came to the top of a tree.

The accident probably occurred at 10 a. m., but Flora was unable to remember details of the accident.

He was given first aid treatment by Dr. J. C. Cummins of Flemingsburg and later taken to Hayswood hospital in Maysville where he submitted to surgery. Four bones were pinned and several others were deeply imbedded in his mouth.

He was later removed from the Maysville hospital to his home here.

Nicholas Sportsmen Elect Sterling Smith

Sterling Smith was elected president of the Nicholas County Fish and Game club for the current year at a meeting of the organization held Thursday night at the Nicholas county courthouse.

Smith succeeds Boyd Hamilton to this office.

Raymond House was elected vice president of the sportsmen club and Arnold Bowen was re-elected secretary.

In addition to the election of officers, the club applied for 400 baby quail under the Division of Game and Fish program.

The sportsmen also voted to offer a reward of $25 for the arrest and conviction of a hunter injuring stock on any Nicholas county farm.

He was thrown from the Hemingbaugh in Carlisle, where he had taken the truck to be repaired, when it plunged from the road and came to rest at the top of a tree.

The accident probably occurred at 10 a. m., but Flora was unable to remember details of the accident.

He was given first aid treatment by Dr. J. C. Cummins of Flemingsburg and later taken to Hayswood hospital in Maysville where he submitted to surgery. Four bones were pinned and several others were deeply imbedded in his mouth.

He was later removed from the Maysville hospital to his home here.

Nicholas Farmers Try Out New Clover

Broadleaf Birdsfoot Trefoil, a new clover will be sown for the first time in Nicholas county by the following farmers: Merton Williams, Jr., Jesse Jones, Charles Scheffer, Hanson Judge, J. W. Miller and Dorsey Whaley.

"We don't know how well adapted Birdsfoot Trefoil will be in Nicholas county," T. Straw, county agent, said, "but if it gives the results here that it has in some other areas, it will be a great improvement in pasture. Extensive demonstrations have been established to determine if this clover is suited to the soil and climate.

Birdsfoot Trefoil is similar to alfalfa in that it roots deep in the soil and withstands dry weather after it is established. It is equal in feeding value to alfalfa. It grows exceedingly well as a companion crop with other grasses and clovers.

J. W. Miller will sow 2½ acres to Ky. 215 Red Clover. This is a new red clover which is longer lived than common red clovers. The seed is very scarce and it will be several years before the seed is available in commercial quantities to meet the demand. Miller expects to save seed.
