SOCIETY

County Courthouse

Eleanor Owen Penick

Trees sweep low on the courthouse lawn,
Lawn and country folk visit in the shade.
Men sit on the low wall, lean against the monument,
Speak of crops or work up to a trade.
Inside the courthouse are cool, dim corridors,
Office after office, and a library wing.
Child's piping voice, "what book did you get?"
Agriculture office where the farmers bring
Many of their problems. Upstairs, the courtrooms.
Destinies are settled here according to the law.
When court is in session, a tense and exciting place.
Murder or robbery trial, or maybe just a flaw
In someone's deed. Parked outside the courthouse
Are sleek sedans, jalopies, and converted jeeps.
Streamlined highways and a modern setting—
Let unscanned the whole scene keeps
A feeling of the time when this was the one center
Of power activity in days long gone.
And for just a moment there is the allusion
That time stands still on the courthouse lawn.
