Small Charge Made For Testing Soil

The Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station announces that the work of testing soil samples for farmers has become so heavy that a small charge will be made beginning July 1, to cover in part the cost of the work.

It has been the custom of the Experiment Station to work a fixed number of soil tests without charge. There was no formal provision for such service, but the limited number of requests made it possible for station chemists to perform the work along with their regular duties. Increased demand, however, it is announced, has made it necessary to make more definite provision for testing soil samples.

Through local assistance, 13 counties in Kentucky now have their own laboratories where farmers can get soil samples tested, and a number of other counties are in the process of organizing laboratories. Technicians trained by the College of Agriculture and Home Economics are in charge. Farmers in counties having laboratories should have their soils tested in them, it is stated.

The charge at the Experiment Station will be 85 cents a sample for the first two samples and 70 cents for each remaining sample when all are sent in at the same time. Soil containers and directions for taking samples can be had at county agent offices.

Simple Methods in Century-Old Recipe

How methods of workers have been simplified over 100 years ago was indicated to the members of the Cornwell Homemakers Club in Ohio county by Mrs. Ruth Barnes, foods leader.

"I have an angel food cake recipe that my mother bought in 1910 for 52-50 from a professional baker in an Ida City, Mich.," she said. The recipe was 62 years old then, or 101 years old now. It states that the sugar and water syrup for frosting should be cooked until bubble forms when the syrup is blown through a clay pipe. By contrast, Mrs. Pearl Haak, specialist in foods at the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky, says the syrup should be cooked until it spins a thread when the spoon is lifted from the pan. Then it is beaten into stuffy beaten eggwhites."

Farm Timber Would Build Seven Barns

When timber on the J. F. Dutrett farm near Bengal in Taylor county was marked for cutting recently, it was found that 33 acres contained enough timber to build seven large tobacco barns. The woodland has some of the best white ash in that section, notes Wilson J. Mitchell, county assistant in foresters. There is also a considerable amount of coffee, honey locust and hackberry trees, all uncommon in central Kentucky.

Hubbard Sheeves of the same county also has an excellent stand of timber on land too steep to grow any other crop. Through protecting his woodland against forest fires and stock grazing, he has trees ready to cut now, said Mitchell, and will continue to have them for years. Mr. Shreves estimated he saved half the price of his tobacco barn by using his own lumber.

So, You Say It In The Mercury

"POOR TIMBER" BUSINESS BOOMS—Old-timers used to say "there's not an inch of good timber" in square mile of Pitt County, North Carolina's old-field softwood trees into profits. The secret is a cooperative process promoted by the North Carolina Department of Conservation and Development which has helped cut up to 20 years instead of five. Small plants like the one above can turn out up to 600 fence posts a day, at 65 cents a post. Lumber, creosote and electric light poles are also produced from timber formerly considered worthless.

Warren Families To Make Improvements

Improvement plans of Warren county farm families enrolled in the Farm and Home Development Program are noted by S. Courts Agent E. R. Rowell in his April report.

The Marion Eaddens family has rearranged the kitchen, added a cabinet and sink and moved a clothes closet for convenience. Plans call for putting in a water system, fencing stock out of the house yard, terracing fencing and rearranging fields, repair of buildings and purchase of machines.

The George Mickelberry's are planning to remodel their home, connect to the electric line, build a new garage, paint the house and barn, buy sows from ponds and out of poor pasture and otherwise improve their farm.

The Rev. Ellis family is planning to repair and paint their house, install electricity, bath and water system, and enlarge the size of their poultry flock to 500.

Ernest Rector is planning to change his farming system from hogs and corn to grass and livestock.

State Jobless Payments Pass Million Mark

Total benefit payments for unemployment under the state program of unemployment insurance went over the million dollar mark for the third consecutive month, a report released by O. B. Hannah, director, Division of Unemployment Insurance, Department of Economic Security, revealed that payments, while decreasing 3 per cent from the April high, totaled $1,262,278.00. The average benefit payment for total unemployment amounted to $15.38 as compared to $15.44 in April.

The report disclosed that unemployment insurance claims under the state program showed an upswing in May after decreasing slightly in April. Initial claims for benefits were up 12 percent over April figures while continued claims were up 16 percent. The volume of both initial and continued claims will approximately three times as great in May 1949 as a year ago.

This situation was attributed in part to unsettled conditions in the Louisville area as a result of labor disputes and temporary layoffs. Elsewhere in the state, the volume of initial claims was substantially the same as in April. In 1948 there was a decrease from April to May of 25 percent in initial claims and 10 percent in continued claims according to the report.

Industries reporting sizable gains —another indication of the situation—showed an increase of 25 percent, with continued claims remaining approximately the same as April. Payments were up 14 percent to a total of $776,600.00.

Chief industry affected, administered through the state's UI Division, was construction followed by federal funds, said Hannah.

L. P. Jones, director, Division of Employment Security, reported a small increase in job openings from April to May, adding slights increases in clerical and service occupations. Referrals to jobs and non-agricultural placements showed a gain during the month, but the level of openings for farm jobs and placement activity was well below that of May 1948. This, Jones said, was the result of sharp declines in the industrial areas of Louisville and Covington.

Although referrals to jobs and placements showed a gain, they decreased over April. The gain was 5% less than that show from April to May of last year. Jones attributed this not only to the layoffs, but also to the record number of 1949 graduates entering the labor market for the first time this spring.

WILLING TO TRY AGAIN

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Crawford, previously married and later divorced, decided Tuesday to try it again. They obtained their marriage license at the office of County Clerk John F. Sugg.

The license application shows: Bruce Crawford, farmer, and Mattie Anderson, both of Nicholas county.

They were remarried by County Judge Walter Shepherd.

Gaydon Mitchell, Caldwell county 4-H'er, had a net return of $80 on a spring litter of 11 pigs, sold at eight weeks old.

It's all over now.

An occasional piece of horn, faded streamer, worn down sports in the center of town and bunch of tired people—that's about all that remains of a crowded Carlisle Saturday, Sunday and Monday of the VFW Homecoming celebration with all the trimmings.

According to most, it there was anyone who didn't have fun, it was his or her own fault. It sure didn't dance, those who did should have entertained you; if you didn't play bingo, the fascinating game should have been refreshing, or if you didn't win a free prize, thinking that you might, should have been stimulating enough.

Mrs. Grimes Cawood won the electric coffee maker and toaster combination that the Cole Hardware company gave away for guessing the number of beans in a jar. Last is, she had no guess at all.

John S. Tapp and Mrs. Raymond Hosse had the prettiest cooked given by Maurice King Appliance Shop. Mrs. Maurice donated two.

In case you're curious, there were 234 gadgets in the jar and 750 signed up to guess the number.

The grabs prize of an electric ironer offered by Arnett Appliance was won by Lucy Barnett. All you had to do was write your name on a piece of paper and put it in the box. If your name was drawn, all of a sudden your home was graced with easy ironing.

All in all it was a big big time. Most everybody broadcasts was in attendance, and then some. Why was it hot? It was so warmish, not even at night, that you could fry two of square dancing. Most of the bootlers looked like they had been turned on them. Incidentally, can't John H. Power square off at a dance? Boy, he's got it, and got in a few good licks.

Dewey Watkins said that he thought "everything was fine." He went on to say that he enjoyed it so much to see so many people stay at home for the big doings. The crowds in the streets at all times were such that it was no better entertainment anywhere.

Mrs. Paul Guthrie thought the display of fine works was outstanding.

Ray Flora—Oh, it was fine. Have you seen Spud Marshall yet?

Mrs. Harrison Burke— Really nice.

Everywhere I talked with thought the VFW's Ladies Auxiliary and merchants made a fine showing. I think they did, myself. I think that it was an event representative of Nicholas county and able to any show in any county, and one to be long remembered by the homefolks and returnees alike.

—EA—

One of the best things I've heard lately was the one Sam Reynolds told on his father. It seems that one afternoon late last week the home rang and "Doc", thinking it was a pinning patient, "drug" himself to answer it. (That was long about the time a lot of people were calling a lot of people to see if anybody had any idea who the letter 'X' was.)

Anyway, in response to the usual hello, a feminine voice asked Dr. Reynolds if he knew who the "main ol' mystery" was.

"You know," came the serson reply, "I never have time to go to those radio contests, but I expect Virginia could tell you."

Yes, I expect she could.

—HA—

Well, this is the "good eatin' time of the year—the time when the gardens are going strong and the tables are filled with home grown vegetables such as green beans, corn on the cob, beets, neither buttered or vinegared peas, green onions, tomatoes, carrots, squash, okra or what have ya.

Personally, this season of the year I wouldn't trade Carlisle and other similar rural communities for all the bright lights you could name. Cause if you think its been hot here, imagine what it must be like in the steaming cities, where you could probably fry an egg on the sidewalk at midnight as easily as you could at noon.

But, getting back to food, a couple of those things I mentioned I haven't developed a taste for, as yet, and that's putting it mildly. Eating okra is like eating mucilage or going to the dentist. Like a lot of people, I have no love for parsnips, either.

Now, corn-on-the-cob—that's another story. I could, and it looks like I did, eat my weight in that stuff.

Think how lucky country people are in the summer time to be able to sit down to a home grown meal of fried chicken, tomatoes, potatoes and beans or peas flavored with a piece of shoulder or ham back, cornbread and country butter, onions and cucumbers in vinegar, and if there's any room left, top it all off with a helping of peach or blackberry cobbler . . . That's eatin' first class. That's all—

Bulldozer Equipped With Grubber Blade Cleans Land Without Disturbing Top Soil

All that Clarence Scott has been able to show for a locust thicket, that was located on his farm on the Locust Grove pike, is a pile of tax receipts. And all these indicate is money paid out. There has been no record of income from the land in this particular boundary of his hillside farm.

Now Scott is no different from any other Nicholas county farmer, who has land that should be cleared and is able to produce only enough to pay taxes, it's hard pressed. When it fails to produce a crop of corn, or a drain upon the rest of the farm, which is even worse.

The trees were located so close together that Scott found it impossible for man to walk through them, although a skilled man still now appears.

Then fall was probably be used to tame at least one crop of small grain which should throw out a nitrogenous soil, left by the leguminous locusts, and then probably will be turned into a permanent pasture.

This has been accomplished by bulldozing the field clean of trees and undergrowth. However, instead of using an ordinary blade upon the bulldozer, a grubber blade was used. This blade, weighing approximately 3,000 pounds, does not disturb the top soil of the land. Instead, it literally combs Mother Earth's hair, taking the tangles out of it, disturbing the soil even less than the ordinary breaking plow would.

Observation in the field while this grubber blade was working showed it uprooting trees with ease, the roots breaking from the ground as were lifted clean of soil. The net result is that the valuable top soil, together with its valuable contents, remains undisturbed.

This equipment, property of the Nicholas County Soil Conservation District, has been leased by Edward J. Sanders to R. P. and W. J. Alexander, who supervise its operation in Nicholas county. The Alexander brothers say that the new grubber blade is the best piece of equipment that has been offered for clearing land with the minimum amount of time expended and at the same time leaving the valuable top soil intact for use by the farmer.

The use of the grubber blade was approved by the Farmers Home Administration, through which Scott purchased his land. A representative of the administration said that the newly cleared field will increase the future productive value of the entire farm.

Farmers And Editors List State's Needs In Survey By Mail

Kentucky's farmers, though traditionally opposed to higher local taxes, believe their counties would approve increased taxes for local needs. The state's newspaper editors, however, feel voters would turn down proposals for such tax increases.

This is one of the findings from a state-wide mail survey conducted by the Kentucky Utilities Company and Kentucky Utilities Company. Survey results were released this week by J. O. Matlick, editor of the KU magazine, and of the July issue of the publication.

The questions dealt with a wide variety of subjects connected with daily life and economic advancement of Kentucky.

Tabulation of survey results on other questions shows:

Better marketing facilities, including better farm-to-market roads, were suggested repeatedly by both farmers and editors as a goal in a development program most helpful to their counties. Also a program aimed at developing local industries and businesses to employ farmers in slack seasons was frequently mentioned.

Farmers think real estate in their counties is "properly assessed for tax purposes," while newspaper editors take an opposite view.

Editors and farmers are in easy agreement on the need for more industry. They suggested a total of 19 types of manufacturing and processing plants to fit requirements of individual counties. The list ranged from candy factories to glass making plants.

More livestock and more dairying were the two most popular answers to the question of what type of agricultural program Kentucky counties needed.

A majority of both groups questioned believe the state's county road system is "not adequate" and practically all think a portion of the State's gasoline tax revenue be allotted to counties for local road building.

Farmers and editors disagreed on the adequacy of their county school systems. Most farmers think their county schools inadequate while most editors consider them adequate.

An overwhelming majority of farmers consider the most useful farm application of electricity to be in the farm home. Water pumping was listed as the second most useful application.

Mr. and Mrs. John Adams of Carlisle have purchased from Raymond King his home on Walnut street located above the postmill at a private price. Possession will be given August 1. The transaction was handled by Dayton and Shroat real estate agency.

NEW METHOD OF CLEARING LAND—Jimmy Ockerman is shown clearing a locust thicket with the new grubber blade. Note disturbing the valuable top soil. Trees are uprooted with ease, the roots free of soil. The equipment shown has been leased by R. P. and W. J. Alexander from the Nicholas Soil Conservation District to clear farmland in the county. (Carlisle Mercury Photo)

NEW TITLE — Blonde Joan Blondell smiles her appreciation at the title of "Mother Was a Freshman," bestowed upon her by Cupid's arrow, as Cary Grant looks on. The "glorified old lady" between Palm Springs, Calif., and Mrs. San Juanito. She will reign for a year as "the girl we would most like to ride into the mountains with."

Farmstead Contest Has 3-Fold Purpose

The farmstead improvement division of the Farm Bureau contest has a three-fold purpose. It adds improvements and conveniences to the property and at the same time increases the monetary value of the farm.

This makes the contest sponsored by Carlisle merchants for the Carlisle Chapter, Future Farmers of America, is a "family affair", G. B. Leonard, faculty adviser of the group says.

The winner will be the boy who has the best number of self-labor hours, the highest other man labor hours and spends the highest amount for materials to improve the property upon which he lives. However, Leonard said, that the improvement can be made to the greatest advantage with capital required. Much depends upon the amount of labor going into the project.

Erection of a new house or barn isn't a part of the contest, Leonard's final score, Leonard said.

Improvements will include new small outbuildings, repair of yard and farm fences, gates, doors, barn doors, new fence and repair around the house, painting, whitewashing, cleaning, repair and reseeding of the lawn, plinting of trees and shrubs around the home, repair or new driveways to farm home or walks around the house.

Nine boys are entered in the contest. They are: Douglas Clay, John Hedges, Charles Farmer, Fred Burnaw, Jimmy Carter, Frank Hughes, Benny Donovan, Bobby Crockett and Earl Finch.

The award in the contest, a $50 Savings Bond, will be made by the Cole Hardware company.

BERRY ADMINISTRATION

On the petition of Harvey H. Berry, J. H. Wilson was appointed administrator of the estate of the late A. E. (Evans) Berry.

Loop Softball Play To Open Friday Night With Double Header

A double header softball program will initiate the local softball season Friday night when the Methodists meet the Christians and Campbell's Grocery takes on the Carlisle Merchants at the recreation park.

The first game is scheduled to get under way at 7:30 p. m.

The Methodists will be out to avenge a one run defeat handed them by the Christians last Thursday night. Bryant started on the mound for the winners while Alverson started for the losers.

On Friday, July 15, it will be the Carlisle Merchants vs Methodists and National Guards vs Christians.

In connection with league play, Jerry Bryant, recreational director, has posted the following rules:

1. Teams must follow schedule.

2. All games must be approved by the recreation director.

3. Unsportsmanlike conduct by players will not be tolerated.

4. All teams limited to 18 players.

5. No player may transfer from one team to another without written release.

6. Any team leading by seven runs at the end of five innings of play will be declared winner.

7. Games to start at 7:30 p. m. on the dot.

Wildcats Will Use Wide Open Offense

Football fans who dote on a wide open offense should find the 1949 University of Kentucky grid aggregation to their liking.

The Wildcats' headmaster, Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant, reports that this year's squad will be a speedy, offense-minded outfit, one that will "throw the ball around."

A four-game intra-squad exhibition series played last spring indicates the accuracy of Bryant's observations. Combined scores of the quartet of Blue-White tilts totaled 167 points, an average of 41.7 per game, and in no case did the squads' combined scoring efforts produce less than 32 points.

The spring series likewise bore out another Bryant contention, that the 1949 Wildcats will be a spirited fighting group. In the final game of the series that ended in a 21-20 verdict for the Whites the squads went all out in efforts to impress their coaches with the result that tempers flared frequently and action often took on the appearance of a minor civil war.

On the positive side of the ledger for the coming season, Bryant believes his team will possess greater all-around speed, more reserve strength, tighter front line defense, better team spirit, and a stronger passing and running game than the dad last year's squad. On the other hand, he expects the kicking to be weaker, and looks with an anxious eye at his untested secondary defenses, undermanned tackle slots, and the tough, 11-game schedule which calls for his athletes to meet six tough opponents on foreign fields.

To counter some of these weaknesses, the Wildcat mentor has several backups up from last year's capable freshman squad who now are ready for their first taste of varsity duty. Among those expected to see considerable action are Quarterback Vita "Babe" Parilli, Guard John Ignarski and Center Doug Moseley.

DRIVER'S LICENSES DUE

State driver's licenses for 1949-50 were placed on sale Saturday morning by Miss Beulah M. Hughes, circuit court clerk. Nicholas county drivers have until July 31 to purchase their permits for the forthcoming year.

Homemakers Slate Kitchen Tour Friday

The Nicholas County Home will visit the kitchens of Mrs. Leonard Alexander of the Ellisville Homemakers Club and Mrs. Allie Clinkenbeard of the Carlisle East Homemakers club beginning at 1 p. m. Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Allie Clinkenbeard have remodeled their home and have made many structural changes besides building a new and very complete kitchen.

Mrs. Alexander's kitchen was visited last year but many did not have the opportunity to see it so she has been planned to visit it again this year.

The tour schedule follows: leave postoffice at 1 p. m. and go to Mrs. Alexander's on the Stoney Creek road, leave Mrs. Alexander's home at 2:30 p. m. and return to Carlisle to Mrs. Clinkenbeard's home on the Moorefield road.

Every homemaker is invited to attend the forthcoming kitchen tour.

Community Chest Elects 49-50 Officers

The directors of the Nicholas County Community Chest appointed four three-year directors to the board and elected officers for the forthcoming year at their annual meeting held Thursday night at the Masonic hall.

The officers elected were: the Rev. J. G. Carr, chairman; Mrs. F. J. Reynolds, vice chairman; Mrs. Thomas C. Johnson, secretary and Henry Clay Caswell, treasurer.

The three-year directors, appointed by the board are: Chairman Carr, Dr. S. F. Hutchings, Mrs. Johnson and Sug Kash.

Upon completion of the organization for the forthcoming year Chairman Carr appointed the following committees:

Finance Committee—Dr. G. T. Cowan, chairman; Henry C. Caswell, Mrs. B. F. Reynolds and William Harper.

Campaign Fund Committee— Charles M. Cox, chairman; Mrs. B. F. Reynolds, and Sug Kash.

Publicity Committee—Sug Kash, chairman; Rev. George Grass, and Mrs. W. G. Irvin.

The finance committee has been directed by Mr. Carr to study the needs of the various agencies and set up a budget for the forthcoming drive which will be held in October. The finance committee is expected to have its work completed by August 1.

Medical Student Joins County Health Office

Dr. E. F. Hall, medical student at the University of Louisville has joined the Nicholas County Health department as an addition to its personnel for the summer months, Dr. B. F. Reynolds, health officer, today announced.

Dr. Hall, who was placed in the health department through the courtesy of Dr. Bruce Underwood, will assist Dr. Reynolds in county health work.

He will be available at the health office each week on Tuesday and Wednesday during July and August. With the assistance of Mrs. R. P. Alexander, county health nurse, he is offering his services on these days for the examination of pre-school children. The preschool examination is a Board of Education program whereby all children entering school for the first time are to have a physical examination.

The health department is happy to offer its facilities in conjunction with the school board on this program, Dr. Reynolds said.

Britain's war with France in 1695 was partly paid for by a tax on bachelors.

Homecoming, July Fourth Celebration Attract Hundreds Former Residents

Nicholas county's first homecoming and Fourth of July celebration, sponsored by Lloyd-George Post No. 8666, Veterans of Foreign Wars, which attracted hundreds of former Nicholas county residents from practically every city in Kentucky as well as those from the neighboring states of Ohio and Indiana, also brought folks home from Michigan and as far away as California.

Indications are that the local veterans' organization will try to make the celebration an annual event. All the attractions billed with the exception of the midway, complete with merry-go-round, ferris wheel and kiddy ride, were present for the entertainment of the homecoming crowd.

Homecomers enjoyed three days of festivities. A dance in the public square opened the program Saturday. Kentucky's governor, Earle C. Clements, appeared at the community sing Sunday afternoon and after completing his address, stayed to listen to a sermon presented by the Rev. J. J. Whitehouse and to join in singing of the old familiar songs.

Following the formal program Governor Clements mingled for a time with the crowd, greeting former citizens and renewing his Nicholas county acquaintances.

Another attraction on Monday night, together with a fireworks display brought to a close a three-day long celebration.

Consensus of opinion was that the celebration at last night Nicholas countians at home for the holiday as well as many former residents of former days. The celebration marked the city's first attempt to observe the holiday and present a planned program in several years.

Observers said that the local VFW had provided a good, entertaining show and expressed hope that the event would become an annual affair, improving with each passing year.

Four Local Residents Injured In Accidents

At least four Nicholas county residents sustained injuries in accidents this week. The injured were:

Cliffeles Shea of the Maysville road sustained painful injuries Saturday morning while he was chopping wood. He was brought to Johnson Memorial hospital by C. O. Rafferty where six stitches were taken by a local physician to close a wound in his right arm.

Mrs. W. H. Baker, Lower Jacks town road, painfully injured her finger Friday while repairing a fence.. The tip of her finger was mashed to a pulp and probably will have to be removed.

Miss Dula Ashley sustained a badly sprained arm Wednesday afternoon when she fell at the home of Ben H. Humphrey Sr., just west of Carlisle. She was brought to the Johnson Memorial hospital for examination.

Charles Bowe, Barterville, sustained a fracture of his left leg Wednesday afternoon, June 30, when he fell from his horse while riding near home. Neighbors found him lying on the ground shortly after the accident. He was treated at Johnson Memorial hospital and taken to St. Joseph hospital, Lexington.

Occupational, Vending Machine Licenses Due

The Kentucky Department of Revenue calls attention to occupational and vending machine licenses due July 1.

The fees on occupational licenses are as follows: Billard or pool hall or bowling alley, $30 for first table or alley, $5 for each additional; cigarette wholesaler $25, ice cream $5, restaurant $10, soft drink $5, soft drink and ice cream $10, theatre 20 cents per seat, minimum $10, tobacco products retailer $10. Licenses are obtainable from County Court Clerk's office in which business is operated.

Religious, charitable and educational institutions are exempted only when the proceeds are used for religious, educational and charitable purposes.

The vending machines the fee is $10 per year on machines taking 5c to 50c; on machines taking 10c or more the fee is $15. The owner, lessee, operator and agent are jointly liable for procuring the license. Failure to secure license and pay fee at required time carries a 20 per cent penalty and interest at 12 per cent per month. Licenses may be secured from the Department of Revenue at Frankfort or any field office.

Vending machine licenses at present apply only to amusement devices and music boxes as the injunction granted last year is still in effect. This injunction prohibited the Department from collecting the fee from others selling merchandise through the use of coin vending machines.

Revenue Department Requires Publication Of Amusement Permit

Tickets, posters and other advertising for any carnival for events subject to Kentucky's amusement tax must now show the Department of Revenue permit number, according to a regulation just announced.

David K. Walker, director of the Division of Excises, said the regulation is aimed at aiding the department to collect the amusement tax due the state.

There has been little trouble with theaters, regular shows and the like. But many itinerant and special amusements, playing "one night stands", have presented a problem to the department's limited collection personnel. Obtaining a permit carries with it an arrangement to pay the taxes. By having every tax-subject amusement enterprise show its permit number, collection will be made fair to all, Walker said.

Galbraith Gelding Tied

"Allen's Honey Boy" owned by Stanley Galbraith and ridden by Fred Kirby captured second place honors and $15 prize money in the Walking stallion, mare or gelding class at the Fleminghurst horse show Saturday night.

"Rainbow Girl", owned and ridden by J. M. Finch, Maysleick, tied first place and top money of $20.

This was "Honey Boy's" initial appearance in a show ring.

Evidence Lacking In Ambushing Case; Charges Are Dismissed

James Hopkins, 20, Harrison county, charged with shooting with the intent to kill in connection with an ambush, was released for lack of evidence in the case at preliminary hearing held June 30 before County Judge Walter Shepherd.

Incendary Evidence Found In Pasture Fire

Incendiary evidence was found in a pasture adjacent to the home of W. E. Piper just west of the Carlisle city limits, following a grass fire early Wednesday afternoon.

The blaze was discovered by Walter Bell who reported it to Mr. Piper. It was several minutes before the fire was brought under control by Mr. Piper and Clyde Howard. Evidence that the fire had been set was found. Burned patches at several places in the field were found along with burned matches.

Talmadge Buck, who works for Mr. Piper, said he saw several youngsters leaving the vicinity of the pasture shortly before the blaze was discovered. Their description has been reported to the sheriff's office.

Council Session Brief

Routine business, including reports of the officers and reading of accounts, occupied most of the brief July session of Carlisle's city council Tuesday night.

Fines collected during the month of June totaled $56, a report filed with council by Police Judge Hershy Myers showed. Parking meter collections for the month totaled $334.17.

Council issued a building permit to Mrs. C. V. Kash for repair to the porch of her residence on Elm street.

Council also instructed City Attorney Charles M. Cox to prepare a notice instructing property owners to cut their weeds. The notice will appear in a subsequent issue of The Mercury.

Mayor W. C. Taybert also referred a proposal to purchase a jackhammer and the installation of a waterline along the Upper Jacks town road to the street committee for its investigation.
