Army Raises Draft
Call To 100,000
The Army has announced its draft regulation for 20,000 to 100,000 men in 1951. It will depend on the situation as to how many men each state would supply. Heretofore it has been 20,000 to 50,000 men in each state. It would be up to each state, however, to announce what its quota is.
The idea, the Army said, is to bring the armed services to their authorized strength of 1,000,000 men in 1951. It is necessary to obtain large numbers of men from the Selective Service system during the months of September and October. No change was made in the draft age, those between 17 and 21 years of age. The draft age will be 18 years of age. At present, the policy is to take those who are 17 or 21 years of age.
