by many as the scene of many baptizings following revivals.

We can see yet the still water—the old tree overshadowing the stream—the large crowd of people —the sacredness of it all.

Over the hill from this Ford stood the Wilson school. Somerset Creek ran just below the road. An old water gap spanned the creek near this place. Across the creek was the "Uncle George Wilson Farm". Everyone called him "Uncle George" and his wife "Aunt Deb" because they were friendly folks everyone liked. "Uncle Jess" Wilson's place joined the school grounds. We will always remember these two dear old couples.

Perhaps we have said enough, but to think of Somerset Creek sends us tumbling down memory lane—Fishing, skating, wading, crossing where the streams was swollen and many other things—so if we deviate from the road to the Wilson school it is only natural. We loved this wayside school—and some day we are going to give a more specific account of some of the boys and girls who left there to travel the highway of life—with the training possible at that time.

Some very high minded teachers came to this secluded place and gave their time and talent for very little remuneration as far as money was concerned. But the golden things they taught toward character building, honesty and principle to the boys and girls who were plastic in their hands were after all, the greatest reward of the teachers left on the sand of time

325 Fields In County Tested By Soil Lab

Three hundred twenty-five fields were soil tested last year and the number of samples completed this season may be piped, W. T. Straw, county agent, said. Soil has been too wet to take samples for about two months and persons interested in having soil analyzed should plan to take their samples just as soon as the weather will permit.

It is very important that the soil samples be taken carefully, dried, and carefully mixed before it is brought to the office of the county agent. It will be necessary to delay the testing of any samples that are brought in in a wet condition. Soil must be dry to be tested and insufficient space is available for drying soil at the office or in the laboratory.

Farm Bureau and Fiscal Court Help Set Up Laboratory

Through the foresight and interest of the County Soils and Crops Committee, the idea of setting up a soil testing laboratory was established.

A County Soil Testing Association was organized to set up and manage the work. Having no funds, the association presented their ambition to the county Farm Bureau and the Fiscal Court. The Fiscal Court agreed to make a basement room available in the courthouse for the laboratory. The court repaired the room, laid a concrete floor, and provided for the County Farm Bureau donated $300.00 for equipment, light fixtures and plumbing. Without this support, the soil laboratory would would never have been.

The directors of the Soil Association gave valuable help in setting up the laboratory. The directors for this year are: J. James Williams, president; B. C. Clark, vice-president; George R. Carter, secretary; Hubert Ashby, Orbra Rose, Howard Allison, Jr., Howard Sidlo, and Sam Smith.

Soil Testing Service is Available

Farmers who want soil tested should prepare their samples and take them to the office of the county agent in the post office building. A history of the field is given which will include what crops have been grown during the past five years and whether lime, phosphate, fertilizers, manure, or tobacco stalks have been used. This information is necessary in establishing the nitrogen supply of the soil. After the soil has been tested, a written report is mailed to the person supplying samples. A charge of 50 cents is charged for running the sample, to replenish broken equipment and testing chemicals. Soil samples should not be taken to the soil laboratory at the courthouse because no one is there to receive them.

Directions for Taking Samples

The testing of soil is not accurate unless samples are taken carefully. Areas different in soil characteristics or productivity should have separate tests.

Youths Take Over City And County Offices Today As Oldsters Vacate

You'd better watch your "p's and q's" because today, Thursday, is Boy Scout Day in Carlisle, being held in connection with the 40th annual observance of "Boy Scouts of America Week," February 6-12.

City and county officials are vacating their offices for the day in favor of the Scouts, who assure residents that "law and order will be well in hand."

Running the affairs of the city in place of W. C. Talbert is "Mayor" Everett Earl Plunstiel, ably supported by M. H. Ruddell, Chief of Police and his three deputies, William Berry, Joe Blount and Harold Watson.

The office of city attorney has a new face in the person of Billy VanlandingIham. Billy is quite capably handling the duties of the water works superintendent assisted by James Woodard and Charles Shrout.

In the courthouse Billy Joe Morrison is tackling the duties of county Judge, giving Spencer Taylor a "breather." Sheriff Gary Flora and his deputies, Kimball Booth and Ronnie King, will turn over to Jailers Bobby McFarland, Billy Burris and Wayne Berry, any person obstructing justice today.

John and Wilhelmina are enjoying a much needed vacation as Brooks Pirman and Donnie Joe Dampier don the duties in the county clerks office.

Billy Blake and Fred Hammonds are learning the tricks of the tax commissioner trade, while Jimmy Shepherd, following in the the political footsteps of his daddy, and James Beckett are holding forth in the office of the circuit clerk. James Hardin and Jackie Shepherd are performing as county attorneys.

Doubtlessly, weddings, mock trials and various arrests will take place today, as the younger generation really takes over the town.
