IN LOVING MEMORY

Of Joseph W. Mattox, who passed away Nov. 7, 1949.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could see
Our dear Dad as he used to be?
Wouldn't it be wonderful to see
That smile
And have him back for a little while?
Could we be strong for waiting him so
When the angels want him too, we know?
Could we be seeing no more
Tomorrow
And all the things he used to do?

VOLUME LXXXIII ESTABLISHED 1867 CARLISLE, KY., FEBRUARY 23, 1950 PRICE FIVE CENTS NUMBER 8

Here Abouts - - -

- - - with Emily Asbury

New York—Feb. 20, 1950 (Lower room—Sorry that about twenty thousand times and now we get New York City pretty well sized-up. New York—the city of banged-up fenders taxi cabs and lost souls with about as much individualism in their faces as a drop of rain has after falling into Licking river.

At this point, a quiet, sober little town in Nicholas County, Kentucky, seems pretty far removed from the largest city in the world—the mass of mess of which we've increased the population by three upon our arrival last Friday afternoon. Mrs. Carlos Rollins, Bill Fish, Hallam Judd and I decided to make the big trip and from almost the first thought it's a duplication of everything you've ever read about N. Y., it's still good to come and see for yourself—that's sure.

We left Judd's country Thursday noon and made it to the infamous Pennsylvania hill that kept fighting snow flurries! You know, California climate conditioned all the way. I have a new name for that hairpin—it's a pike," because I have never in all my life seen as many trailer trucks!

Pennsylvania was pretty interesting to us, especially the small villages and surrounding country-side. They are the people that don't believe in progress. Their hopes are seconded to their barns, which are the largest and stated as most of our churches—they don't have any. And all built on rock foundations and as neat as pins.

HA

We arrived in what reminded me of a miniature Chicago late afternoon of cars—an endless line of speedsters, each one driving at a fast clip, but no one in a hurry getting hit.

Honestly, you can't imagine how fast people drive, until you've been here. We were driving home from down in Manhattan Island last night and I made the wrong turn off Fifth Avenue (Easter Parade Street) and found myself in Central Park. We only have spent 20 minutes driving around in circles because I was too afraid to stick my hand out to signal a turn, for fear of losing a clean cap to an oncoming car. Finally, we pulled in behind a series and got out.

I-A—

Having been here only a couple of days I've seen more of this place but the ones I've "taken in" have been quite thrilling, for example, John Irvin and I, representing Carlisle, attended a Harvard jam session at Nicola's in Greenwich Village, followed by a CBS Gotham broadcast of Stars in Show Business, featuring Clifton Fadiman, Ben Hecht and Deems Taylor, rendering numbers that made them the top performers in show business. Fatty Goodman and Pearl Bailey appeared as guests of hon
