Battle For Fish Hatchery Ends

An all-night battle for a new Federal Fish Hatchery in Kentucky was ended last week when the House of Representatives gave unanimous approval to a bill creating such a hatchery after it had previously been passed by the Senate. The bill is now on the desk of President Truman who is expected to sign it.

When enacted into law the bill will provide $275,000 for the construction of the 50 one-acre ponds in which it is estimated 10,000,000 fish may be raised each year. The site for the hatchery has not yet been selected, but the Division of Game and Fish is seeking suitable spots throughout the state. Those likely locations will be referred to the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service which will operate the hatchery and give final approval on any location. Money for construction work will not become available until July 1, 1951, but it is hoped to have a site selected by that time so the work may be started immediately.

Earl Wallace, Director of the Division, points out that a tract of from 100 to 125 acres will be required with at least 75 acres lying almost level. Necessary also will be an adequate supply of running water, even in the dry season.

Mr. Wallace stated that while the hatchery will be under the supervision of the federal government, the distribution of the fish will be left up to the Division of Game and Fish. In this respect the Division plans to step up its Farm Pond Fish Program, under which thousands of fish have been renovated and stocked without cost to the pond owner. Stress will be encouraged with the ultimate hope of developing facilities to every community in Kentucky. An idea into the Farm Pond expansion program may be gleaned from the fact that during 1950 it is estimated that four million fish will have been stocked by the Division. With more than a double that number available it is hoped to increase the program accordingly. Mr. Wallace commented:

Credit for enactment of the bill should go to the entire delegation at Washington, he declared, but pointed out that Senator Virgil Chapman, who shaped the bill, guided it through the Senate with the help of Senator Garrett Withers and others.

In the House the ayes were taken over by Congressman Tom Underwood, who, with the help of other Kentucky Congressmen, steered it to a successful end in the House. Mr. Wallace said. Also instrumental in the Commissioner of Agriculture Harry Wallace who, by his influence for its approval due to the fact that enactment would benefit greatly state farmers, and Gov. Earle Clements, who also exerted considerable effort in behalf of the bill.

NOTHING ILLEGAL IN CITIES CONSTRUCTING FACTORY BUILDINGS

The Court of Appeals sees nothing illegal in a municipality building a factory to draw industry and thus provide employment.

The court's ruling last Friday enables Danville to proceed with plans to issue $300,000 in revenue bonds in order to have a shoe manufacturing company expand its plant there.

The 1949 legislative act upon which the city's program is based authorizes city legislative bodies to issue bonds to relieve unemployment, help rehabilitate veterans and encourage industry.

The proposed bond issue is payable in 25 years, or earlier as required by the state. The city expects the rent the company pays will enable it to meet the bonds as they become due.

The Danville Chamber of Commerce acquired 15 acres outside Danville. The city bought it 1-3 acres of that tract for the factory.

The proposal was challenged by E. P. Faulconer, a taxpayer. He argued that the lease the city could negotiate with the shoe company for the factory would amount to giving a 25-year franchise. He contended this would violate the constitutional 20-year limit.

Counsel for the company contended it was not a franchise.

The Court of Appeals affirmed Boyle circuit court's approval of the bond issue.

Chapman Sponsors Bill To Increase Support For Disabled Veterans

Washington, D. C.— Senator Virgil M. Chapman of Kentucky is the sponsor of a Senate bill which would increase permanently from $300 to $500 annually the amount of federal aid to state or territorial homes for the support of disabled veterans of the United States.

Senator Chapman said according to his information the cost of maintaining disabled veterans in Veterans Administration homes ranges from $3 per day in the larger homes to $5 per day in the smaller institutions. "The $500 grant to states," he added, "is, therefore, less than half the cost of maintaining a disabled veteran in a Veterans Administration home.
