FARMER SUFFERS INJURY

Adrian George, Moorefield Route 1, was brought to the local hospital Saturday morning suffering from a badly sprained back and other injuries received when a team of horses pulling his tobacco sotter shied away.

HOME REPAIR OUTLAYS IN COUNTY TO REACH HUGE TOTAL IN 1950

Nicholas county home owners will spend an estimated $103,000 on repair and modernization of non-farm dwellings during 1950.

Lower wholesale prices for building products and growing stress on the use of quality materials should greatly benefit Kentucky home owners planning repairs this year.

Approximately two of every five homes in this region will be redecorated, either inside or out, during the year, the report showed. Roofs will be repaired or replaced on one of every six, and six of every 100 are slated for carpentry work.

Seven of every 100 homes will have plumbing repaired, bathrooms tiled or showers installed, the report said. Miscellaneous interior repairs will be made in six of every 100 dwellings.

Home repairs will be easier on the 1950 family budget because of a decline of more than five per cent in wholesale costs of building materials, in comparison with prices at the beginning of 1949, the report said. Home owners also will be able to insist on such quality materials as clay tile for repair work, as a result of the present buyers' market, it pointed out.

Expenditures throughout the United States for home repair and modernization this year will total $2,350,000,000 to $2,900,000,000, the report estimated.

BURIAL OF FORMER KENTUCKY EDITOR TO BE IN LEXINGTON

The body of Wesley C. Carter, 41, who died Saturday at Manhasset, N. Y., was brought to Lexington for burial Tuesday. Carter, a native of Campbellsville, was editor of "Linotype News" and director of public relations for the Mergenthaler Linotype Co. At one time he owned and edited the Hardin County Enterprise, Elizabethtown, Ky.

Reclaim Worn-Out Chairs

Ohio county homemakers are reclaiming worn-out chairs in such a way that they again are comfortable and attractive. To date, members of 17 clubs have padded 111 chairs, renovated 55 spring cushions and made 134 slipcovers of pretty floral or plain color fabric, have also padded and recovered 29 stools. A total of 343 women met on 33 days to work together on their pieces of furniture, said Home Agent Dulcie Streeter.

New Health Controls Effected By State Board

Mass blood testing of school children and a new filter paper blood test for babies are the new techniques inaugurated by Dr. Robert Hansen, director of the division of veneral disease control of the State Department of Health, in the drive against congenital syphilis in Kentucky.

Since the majority of congenital syphilis is not detected until the child is past infancy, Dr. Hansen has begun mass blood testing in public and private schools and orphanages, through arrangements of the State Department of Health and the county health units.

The filter paper blood test is a simple, easy-to-obtain test that has been developed by the U. S. Public Health Service.

Out of 27,287 cases of syphilis reported in Kentucky the past five years, 973 have been cases of congenital syphilis—the type that is passed on to innocent babies by their infected mothers.

"This figure represents only an estimated one-third of the cases of congenital syphilis in Kentucky. Unfortunately, too many cases are discovered too unexpected," said Dr. Hansen.

Since penicillin appeared on the scene in 1945, the discovery and cure of early cases of syphilis has set those statistics on the decline, but no comparable decline has been shown in congenital syphilis.

This situation has alarmed national and state public health authorities and has sent Dr. Hansen on the trail of congenital syphilis in Kentucky.

"The cruelest and saddest aspect of syphilis concerns the babies who are born with the disease," Dr. Hansen said. "The disease is transmitted from the infected mother to the unborn child sometime after the fifth month of pregnancy.

"Treatment when started before the eighth month prevents the transmission of syphilis from the mother in at least nine out of ten cases. If the infected expectant mother receives no treatment, the child stands only about one chance in eight of being born healthy," he emphasized.

"When no treatment is given the expectant mother, the child is often born dead, usually prematurely. If born alive, the infant may die shortly after birth," Dr. Hansen added.

Children found with congenital syphilis may obtain treatment from their family physicians or the Kentucky Rapid Treatment Center in Louisville. When infected children fail to get treatment, the disease often strikes them in their teens or in adult life with blindness, deformity, insanity, heart disease or crippling paralysis.

ICHS WINS, 5-2

The Nicholas County nine, with Virgil Frymun on the mound, defeated the Lizzie Rock All-Stars 5-2, at Little Rock Friday night.

The team leaves still play a return game here in the near future.

Improved Cabinets Ease Kitchen Work

When the homemakers of Henry county studied kitchen storage, Mrs. Reuben Yount of the Pleasureville community realized how much easier her work would be if she had well-planned cabinets. Therefore, she set about to make them. Using plywood, she made large base cabinets on either side of the sink with storage space above. Drawers were partitioned for silver, and shelves planned to care for certain dishes and equipment. Still another cabinet was planned as a baking unit, equipped with sifting flour bin and pull-out biscuit board.

Mrs. Yount says inside cabinets in the home of her mother-in-law, this time busting them the depth of a chimney. They provided storage space at the same time they improved the appearance of the room.

This done, Mrs. Yount took her mind to the newly added kitchen of her local church. There she built storage cabinets to take care of dishes to feed 50 people.

Mother of five children and president of the Bethlehem Homemakers Club, Mrs. Yount says she has learned to use hammer and nails, saw, plane and brother auger and pesters. Two years ago she drew the plans for their six-room farm house, then helped her husband build it. Hanging wallpaper and finishing floors and woodwork were her job, too. Later she expects were the wiring of kerosene lamps and the making of slipcovers for a davenport and chair.

Goodwill Renews Plea To State

A renewed plea for discarded clothing was issued yesterday by Roger French, Executive Director of the Goodwill Industries of Kentucky.

Speaking in behalf of the more than one hundred handicapped employees employed at Goodwill, Mr. French stated that materials are badly needed to offset the summer slump and forestall a possible layoff.

"Goodwill is now accepting bundles of discarded clothing shipped in express collect," he went on to say.

The discarded materials sent unto the plant are sorted and graded according to quality and sent to their respective departments. In the renovation of these materials the handicapped men and women in Goodwill learn such trades as clothing repair, shoe repair, cabinet making, painting, dry cleaning and other work involved in the industry.

Once the clothing has passed inspection it is priced and placed on the Goodwill stores where it is sold at minimum prices.

Mr. French said "all packages should be addressed to: Goodwill Industries Of Kentucky, 214 South 4th Street, Louisville, Kentucky."

Electric Lines Extended

Twenty-four families living along four miles on Hances Creek in Bell county are at long last getting electricity extended to their community. While this does not complete the rural electrification program in Bell county, County Agent Hubert W. Davis says it is encouraging to other sparsely populated areas still in need of power lines.

In Pike county, work has begun toward the goal of planting 100,000 seedling trees in 1951 on eroded hillsides.

Fifty-six Calloway farmer are enrolled in the green pastures program.

NEWS in the WORD of RELIGION By W.W. REID

"The United States should seek out and explore ways to 'break the present deadlock over the control of atomic energy,' says the Friends (Quakers) Committee on National Legislation. "The present bomb is not a police weapon. The goal should be the complete outlawry of the atom bomb and weapons of mass destruction, and the utilization of atomic energy for peaceful and creative purposes."

Bishop R. R. Wright, Jr., of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, speaking to a convention of Negro Baptists in Atlanta, Ga., urged the creation of a Department of Religion in the cabinet "to consolidate our economic, social and political and to direct national and world psychology." He declared, in part, that "the world is now intellectually and morally sick" and needs specialize in finding and promoting the ways of peace"; and that the leaders of the post-war world must establish the Department and help build a lasting warlike trend among the nations.

According to the Rev. Charles Sowder, of Church World Service, Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches in the United States as of May 1950) given 30,500 "assurances" for the care of displaced persons from Europe being given in the United States. The total number of arrivals, under the direction of the Service, has been about 15,000, and they are now coming at the rate of about 2,500 per month.

Miss Margaret Hills, librarian of the American Bible Society, says that a translation of the Holy Bible is available in 1118 languages and dialects. Among these are: India (Marmal, Afridi (Pushtu), Iberian). Peru (Peru), Papantziatza (Australia), Weregwa (Dahomia), and Zapotec (Mexico). First translations have been published in 1949 in Faroe (Scotland), and Shona (Rhodesia).

There are twelve Christian colleges, supported in part by American funds given through missionary agencies, now located within the areas of China, Communist control. According to Dr. Robert J. McMillan, executive secretary of the United Board for Christian Colleges in China, during the past year at these institutions "attendance at worship services has increased, the percentage of students electing religion courses is larger than ever before, and Christian programs are continuing."

The Rev. J. George Butler, pastor of South Park Methodist Church, Hartford, Conn., took a "talent dollar" from the church treasury and invested it in a home-made ice cream business. Mr. Butler lets the orders accumulate and then takes an afternoon off to fill them. He uses his own carefully-guarded recipe and an old-fashioned hand freezer with a motor attached. All profits go to the church.

Care Needed In Freezing Foods

If foods frozen in a deep-freeze unit have an off-flavor, it is due in all probability to incorrect preparation of the food, poor wrapping, or the food's not being frozen quickly enough. So said Mrs. Pearl Haak, specialist in food preservation at the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky.

BLANCHING: Vegetables must be blanched in boiling water to prevent off-flavor, off-color and poor texture, and to protect the food value. Use at the rate of a gallon of boiling water to a pint of vegetables, not more than two quarts being blanched at one time. After blanching the allotted time, cool the food quickly in ice water.

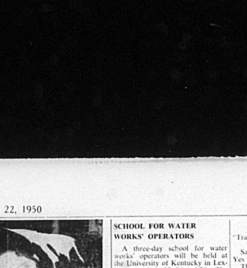
PACKAGING: It is important to use the best packaging material available. Taken care of, much of it can be used again. Boxes should be waxed on the out side and have tight-fitting covers. Other approved containers are plastic or aluminum bones, tin cans, glass jars and moisture-va-por-proof cellophane bags with bones. For wrapping, there is double paper, waxed-lined paper, locker aluminum foil and cellophane with stockinette. The drugstore wrap' is recommended in order to exclude air. Mrs. Haak warned against using icecream carton and lightweight aluminum foil.

FREEZING: For good qualities frozen food, freezing should be done at a temperature from zero to 10 degrees below zero. Some home deep-freeze units do not register below zero, and therefore should be used only for storing the specialist said. In that case, foods should be quick-frozen at a central locker plant.

"Housewives should read carefully the instructions that came with their deep-freezers to learn the amount of food that can be put in at one time without raising the temperature unduly," said Mrs. Haak.

A coating of ice around the outside of packages indicates a lack of constant temperature.

Free copies of Circular 398, "Storing Foods in Freezer Lockers," may be had from home demonstration agents, or from the college at Lexington.



GOVERNOR TAKES SMIRKING CONTEST—Governor Earle C. Clements shows his pulling power with a non-voter at a milking contest held in Louisville during the Kentucky Derby festivities. The Governor ran second with 4-8 pounds of milk in three minutes. Winner was State Agriculture Commissioner Harry F. Walters, with an impressive 8.6 pounds.

SCHOOL FOR WATER WORKS' OPERATORS

A three-day school for water works' operators will be held at the University of Kentucky in Lexington on June 27, 28 and 29. The school, which is sponsored by the Division of Sanitary Engineering of the State Department of Health, has as its purpose the training of operators in the fundamental science of water treatment.

THE GARDEN

TIMELY TOPICS

By John S. Gardner,
Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics

The time is here to plan vegetables to store or freeze for next winter. The next four or five plantings of beans and sweet corn should be dependable home freezers, to make sure surpluses.

Golden Cross Bantam is particularly good, as its only fault, that of losing sweetness quickly, is now an advantage, enabling wholesale harvest and processing. Flagship and Ioana are good sorts, and some prefer them because the ears are larger than Golden Cross ears.

The most dependable beans are those that do well in hot and dry weather. U. S. Refugee No. 5 (Evans) and Logan bear well in any weather. The former is a hybrid improvement on the original Refugee 1000 to one, and has better color and is less inclined to shockiness. Logan is a hybrid specially bred to withstand southern summer weather.

Neither of these is white-seeded, as many persons prefer for canning, but they may use White Seeded Half-runner, whose seed catalog name is Ranger.

Rutgers tomatoes for late summer may be started now, 3 or 4 seeds in a hill where plants are to stand, later thinned to one. This method escapes transplanting in hot dry weather.

Cabbage for late summer and for winter storing may be had by starting seed of Wisconsin All-Seasons the same way as for tomatoes, above. This variety can bear larger times than some of the others, and it is resistant to the yellows disease, with which so many home gardens are infected. In a fair season, heads of 5 to 6 pounds are made, a good weight for the average family. It is also said to avoid the monotony of having to consume as much cabbage as Late Flat Dutch used to make, before the Wisconsin strains were growing late cabbage a lost art.

To Grow Strawberries

Four farmers in Menifee county have started a small-scale strawberry business by setting an acre each of the Tennessee Beauty variety. One of the men, Marion Carter, who has been growing berries, considers them as good as tobacco in financial returns. Other growers are Lona Brown, Dan Doughtery and Donald Copas. County Agent Wallace Coffey has been taking up strawberries among farmers of the county.

Builds Portable Bin

A portable feed bin, built by J. Bascom Judy of Montgomery county, is a low wagon frame, has caused considerable comment and many questions, notes Farm Agent Floyd McDaniel. Mr. Judy built the large bin on a wagon so that he can feed grain to cattle on any pasture, or wherever he chooses. It will hold 4,500 pounds of most types of ground grains. It includes a combination of hoppers so that the ground feed is always accessible and easily measured.

25 KY. CITIES SET SUMMER HALF-HOLIDAYS

Twenty-five Kentucky cities are observing summer half-holidays, a survey conducted by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce showed today.

Nineteen of the cities have set noon at the closing hour, the remaining six closing at one o'clock.

Cities observing half-holidays on Wednesday are: Bardstown, Carrollton, Covington, Guthrie, Hartford, Lexington, Marion, Middlesboro, Morehead, Russellville and Williamsburg.

Thursday half-holidays will be observed by Bardwell, Burkesville, Mount Sterling, Fulton, Lebanon, Mayfield, Mortons Gap, Murray, Owensville, Princeton, Shelbyville, Tompkinsville, Williamstown and Wingo.

Most closings are for the summer months, with regular store hours scheduled to be resumed no later than September, except in the case of Covington. Covington observes a year-round half-holiday on Wednesdays.

Recipe

Spoon Bread

1 cup cornmeal
1½ teaspoon salt
3 cups milk
2 eggs
2 tablespoons butter
2 teaspoons baking powder

To the cornmeal and salt in a saucepan add 1½ cups milk. Stir constantly while cooking to a thick mush, about 5 minutes. Remove from heat and add slightly beaten egg yolks, butter and remaining milk. Add baking powder and mix well. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into cornmeal mixture. Turn mixture into a buttered shallow baking dish. Bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees, until set, for about 45 minutes. Serve hot with butter.

Menu: Roast pork with dressing, broccoli, lima beans, radishes and tomatoes, spoon bread, butter and strawberries with cream.
