Local Man, Wife And Five Children Narrowly Escape When Home Burns

Monday, June 26, 1950—Anchored about 7 o'clock, Sunday morning by falling timbers of their burned home on Morgan street, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Scott and their five children fled in their night clothes a few minutes before the building collapsed. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Twenty members of the rural school of Nicholas county, and the county deputies, examination at the Scott home. Mrs. Scott was rescued by firemen. The fire was extinguished by about 10:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Thursday, June 26, 1950—James L. Dornett, county clerk, told the fire department that the fire started in the kitchen about 7:30 p.m. on Sunday night.

At a Republican national convention at Philadelphia last week, William McKinley was nominated for President and Theodore Roosevelt for vice president.

Our Greatest Holiday

On the Fourth of July, 1776, John Adams, one of our great statesmen, wrote his wife: "I can get to believe that this day will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemorated as the day of our deliverance by solemn acts of worship, public games, sports, games, balls, fireworks, and a day of public thanksgiving of the day of our deliverance . . ."

What Fools Be These Mortals?

Prisons which currently are being constructed at Bourbon and Fayette counties looking a good deal like Edward G. Preacher Jr. Prison from the conviction in the 1948 Bourbon County average American citizen and constitute a slap in the face of Mr. Truman, to whom he has been addressed.

BLACK AND WHITE

Lesson for July 2
A GROCER in Mississippi received a letter from a former customer who had left the city writing a large check. "I have been covered to a travel agent," the letter said, "and I will be coming back to you in a few days." The merchant was naturally pleased to receive such a letter.
