Kentuckians all over the state, and no doubt had a hard time to keep mouths Monday morning when they picked up the Herald or Courier-Journal and found the big deal handed the Wildcats by the NCAA tournament committee that selected South Carolina State to play in the NCAA tournament next week rather than a more logical choice.

There isn't any plausible reason for that pick. Not one! Rupp stood pat on his record: refusing to play high scoring and jittery NCS because he thought the team and coaching of the Cats spelled for itself. And it does.

Rupp's team, not unbeatable, NCS might have defeated UK in the proposed playoff game between the Southern Conference champs for example, beat them in the first round, then the winner in which KS, demoralized them in two return games was enough to come to Mary want to play in basketball.

But if State is no great powerhouse and because no team has been in the Wildcats' class this year, it is hardly feasible that the District 6 selectees could do the Cats any more harm than they've done themselves.

From here however, it would be fun to see Kentucky playing what was the NIT's guilt. But this year's NCAA would have ever thought perhaps to go to other tourneys this month.

Television Antenna Threat To Safety

The television antenna, rapidly becoming a familiar addition to rooftops throughout the county, is a potential threat to safety unless properly located and installed, M. C. Shields, safety director of the Kentucky Utilities Company, points out.

He issued the following suggestions for safe installation after reports from other sections of the country told of several persons being killed or seriously injured while installing television antennas near power lines.

1. Locate antenna and guy wires so that if they fall they cannot come in contact with power circuits.

2. While making the installation keep far enough away from power circuits to avoid any possibility of contact with them.

3. Provide strong enough support to eliminate the chance of the antenna's falling and causing personal injury or property damage.

4. If the antenna must be installed near electric wires see your local K. U. manager or the manager of the power company serving your area. He can help you plan safe installations in locations where electric lines might be involved.

5. Make frequent inspections of antenna. It is subjected to constant vibration from wind and should be checked from time to time to see that it is not in a dangerous condition.

6. Avoid using metal ladders in making installations or doing any other work where there is the possibility of electrical contact.

4-H Boy Sets Record For Corn Production

A 4-H boy the past year pioneered the way to higher corn yields in Kentucky. He was Donald Stout of Jefferson county, winner of the five-acre division of the state corn derby. He made an average yield of 167.7 bushels an acre.

Using land that had been in clover in 1948 and had received four tons of limestone an acre, he grew a closed pedigreed hybrid corn in rows 40 inches wide. Stalks numbered 100 to 112 per 100 feet of row.

About 250 pounds of 6-8-6 fertilizer and 13 loads of manure were spread on each acre. The corn was grown on level upland.

Youthful Ego

The other night 13-year-old Archie Crawford struck up quite a conversation with a certain Mrs at the armory during a VFW Independent basketball game.

After about a half an hour of youthful chit-chat, Archie suddenly became quiet.

Noticing the apparent lull, Mrs. Bell asked what was wrong.

"I just got to thinking: wonder if your husband would mind if I talked to you this way?"

Then the boy would answer "Ah, naw, he wouldn't care. Archie decided. I'm only in the 8th grade."

—HA—

Nostalgic "then"

All I have to do is mention Spring and whamo—I soon want to get back to Nature. Nothing I like better than to get out in the woods and listen to the birds sing and watch the flowers bloom.

I don't recall as well as most folk, country store with its big friendly stove surrounded by cronies, the boys who gathered daily or evening and sometimes on Sunday to eat pretts well remember the days I used to spend with my dear father at Barterville when Uncle Bailey Ritchey ran the commissary.

I used to go to the fair house store a long piece and I'd help him as they'd come in for a stick of barbecued . . . The fair store always had as its share of those passing the time of day and they'd sit by pot-bellied stove the hub of propped up feet and its partially cast about the latest of occasional mutilted tobacco cuttings.

But now the so-called "visiting with your neighbor" places are becoming a thing of the past. In the more populated districts of the country, the corner drug store, the beer parlor, this and a few spots where a stone, a bench and a real log fellow, set-up still atmosphere to business houses. Stanley Goff, Heath Bruce Brothers and Ford, etc. Gene Clinkenbeard, Paul Carr and Curtis Wells Purdue to name a few still sport such stoves during the winter months.

The place where the pot belly will bring to end an era probably, some farmers in its backbone than shown. an era when sweeping out tracked in mud and the based sand was all in a days work.

Back when spending time in a store was about as exciting as spending money.

It's funny how back then people worked harder, seemed to get more real livin' done and still they went in a hurry.

Just thinking

Some of the local grocers have a comparatively new bread problem on their hands.

There's brown a series rolls. All was fine before a year's little better on the top of ten, stick em in the oven and wait a minute or two. Then they're ready to serve pieces.

The story of how such rolls came to be is pretty interesting. Seems a lady was baking yeast rolls one day when she was suddenly called to the hospital. Her rolls weren't done but she cut off the stove anyway, and left.

When she returned later in the day she found they were delicious—

So—Bread companies caught on and a new product was born. Just like that!

Ten Classes Carded For VFW Horse Show

Plans for the biggest horse show ever staged in Carlisle are forming rapidly, according to W. R. Bunting, Jr., chairman of the 1950 show sponsored by the V. F. W.

The event, scheduled for June 6, is the first show on the Central Kentucky Horse Show Association circuit.

Classes Listed

Johnny Ewback, secretary, announced the following rings to be included on this year's card, expected to draw competitors from Ohio, West Virginia and Tennessee as well as Kentucky.

Best bay or grey rider, 13 years and under.

2. Nicholas pleasure riding ring.

Best bay or grey gelding, 15-16 years.

Roadster class.

Lawn Turn-out.

Three-gaited stallions, mares or geldings.

Three-gaited saddlers, mares or geldings.

The appearance of the roadster class, listed for the first time at this Carlisle horse show, will lend additional interest to the program, officials believe.

The biggest crowd pleaser on last year's card is scheduled again with the Nicholas county riders putting on a better than last Word that the Carlisle show purses are an attractive to competitors as those offered by other shows on the CKHSA circuit, is thereby bringing more horses here for the June 6 event, it is enjoyed.

Bunting, VFW committee advertising solicitors are making a complete canvas of the town and county. Merchants and townspeople are urged to give the committee their support to the best interests of the show.

Lodge To Observe Annual Custom At Easter Season

Dougherty Lodge No. 65 F. & A. M. will observe its annual custom of sending home-baked cakes to the Masonic homes during the Easter season.

Mrs. Ann Bryson in charge of the delivery of the cakes will distribute them to the Shrine hospital, Lexington, the Masonic home, Versailland, and the Masonic Widows and Orphans home, Louisville. Cakes will be distributed on a proportionate basis to the number of residents at these respective places.

Any surplus will given to various church homes in the Louisville area.

Members of the other county lodges and non-members anywhere invited to co-operate.

So that you may be notified as to the date one should bring his or your cake or cakes, please leave your pledge with the master of the lodge, one of the wardens or the secretary.

DEADLINE EXTENDED ON BLUE CROSS PLAN

According to a statement issued by Nicholas Faudel Court and signed by County Judge Spencer Taylor, the county will no longer fund the bill for hospital charity cases.

The reason Blue Cross-Blue Shield was asked to come to Nicholas county was to alleviate the yearly drainage on county funds due to indigents hospitalization. Last year approximately $6,000 was spent to accommodate charity cases at the local hospital" said Roger Womack of the new county hospital board.

A complete canvass of the county is underway to enlist persons that have not already affiliated with Blue Cross hospitalization plan. March 24 is the deadline for joining this year. Application cards may be had at The Mercury office and persons who already have cards may leave them here or with Mr. Womack.

Grab early lead

At the outset, it looked as if Carlisle might solve the conquering Augusta zone defense, as they led 7-6 at the end of the quarter and trailed by only one point, 19-18, at halftime.

However, a disasterous third period spelched any hopes as the Bucks watched Augusta tally 10 points while they were able to get but three.

Once again, the inability of the Musketeers to hit foul shots, may have cost them the game. Carlisle was awarded 30 free tosses and of that total they failed to connect on 20, or more than double the winning margin. Had they hit one half the gratis flings the green and white could have matched, point, for point, the total scored registered by Augusta.

Last game

Joe Frank Stephenson, one of five graduating seniors who played their last game for Carlisle, speaker-headed the Musketeer attack with 10 points. Other seniors, Nathan Tarrie" Lesson, Charlie Harper, G. C. Myers and Jim Williams, saw action for the last time as varsity cagers.

Harper, Allison and Tolliver, off their third high scoring form, collected six, five and four points respectively Hardin with three and Cavanaugh and Flora with two apiece, rounded out the scoring.

Al Kennard tabbed 12 for the winning Augusta five, coached by Major W. H. Hanson, formerly with M. M. U.

Harper leads

Combined individual scoring figures for the three tournament games show Harper high with 34, Allison 23, Tollivet 21, Stephenson 20, Myers 14, Hardin 10, Cavanaugh 3, Flora 2, and Booth 1.

Selection And Test For Census Takers

Bailey P. Smith, District Supervisor of the Bureau of the Census in Ashland, Kentucky, has announced tests will be given for all persons interested in positions as census-takers in Carlisle on Saturday, March 18.

The test will be given for applicants in Nicholas county by Mrs. Margaret Simons, Cress Leadingham and Mrs. Ann Bryson so that all persons interested who have filed applications as well as those who have not, be at the Nicholas county courthouse at Carlisle promptly at 9:00 a.m., March 18. Selections for the positions will be made from the applicants making an eligible score on this test.

. . . get in the guard . . . get in the dough---EA

The city of Carlisle may have no "industry for employable males" but thanks to the National Guard Armory unit here, we certainly have a reasonable facsimile therefore.

Want proof? Last year the total payroll to some 40 Nicholas county men, members of the Heavy Weapons Company, 149th Infantry Combat Team (to be exact) amounted to $18,485.70—not a bad figure for drilling once a week.

Members of the NG unit receive anywhere from $2.65 to $6.50 per Monday night. Besides that fact two men, Nathan Young, Jr., and Sam Reynolds are employed full time by the Armory. Since the January 1949—January 1950 $18,485.70 figure has been released, Commander W. R. Buntin, Jr., reports that 52 additional men have joined the ranks, making the number of enlisted men at present 92 and the number of officers four—Commander Buntin, Platoon officer John T. Hamilton, Gunnery officer Ben Pumphrey, Jr., Executive officer, Charles Shouse.

(And if you don't think approximately 100 young males are a goodly number to split that $18,485.00 pot, wait till they all execute in favor of the two-week summer training camp at Ft. Knox, August 6-20 and just notice the number of unescorted females!)

Open Door Policy

To Nicholas countians, the Armory building is more than a drill hall on Monday night. It becomes a recreation headquarters for various age interests. Co-operative personnel have allowed the Community Recreation Council to build its youth center program therein, thus giving teenagers wholesome recreation facilities each Friday night.

66 Percent Sign For 1950 ACP

With approximately six weeks to go in the 1950 Agricultural Conservation Program sign-up campaign, Nicholas county farmers have completed farm plans for carrying out approved practices in the program this year, according to H. S. Vice, chairman of the county PMA Committee.

Mr. Vice pointed out, however, that the number of farmers signed up in the 1950 ACP so far this year is only 71 percent of the number participating in the 1949 program and only 66 percent of the total number of farmers in the county.

Every farmer in the nation is eligible to participate in the ACP to help conserve and build up the soils on which all consumers depend for food and clothing.

Farmers who use the ACP to build better farms are helping to build and to build a stronger agriculture in the nation and helping to provide a better living for all people in the country, Vice said.

Practices included in the program in 1950, agricultural production has been limited to payment more than it was before the program began. In 1949 the percentage of payment used was only 10 percent over the average for the 1935-39 period.

"Farmers who have been carrying out conservation practices under the Agricultural Conservation Program have been helping to make that possible," Vice said.
