Stockholm, Sweden—The Prime Minister of Sweden, Erlander, believes that the Communists' attack on the Marshall Plan are the best proof that the Plan is working.

Said Erlander, "If the Communists oppose it, then it must be good and helpful."

Erlander's opinion is shared by many of the persons in Sweden asked to in Sweden, including other high government officials.

Bureau Director Gunnar Astrom said that although the Marshall Plan is temporary, the effect of the operative agreements brought about by the Marshall Plan will continue indefinitely.

Stockholm and the Swedish people appear to be the most prosperous we have visited with Switzerland a close second. The stores are jammed with commodities of superior quality, and well dressed people. In fact, government officials admit their standard of living is considerably above pre-war levels and describe it as somewhere between the average of England and the United States. Their prosperity is due mainly to the fact that they have not engaged in a war for 126 years, plus being a nation of considerable natural resources.

Sweden's foreign trade is balanced and since they are a great producing nation of industrial and agricultural products, are searching for more markets. They look with favorable interest to greater free trade with Europe and the United States.

Erlander said Sweden did not join the Atlantic Pact because they didn't want to take a step which might cause friction with great world powers. Also he points out, he said, they would be involved in a war in event of hostilities between great powers. They do not believe there will be a third World War, and are convinced that the Communist infiltration during a World War II helped Sweden in maintaining an economic stand, and which makes infiltration impossible.

He said that the Swedes favored the Marshall Plan for other countries and understood our true motives, since they themselves had sent similar assistance on a small scale.

Sweden does not import nearly as much from the United States as the general public assumes. Swedish officials explained that one reason for that was a lack of dollars on the part of countries in the United States. They treat a depression in America. They try to make it clear, however, they do not predict a depression, but simply want to create in a country where their goods will be sent over a period of years. They prefer instead to develop their foreign trade and many countries.

Sweden probably has one of the largest social welfare programs in the world; old age pensions, sickness insurance which is voluntary and unemployment insurance which is compulsory for all of the population.

We came to Sweden from Finland where we encountered a delicate situation because the Finnish people recently a precarious position with Russia. In fact, in a conference among ourselves, we voluntarily agreed not to ask any questions concerning Russia or Communism, since it could prove embarrassing to the Finnish people. The Russians made it plain that we were not welcome in Finland, and a Moscow paper even stated that we were undesirable visitors to Helsinki and were acting as spies for the United States Government.

The Finnish people, however, were most cordial and after a visit to Parliament, the President of Finland, Juho K. Passikivi held a reception in our honor and was extremely friendly. The American Minister, John M. Cabot of Boston, also entertained us.

The Finns have made greater progress in restoring their war damaged buildings than any other country we have visited. Many Finns have fled their homes in the Russian occupied area and the Finnish government has forced land owners to surrender part of their farms to refugees and displaced persons.

The food situation in Europe is perplexing. We have a farm so well as I have on this trip. We have tried to get a true picture of the food situation by visiting restaurants and examining menus and prices along with visits to markets and groceries. The stores and markets are all full of all kinds of food, and the prices of food and meals are very reasonable compared with American standards.

It does not follow that all Europeans are eating well. Many do not have the money to buy food for a well balanced diet and often not enough to prevent hunger. The question of money and employment—not a food shortage.

Belgium Important Outlet For Leaf Tobacco, Says Sen. Virgil Chapman

Senator Virgil M. Chapman of Kentucky has asked Paul G. Hoffman, Administrator of the Economic Cooperation Administration, to permit the Belgian tobacco industry to participate in a Belgian economic mission which has been invited to visit the United States.

Senator Chapman last week wrote to Administrator Hoffman pointing out that the tobacco industry of Belgium, represented by the Federation Belgo-Luxembourgeoise des Industries du Tabac, of which Dr. Joseph F. Van Alphenaar is Director, "is anxious to be represented if such a mission is to visit the United States." Senator Chapman stated that the Federation is composed of both manufacturers and importers, and represents the organized tobacco industry of Belgium. "Those of us who are interested in the tobacco industry of the United States, including growers, warehousemen, dealers and manufacturers, deem it to be of importance to the welfare of that industry that the spokesmen for the Belgian tobacco industry have representation on the projected mission. I will personally, as well practically everyone who is interested in the tobacco industry, welcome a tobacco industry, appreciate the opportunity to meet and greet the desire of the Belgian tobacco industry to participate in the commercial mission," Senator Chapman said.

"Belgium is a very important outlet for leaf tobacco. If a free market for leaf tobacco is also a friendly large markets for cigarettes manufactured in the United States and shipped to Belgium for both local consumption and trans-shipment to other countries of Western Europe.

"It is readily seen that tobacco trade in Belgium is of great importance to the tobacco growers and exporters of the United States. It is worthy of note that, in the year 1949, Belgium was one of the first quarters of 1950 are 41.5 below our exports for the same quarter of 1949.

They're really slaying the fish at Kentucky Lake these days—according to Wm. Jim Hardin about our good luck at snagging quite a few nice crappie last week when he came right back with the fish tale told on Bud Howard some years ago.

Bud, it seems, claims he found such a good fishin' hole that he put seven hooks on one line, threw in the creek only six times and caught 42 fish.

We didn't do quite that well but did manage to add to our supply in the bucket.

People from 47 of the 48 states and parts of Texas must have been there. As large as the Lake is, in one spot not much bigger than a snake's eye, 23 boats with from two to four persons in each boat, were concentrated practically fencing the fish to run the gauntlet to get by.

Everybody was catching his limit of 30 crappie. Four pounds per fish is a fair catch. Plenty of lights and a whole lot of fish in any locality.

Now multiply that by about 200 fishermen slabs, and you'll see what I mean about people really slaying 'em at Kentucky Lake last week.

Attention, "Good Sams"

Mrs. Howard Hovermale brought to our attention the pathetic plight of two elderly colored people, Cliff and Ralph Metcalfe who live on the Masterfield road.

Cliff, who takes care of Ralph, 70, who has been totally blind some 15 years besides being paralyzed, suffered a broken leg about three weeks ago and is not quite unable to care for himself, but can't wait on Ralph.

Cliff, in his middle sixties, has been a good Samaritan most of his life. For 30 years he has cared for invalids in his family, and only recently saved Mrs. Arther John from burning to death by dragging her to safety when the John's son home burned.

Just to even things up, it is somebody's turn to help Cliff out a while he's incapacitated.

Hovermale is the one to see.

Nicholas Group Planning Budget

The Nicholas County Budget Commission is now at work on the county budget for the fiscal year 1950-51.

This is the budget which will control expenditures of the county general fund and road fund for July 1, 1950 until June 30, 1951.

County Judge Spencer Taylor and County Attorney Charles M. Cox are members of the budget commission by virtue of their office. The third member of the local commission, appointed by the fiscal court, is Henry A. Palmer.

The law requires that the county budget commission shall make a detailed investigation of each separate activity of the county for which county funds are to be expended by the fiscal court. The commission estimates funds needed for each purpose and the anticipated revenue. Not less than twenty days before the time for adoption of the budget, the county judge sends two copies to the State Local Finance Officer for his approval as to form and classification.

After approval by the State Local Finance Officer, the proposed budget is submitted to the fiscal court at the time fixed for adopting the county tax levy which must be not later than July 1 each year.

The county budget commission must prepare the proposed budget in the court house and publish it in a local newspaper not less than 10 days before adoption.

Any citizen of the county may appear before or petition the fiscal court on any part of the budget. Because the county budget is so important an element in lo-

Nicholas Men's Group Making Gas Consumers Survey In Carlisle

The Nicholas Business Men's Association has accepted 600 mimeograph forms given them by Mayor W. C. Talbert to enable them to determine how many consumers want natural gas for space heating, water heating, cooking and other purposes. The group headed by Robert Fisher, president voted several weeks ago to assist the city in a gas survey.

At the May 1 meeting of the city council numerous questions were asked concerning gas applications and costs. These questions were answered by J. W. Chandler, Louisville bond company representative, in a letter dated May 2.

"A minimum rate to be charged will be $2 per month, cost to convert a coal furnace is approximately $125 installed. A new furnace can be installed for $300 up of sufficient size to heat a 6 to 8 room house. A new system of gas appliances can be installed in a house for about $100. This would include a floor furnace large enough to heat 4 to 5 rooms at an installed cost of $60 to $70. Additional small gas heaters could be placed in several other rooms, at a cost of $7.50. A radiant heat burner would cost $15 to $20 for use in a living room. By following this plan an adequate heating system could be installed that would be more flexible than a coal burning plant."

Agreements, now circulated by the Business Men's Association state that whenever 600 prospective customers have signed similar agreements, these agreements will become binding, thus assuring the feasibility of the project and permitting the city to proceed with installation of a natural gas service.

Grade "A" Milk Market By August

According to interest shown by Nicholas farmers at a meeting held Monday night, a Grade A milk route is expected to be under way by mid-August, Charles Sears, representative of the Kentucky-Indiana & Ohio Milk Producers Association of Cincinnati said. "As soon as a route is established in Nicholas County milk producers will be guaranteed a permanent market for Grade A Milk," Mills will be picked up by truck daily.

Gus Coors of the Coors Bros. Dairy Co., Cincinnati, said that their company is expanding and needs more Grade A milk.

In order to qualify to sell Grade A milk barn improvements will be necessary. A relatively new construction plan has been approved which will decrease the cost of meeting requirements.

The new method is the construction of a lean-to addition to the present barn. To meet Grade A requirements farmers must have concrete stables or a milking shed with concrete floor, a 12x12' milk house to house an electric cooler, water heater, washing vats and can racks.

It is estimated that farmers can meet the requirements for selling Grade A milk as fast as equipment is concerned at a cost of $700 to $1500, depending upon how fancy a job is desired. Robert Jones of Myers reported that his construction cost about $350.00.
