Short Evening Dress in Style

Accompanying Jackets and Overskirts Permit Costume Switches

This short evening gown is a strapless satin sheath with a separate overskirt of lace. The sheath is cuffed in lace and the dress itself is in heavy cocoa-brown satin.

NEW YORK—The short evening dress, a favorite this season and for some seasons past, stays in fashion because it is so well-suited to American living.

There are many evenings when the average woman does not want to "dress" in the sense of putting on a full-skirted evening gown and a formal wrap. The short evening dress is, then, the perfect answer to the small evening and to some large evenings, too.

The short evening gown, is, very often, a sheath with an accompanying jacket or overskirt which permits costume switches. In one such design, a strapless short evening dress becomes a dinner dress with the addition of a long-sleeved lace jacket. The dress, in carbon blue imported Chantilly lace over satin, has a slim-hipped skirt which flares away at the knee.

In another instance, one of this season's short evening dresses has a separate overskirt made of yards of imported lace. The dress itself is heavy cocoa-brown satin, a strapless slim sheath cuffed with lace.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Adam and Fallen Man" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Christian Science churches throughout the world on Sunday, November 5.

The Golden Text is: "O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God; for thou hast fallen by thine iniquity." (Hos. 14: 1).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God." (Rom. 8: 16).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "When speaking of God's children, not the children of men, Jesus said, 'The Kingdom of God is within you;' that is, Truth and Love reign in the real man, showing that man in God's image is unfallen and eternal." (P. 476).

Cows Get Kick Out Of Milking Parlor

Cows on the farm of Earl Friend of Estill county like the new $1,000 milking parlor built for them. Just before the parlor was completed, they produced a gross income of $65 for a two-week-period. Immediately after being turned into the new building, the income from the same cows for two weeks was $95. County Agent Fred Brockman has it figured that at that rate, the extra profit will pay for the milking parlor in 17 months.

E. T. Nickell of the same county built a milking parlor at a cost of $1,500. This included drilling a well and installing running water in his home. Mr. Nickell, who changed from beef to dairy cattle in the spring, is convinced that dairying will pay at least three times more than beef production.

Tries New Clover

Briscoe Clayton of Barren county threshed a seed crop from a native strain of clover called Redford. Farmers have been watching this clover for several years, according to County Agent J. O. Horning. It seems to be able to grow well for several years, he said. J. A. Poynter, another Barren county farmer, seeded four acres of Button clover last year. Rain and wind mashed it so that no seed could be harvested this season.

SOCIAL SECURITY NEWS

By R. A. Tweedy
Manager of the
Lexington Social Security Office

A farmer came into the Lexington Social Security office the other day and said: "I've heard that the new social security law covers farmers. I operate a farm in Kentucky."

Well, some farm people will come under social security on January first—but not farm operators. They will continue to be excluded because farm self-employment is not covered under the amended Social Security Act. Hired farm workers, however, will come under social security the first of the year, if they earn $50 or more cash wages in a calendar quarter and are regularly employed by one farm operator.

If I were addressing you in a hall, at this point, there would be a number of raised hands. First, you'd want to know what is meant by a regularly employed farm worker. Well, under the new social security law, in general, he is a person employed by one farm operator on a full-time basis for a period of several months. Now to answer the second question I know you would ask. A calendar quarter is a three-month period beginning on January 1, April 1, July 1 and October 1.

But back to the subject of a regularly employed farm worker. Let's take a typical example. We'll call such a farm worker Ed Smith. He is employed by Howard Jones. Ed has heard about the new social security, too. He has a wife and children, and he's looking forward to January, when he can start building toward old-age and survivors insurance. Fortunately for Ed, he is in a position to do just that. He will be working continously for Jones during the calendar quarter beginning this October. During that time, he will be establishing what is known as a "service relationship" with Mr. Jones. It will indicate that he wants to work continuously for this one farm operator and that Jones wants him as a regular employee.

Now let's look forward to January first. That's the date when regular farm work begins to count toward social security insurance. Ed will be qualified. However, he must work for Jones on a full-time basis for at least 60 days in the calendar quarter beginning on January first. Moreover, he must earn not less than $50 in cash wages for his work on those 60 or more days. As long as he continues to do this much work for Jones in each calendar quarter, and earns $50 or more in cash wages for his work in that quarter, his earnings will be credited toward old-age and survivors insurance.

But suppose in the calendar quarter beginning April 1, or the one beginning July 1, or in any calendar quarter after that, Ed doesn't work as much as 60 days for Jones, although he was paid $50 or more cash wages for the period. He will be credited toward social security insurance for that quarter but not for the one to follow, regardless of days of work and amount of cash wages. That less-than-60-days of work broke his continuous employment relationship with Mr. Jones. Ed must start all over again.

What this all means is that a farm worker, to have his cash wages count toward old-age and survivors insurance, must—first, have worked there in general, be
