Insanitary Methods Of Digging Oysters Scored By Food Division

Recent opening of the oyster season has brought to the fore certain regulations which must be enforced before oysters are sold across the counter.

Last season it was noted that a number of grocery stores were using insanitary methods of dipping bulk oysters, and that oysters in bulk were not always kept properly refrigerated. The customer, before buying, should make certain that the grocer from whom he buys keeps his oysters under refrigeration and that his handling of them meets the sanitary requirements of the state. Buying fresh oysters in small containers sealed at the oyster shucking plant is probably the safest practice.

In a statewide memorandum to all county health unit sanitarians, Mrs. F. C. Dugan, Director, Division of Foods, Drugs and Hotels, has called attention to the regulation of the State Board of Health governing the handling and sale of shellfish. Included in this regulation are the following:

(1) Both shell and shucked oysters should be handled at a temperature below 50 degrees F., but above freezing temperature. No ice or other substance should be allowed to come in contact with shucked stock.

(2) All shucked stock received by wholesalers or retailers should be kept in the original containers. These containers should be opened only as required for dispensing to customers, and then only under proper sanitary conditions. Manual handling is prohibited.

(3) Also prohibited is the display of shucked stock in open cans, windows or showcases.

Observance of these regulations is necessary if cases of intestinal infections from contaminated shellfish are to be controlled. The reduction of such intestinal diseases is due to the cooperative efforts of the state and local health departments, food control agencies and the shellfish industry.

Kentucky Chorus To Sing in Washington

Seventy-six women, members of the Central Kentucky Homemakers Chorus from Clark, Fayette, Franklin and Scott counties, will present a program of Stephen Foster music in Washington, D. C., on Oct. 20.

They will sing on Kentucky Day at the six-month Sesquicentennial Celebration, planned to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the establishment of the Federal Government in the District of Columbia in 1800.

Members of the choral groups in their respective counties, the singers will be under the direction of Mrs. Lewis Robinson, Fayette county. Mrs. William Wash of Scott county will be accompanist, Mrs. Paul Owen of Franklin county, announcer, and Mrs. Tom Quisenberry, Clark county, will give a brief history of the numbers to be sung.

Jefferson Farmer Picks Big Yield Of Strawberries

How George Burks, Jefferson county Negro farmer, picked 280 strawberries from a patch of a little less than three-quarters of an acre is told by H. C. Brown, associate county agent. He said it was proof that "small growers can make big records."

The patch was set in March, 1949. The land had been in tomatoes and truck crops in 1948. It received 3-9-6 fertilizer at the rate of 1,000 pounds an acre.

Balbo rye was sown in the fall of 1948 and turned under early the following March. The rye was chopped up with a disk harrow ahead of plowing. Disking and harrowing after plowing produced a mellow but firm seedbed.

Tennessee Beauties were set every 18 inches in rows four feet apart. Seven hundred pounds of 3-9-6 fertilizer were applied as a side-dressing at the second cultivation. The berries were cultivated throughout the season to keep down weeds and crabgrass.

A straw mulch was applied in December at the rate of a ton and a half an acre.

In March of this year, 700 pounds of 20 percent superphosphate were broadcast over the rows. At blooming time the patch was planned to help control insects.

In other words, said Brown, Mr. Burks is following the latest recommendations in producing strawberries, and his yield indicates he is on the right road. A new patch started last March, is doing well.

Achievement Programs For 4-H Club Members

Thirteen district 4-H club achievement programs are announced by J. W. Whitehouse, state club leader. Outstanding boys and girls will be named at each program, and from them the state champions will be selected to receive trips to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago Nov. 27-30.

Attending the district meetings will be several hundred county champions, selected from among winners in the various 4-H clubs, to be held as follows: Covington, Oct. 7; Morehead and Columbia, Oct. 10; Bowling Green and Pikeville, Oct. 12; Hopkinsville and Jackson, Oct. 14; Corbin and Paducah, Oct. 17; Lebanon and Henderson, Oct. 19; Louisville, Oct. 21, and Lexington, Oct. 23.

The first paper in North Dakota appeared in Bismarck in 1873.

Dairying Pays 4-H Club Girl

Virginia Bray, 4-H club member in Monroe county, realized more than $1,100 from her dairy project last year, and about $700 to date this year.

Virginia started with two registered Guernsey heifers in 1946. Now she has five cows in production, and has yield records for them from six months to two years old. Their total estimated value is more than $1,500.

Sheep Raisers To Meet Nov. 20-21

The first annual convention of the Bluegrass State Sheep Production will be held at the Agricultural Experiment Station at Lexington Nov. 20-21. The convention had been tentatively set for Nov. 15-16, but was changed to Nov. 20-21 because it conflicted with the state fat cattle show and sale at Louisville.

Control of dogs and rabies will be one of the principal subjects considered at the two-day meeting, according to Richard C. Miller, acting secretary of the association. Plans for new legislation will be made.

Speakers will include prominent sheepmen from both in and out of the state. Among them will be Howard Vaughn of Dixon, Calif., president of the National Wool Growers Association.

Delegates from 50 or more local branch associations of the Bluegrass State Sheep Association will attend.

John Burns, Jr., of Lawrence county has five acres of thin ridgetop and hillside pasture. Two varieties of grasses, alfalfa and Ladino clover.

Garrard 4-H'ers Champion Judges

Garrard county furnished the champion team in the 4-H club fat stock judging contest at this year's Kentucky State Fair. On it were Harmon Barker, John Lee Rankin, and Dan Turner.

The top poultry judging team came from Grayson county. Its members were Earl Day, Edward Ferry and Mary L. Stone.

Barbie Payne of Shelby county had the champion hogs in the 4-H Durroc show; Judith Ann Lea of Bracken county the champion Spotted Poland-Chinas and Owen Dale Lea of Bracken county the champion black Poland-Chinas.

J. Buford Cobb of Henry county showed the champion sheep.

The 4-H club dairy cattle show was a feature of the fair. Championships were won as follows:

Holsteins, Mary MacDurrett, Henry county, and John E. Dawson, Campbell county. Jerseys, H. G. McRay, Jr., Anderson county, and Henry Henricks, Logan county. Guernseys, Jack Kimbrough, Harrison county, and Edward Kerr, Shelby county. Brown Swiss, Kenrick Switzer, Harrison county.

Oldham Girl Wins Electric Machine

One of the most sought after awards at the Kentucky State Fair among 4-H club girls was the electric sewing machine won by Miss Glenna Ruth Anderson, 16, of Oldham county. It was given for the best tailored outfit.

The winning costume consisted of a brown two-piece suit and blue blouse topped with a full length coat in brown and blue check. Total cost of the three-piece ensemble, include crown crepe lining, thread, pattern and buttons, was about $70. Accessories were with it are a blue hat, brown purse, shoes and gloves.

Miss Anderson started her 4-H club sewing six years ago when she made a cotton apron and hot-pad holder. Since that time she has sewed for her mother, grandmother and two sisters. She also made most of the garments she took with her to college this fall, including skirts, blouses, dresses, pajamas and coat.

Enrolled as a freshman at the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky, Miss Anderson plans to take home economics.

Long Pig Feeding May Be Wasteful

Farmers who feed around eight months to a year getting hogs ready to sell take a beating every time they sell a hog. So says Washington County Agent Trott Young. He believes pigs should be pushed right through to market condition and then sold.

Spring pigs usually bring more if sold before the fall rush starts, Young noted. To show how spring pigs can be marketed efficiently, he told how Leonard and J. W. Wheatley sold 11 Hampshire-Duroc crosses on Aug. 11 for $5,125 a hundredweight, or a premium of 25 cents. The were self-fed corn and a supplement on Ladino clover pasture.

The production of fescue and Ladino seed by farmers in Allen county is promising them with a cash income of more than $80,000 annually.

Mary Smith, McCreary county 4-H'er grew enough beans to sell six bushels besides canning an unusual amount and giving some to friends.

Mr. Anthemiadis, 1-31 South 22nd West Ave., Tulsa 7, Oklahoma, suffered from stomach distress for quite some time. He had spent much money trying everything possible for relief and was in bed ready when he started taking HADACOL. He says he took three bottles of the $3.00 size, gained 27 pounds and now is entirely free of pains and feels very fine.

Mrs. Mabel Kitchen, 1650 Amsterdam, Cincinnati, Ohio, before I started taking HADACOL I had aches and pains of neuritis in my shoulders, my back and arms. Mrs. J. Scissinski, 514 Kruger, Otsego, Iowa, writes: "My daughter, Marilyn Sue, is 5 years old and for some time lacked pep, had a poor appetite, was generally run-down. Since giving her HADACOL, we have noticed wonderful results — she has a much better appetite, eats everything on the table and doesn't seem tired so much. So, Incidentally, she likes to take HADACOL, too." (HADACOL is a great "builder-upper" for sick, nervous, puny kids whose systems lack precious Vitamins B_1, B_2, Iron and Niacin. A big improvement in their well-being is often noticed within a few days' time after taking the great new HADACOL.)

Mr. Henry Angel, RD No. 1, Springfield, Ohio, used to suffer great pain from terrible aches and pains of my body, especially in my legs, back and shoulders. I never got any relief until I tried HADACOL. After taking several bottles, my pain is all gone. And I'm working every day." Recipe Of The Week

For flavor and real goodness, don't overlook some of the cheaper cuts of meat, says Miss Florence Imlay of the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, University of Kentucky. Long, slow cooking, or cooking in a pressure saucepan, will tenderize tough cuts and develop flavor.

Short Ribs of Beef

3 pounds short ribs of beef
6 medium potatoes
6 carrots
3 onions
1 cup celery cut in 1-inch pieces
1 tablespoon salt

Fry out some of the suet in a saucepan or heavy skillet, then sear the meat to a crusty brown on all sides. Add 1 cup of hot water. Cover closely. Simmer, or bake in moderate oven, 375 degrees, for 1 hour; then add vegetables and salt and continue cooking for 45 minutes to an hour, or until vegetables are done. Remove meat and vegetables and thicken liquid for gravy.

If a pressure saucepan is used, add ¼ cup of water to the browned meat; cook for 25 minutes at 15 pounds pressure, then add vegetables and salt and again raise pressure to 15 pounds for 10 minutes.

Menu: Short ribs of beef with potatoes and gravy, cooked beets, biscuits, butter and pumpkin custard.

Fire Chief Suggests Safety Test

No business ever gets so prosperous that it can afford a fire, Fire Chief Earl Marshall said today in urging local businessmen to take the "seven steps to fire safety."

Pointing out that people who want to buy something seldom wait for a business "temporarily closed because of fire" to reopen, and that many businesses suffering heavy fire losses never reopen, the Chief said that the risk of a blaze could be reduced substantially by observing these rules:

1. Smoking. Enforce "No Smoking" rules where these are necessary because of such hazards as piles of material which will burn easily, or because of the use of flammable liquids. Inspect stove pipes for closeup to find burning cigarettes.

Check Those Wires

2. Wiring. A periodical check of the wiring in your office, store, or factory may prevent a fire. Remember that the installation of new wiring is a job for an experienced electrician.

3. Fuses. Fuses are safety valves; when one burns out, that indicates a short circuit or an overload. Blown fuses should be replaced with fuses of the proper capacity, and if the new fuse blows, an electrician should be called in to check the circuit.

4. Flammable Liquids. Whenever possible, substitute safe, non-flammable liquids for cleaning.

Dangerous Rubbish

5. Rubbish. Many disastrous fires have resulted from piles of rubbish allowed to collect in cellars, attics, or other parts of business buildings. Disposing of rubbish frequently—and providing metal containers for waste paper—reduces the fire danger.

6. Machinery. Don't allow machinery to run unattended, or to overheat. Keep motors and generators well lubricated, and free from rust and dirt.

7. Oily Rags. Rags saturated with vegetable, animal, or fish oils, or paints, often bust into fire spontaneously. Those which will not be needed again should be disposed of immediately; others should be stored in tightly closed metal cans, or hung up where air circulates freely around them.

Modern Equipment Helps Women Sew

Members of homemakers clubs in Boyd county are well equipped to do home sewing, a popular project of the past year. Of 292 women reporting, 171 have electric sewing machines, 60 have buttonhole attachments, 69 have steam irons for pressing and 104 have sleeve boards, said Home Agent Lois H. Sharp.

During the past year, the homemakers made 168 suits, 1,245 dresses and hundreds of children's garments. They altered 493 patterns and made 39 dress forms.

Modern equipment helps in other home work, too. Two hundred and seventy nine women have electric washers, 70 of which are automatic; 105 have electric ironers; 75, electric rangers; 27, electric water heaters; 12, dishwashers and disposals; 227, electric refrigerators; 48, gas refrigerators; 174, gas ranges; 216, gas water heaters, and 33 have deep freezers in their homes. Forty-eight homemakers rent storage boxes in frozen food lockers.

You can't buy better appointments straight, too. You'll avoid gimlicks in accepting an invitation to a tea on the same afternoon that you'd arranged for a visit to the dentist.

With such advance planning, you'll find that you have time to attend your last-minute routines that add up to good grooming.

Paper Work Yields Time for Beauty

MANY homemakers shrug their shoulders hopelessly when they compare the well-groomed look of career women with their own "thrown-together" appearance.

They tend to excuse themselves pointing out the emergencies at steal from a housewife the one that might have been devoted to prettying up.

No one who has ever kept house would deny this, but there are ways in which to help, if not remedy, those situations that reach a climax with the despondent wail, "If I only had time. . . ."

If you'd like to improve your grooming, take a tip from business girls and start doing a little paper work. Keep a grooming list in the same way that you do your grocery list.

When you notice your Sunday shoes need re-soling, write a note to yourself so you won't be caught short the next time you plan to wear them. If the button pops off your coat or your finger goes through the end of your glove, add these items in need of mending to your list also.

It's best to keep a permanent place for these jottings, since loose scraps of paper tend to get mislaid. A small checkbook or a school composition book will serve as an admirable list.

Try keeping a calendar of your activities, too, so that your days can be better planned. For this, a day-to-day appointment book or even an ordinary wall calendar.

This will eliminate such emergencies as suddenly remembering on Tuesday afternoon that you've promised to bake a cake for the church supper that night.

It'll help keep your appointments straight, too. You'll avoid gimlicks in accepting an invitation to a tea on the same afternoon that you'd arranged for a visit to the dentist.

With such advance planning, you'll find that you have time to attend your last-minute routines that add up to good grooming.

This wise young homemaker keeps a calendar of her activities, in order to eliminate emergencies that arise through lack of organization. Through planning, her outlook is more serene and her appearance more beautiful.

Having scheduled a busy day to allow herself ample time for dressing, this young homemaker emerges from her home as well-groomed as any career woman. She gives her purse a last-minute check-up (above) as a part of her beauty routine.

Crusade For Freedom Response Gratifying

Response to the Crusade For Freedom in Kentucky has been "overwhelming". This was the word today from Guthrie F. Crowe, State Crusade chairman.

He said demand for Freedom Scrolls, lapel buttons and general supplies indicated Kentucky itself will easily exceed the original quota of 205,000 signatures set for the Kentucky-Tennessee region combined.

The Kentucky campaign organization upped Kentucky's quota voluntarily from 103,000 to 306,000 and indications are that this total will be exceede dalso, Crowe said.

Rallies, speeches, community endorsements and widespread public support in Kentucky have established this State as one of the leaders in the National campaign, if not the actual leader, Crowe pointed out.

The big remaining job, he said, "is to get all these scrolls sent back to State Headquarters so they can be sent on their way to Berlin." Kentucky county seats are among the 13 Crusade centers.

Preparations for sending the giant Freedom Bell back to Berlin for the dramatic ceremonies October 24, United Nations Day, are completed. On this day the Freedom Bell will be rung from the "Freedom Shrine" at Templehof Airdrome in Berlin and the message will be carried around the world by the largest radio hookup in history.

The signatures to the Freedom Scrolls will be placed in base of the Freedom Shrine. Since the deadline for returning Kentucky scrolls to State Headquarters in the Commerce Building in Louisville has been set for October 14, Crowe urged all Kentuckians who have not thus far signed a scroll to do so at once.

Crowe also urged that all who can make at least a small contribution to Radio Free Europe after they sign a scroll. Radio Free Europe is the privately-financed radio station in Western Germany that is battling Communist propaganda to Iron Curtain countries. Millions of American Contributions to this station are expected to enable it to set up a chain of transmitters to bolster this fight.

The purpose of a large number of contributions is to counter Red propaganda that Radio Free Europe is "Wall Street financed" and has no popular American support. The purpose of millions of American signatures to the Freedom Scrolls is to show Communist-oppressed peoples that Americans have not "written them off" and are behind them in their fight for freedom.
