Senator Virgil Chapman

With the passing of Senator Virgil Chapman, Kentucky has lost one of its foremost statesmen and one of its most loved and respected citizens. Senator Chapman was at the zenith of a long and honored career when death overtook him.

The many people who knew him, and they number among the thousands, respected him for his firm faith in the U. S. Senate, in his country and in his state, and in his endeavoring always to leave the state of Kentucky and the nation as a better place than he found it.

Senator Chapman was one of those rare individuals who could sense what the public wanted, as a majority, about the many highly controversial issues that were before the United States of his contemporaries. Mr. Chapman was a man of many talents and many gifts. He was a man of many talents and many gifts. He was a man of many talents and many gifts.
