List Hunger Signs

Off Starving Crops

Lack of any one certain plant product, symptoms of "hunger signs" in crops, according to a fertilizer circular of the U.K. Experiment Station, a fertilizer causes a light green in tobacco, beginning in the lower leaves, or, lower leaves waste away.

Lack of potash in the soil causes yellowing of tobacco and turning down of tips and edges of leaves. It causes yellow areas on lower and affected parts of the leaf and fall over. Mapped, poor quality leaf.

In corn, lack of nitrogen brings light green to yellow, beginning along the midrib, in lower leaves and going up the stalk and lack of potash causes yellowing and poorly filled ears.

Lack of potash in alfalfa and clovers shows up in the yellowing of the edges of the leaves, or small white spots appear on leaf margins.

Leaves of alfalfa suffering from lack of boron tend to become yellow and sometimes fall near the base. Yellowing is similar to that caused by potato blight. Leaf hoppers injury also causes yellowing of leaves.

Care Suggested In Buying Fertilizer

Some soils will not supply the plant food needed for good crops. Fertilizers must be used, which are on fertilizer, published by the University of Kentucky Extension Service. To buy and use fertilizers, there are three important factors: nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

1. Nitrogen: phosphorus and potash are the three plant food components which are most needed for good crops. Fertilizers must be used, which are on fertilizer, published by the University of Kentucky Extension Service. To buy and use fertilizers, there are three important factors: nitrogen, phosphorus and potash.

2. Admixed hybrid seed increases corn yields about 20 percent over that of open-pollinated varieties. The return per dollar spent for seed was about 10 to 15.

3. Have a large number of plants per acre, varying the number according to the fertility of the land.

4. Use more fertilizer than is the common practice. On rather poor land, it is profitable to use three times as much as the usual amount.

5. Water over crops increased yields about 10 to 20 percent over those which were not watered.

6. Water over crops increased yields about 10 to 20 percent over those which were not watered.

7. Water over crops increased yields about 10 to 20 percent over those which were not watered.

Lests Pest Control

For Tobacco Beds

Ways to control flea beetles and cutworms in tobacco plant beds are given in a circular of the University of Kentucky called "Tobacco Insects in Kentucky."

A DDT dust or spray is recommended for flea beetles. DDT can be applied through the cloth which covers the beds.

It is suggested that a dust containing 10 percent DDT be applied at the rate of a pound to 100 square yards of bed.

Two pounds of 50-percent DDT powder in 100 gallons of water may be used as a spray, putting on three to five gallons to 100 square yards.

Even though plant beds have been well weeded or treated, they should be watched for cutworm damage.

The bait is made of 50 pounds of wheat bran free of chaff, a pound of sodium fluoroantimonate, and four gallons of water.

Moisten the bait with a quantity of water and present every application.
