Tobacco Field Day Set August 8 To Demonstrate Varieties Of Leaf

A tobacco field meeting will be held Friday, August 8, from 9:30 a. m. until noon at the farm of S. R. Barlow on the Pleasant Springs Road, W. T. Stone, county agent, has announced.

Russell Hunt, field agent on tobacco from the University of Kentucky, will attend and discuss some of the current problems in tobacco growing.

Those who attend this event will have an opportunity of seeing perhaps the most outstanding tobacco variety demonstration that has ever been shown here.

The demonstration includes six varieties including 57, 41-A, 26, 16, 35, and Burley 1. The demonstration is one of the ten demonstrations being held through the cooperation of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station and tobacco companies to determine, under field conditions, the qualities of several varieties of tobacco.

This is the first demonstration of this kind ever conducted here and the facts determined here along with those in other counties may be worthwhile in helping farmers to select the variety of tobacco best adapted.

Showing high benefit on the Barlow farm was the area that was treated with Lindane. Part of the field was treated with Lindane at setting time in the setting wasps. This part of the field shows an excellent stand, and uniform stand. Where the treatment was not used the stand is irregular and growth is poor in places. It seems that we have had a very bad season for the attack of wire worms and other insects that work beneath the soil. It appears that the use of Lindane will greatly correct this problem.

All tobacco growers of the county are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

Mr. Moreland is married and has two children, a son, five, and a daughter, three. They are residing in Lexington for the present but plan to move to Carlisle when they find living accommodations.

Crops Still Suffer From Lack Of Rain

Nicholas county agriculture is still suffering from the dry weather. Tobacco, corn, pastures and gardens are badly in need of rain although the situation is not as bad as in some other parts of this drouth-stricken state.

Cutting of early tobacco, which had a good growing period in every part of the season, has been progress in almost all sections of the county as it had begun to ripe badly.

A light rain fell Monday morning in the county and scattered light showers have been reported falling in various sections of this area but as yet the rains have not amounted to too much.

Late tobacco is not hurt too badly yet, according to agricultural officials, but may be if the dry weather continues. Corn is also hurt and also the many gardens in the county.

Pastures in the county have been burned considerably but farmers stated they only need a good rain to bring them back in shape.

In other parts of the state the drouth, called by some the worst since 1930, has cut deeply into tobacco and pasture profits.

A shortage of feed is forecast and farmers have been urged, particularly in Western Kentucky, to use everything possible for roughage until emergency feed can be shipped into the state in those areas hardest hit by the drouth. Farmers were also urged to sow or cover crops now on every available acre for late fall, winter and early spring pastures.

The same advice may be forthcoming in this county if the present drouth continues for any length of time.

Stanford To Speak At Farm Bureau Fish Fry Tonight

The annual Nicholas County Farm Bureau fish fry will be held Thursday night, August 7, at 7 p. m. at the Carlisle Ball Park, H. B. Hillock president, has announced.

The Carlisle Rotary Club has been invited to attend and be guests of the Farm Bureau families of the county, Hillock said.

The fish fry event has been moved to the ball park this year because of limited parking facilities at the city lake and it was thought advisable to move the event to the ball park where a larger area is available for parking.

A double oven outside furnace has been installed which will facilitate the cooking of fish by Jim Clark and his crew.

J. F. Stanford, Secretary of the Kentucky Farm Bureau Federation, will be a featured guest. Prof. Tom Young of Morehead College will attend again this year and present his puppet show. Mr. Young was here last year and by special request it has been arranged for him to return.

Harvey Wagoner is chairman of the food committee and he has said that everything is being done to have the necessary food ready at 6:00 p. m. for immediate serving of 1000 people. He urges all Farm Bureau families to be on hand at the starting hour.

Local Boy Describes Visit In Wales, Erin, Scotland

(Editors Note—The following letter was written by Bill Woodall, a former Mercury employee, to his mother describing a trip he took through Wales, Ireland and Scotland and through some parts of England. Bill is with the U. S. Army Air Force and is stationed about 70 miles south of London.)

Bentwaters Air Force Base
Suffolk, England
Monday, 30 June 1952

Dear Folks,

The vacation was wonderful. I came back by way of Southampton and after taking a fifteen day leave. There was quite a bit to do when I got back and also I wanted north to Coventry, Birmingham, plenty of time so I could tell you about the trip, so I put off until today to write.

My leave began on the 2 July. Bill Belleau, a friend I think I have spoken of before, and myself with two suit cases full of luggage took off for London then Holy Head, across the Irish Sea to Dublin, then north again across the Irish sea to the river Clyde and up to Glasgow.

Bill had some friends who lived in a place called Kilsyth, Scotland, which is about thirty miles north of Glasgow and forty miles south of Loch Lomond, so we went up there and stayed a couple of days. Then across the Island again to Edinberg, Scotland then south down the east coast to London and home.

If you have a map handy I am sure you can follow the trip without any trouble.

In Farming Region

Bentwaters Air Force Base is about seventy miles from London along the east coast of England and the west shores of the North Sea. Look straight across from the Netherlands and you can find it I am sure your have been there a few times before though. The land here is rolling with lots of vegetation and people make a living mostly by farming, as nearly all of the England people do.

From London to Coventry, look just about the middle of the map of England, the land is about the same, small farms which grow quite a bit of vegetation and lots of cattle and sheep, with the hills getting a little bigger. We passed through several tunnels, but they did a fairly good job of it here for any little old hill.

Coventry was the worse bombed town in England during the war. You can still see the effects of it too. The main industry here is the building of engines. It is peopled mostly by Welsh and Irish families. Birmingham is just a few miles to the northwest and of course it is the steel capital of England. It is a good business town with many nice stores and restaurants.

Visit Dublin

From Birmingham we went to Holy Head, which is in Wales, straight across from Dublin. We followed the sea shore of the Irish sea all the way over, but in the distance you could see a few high mountains. Rains of many castles are scattered all through Wales.

At Holy Head we took a boat across the Irish sea to Dublin. It is a beautiful town. I guess you know I realized a lifes' ambition when I visited Ireland. The people were wonderful and we got the best food I have eaten since I've been in, over at Dublin. We just stayed one night here as we had so much ground to cover. Tell Mrs. Boucher that Ireland is still a beautiful place.

Well after Dublin, we crossed the Irish Sea again. This time to the north end up the River Clyde to Glasgow. The long rolling hills and rolling sides of the world are located here. We saw the Queen Mary 2nd Queen Elizabeth were built. Shipping boats go all the way up to Glasgow, which is about a three hour boat ride from the sea. There is an awful dirty town. We didn't stop, just passed through it. Kilsythe, which I mentioned is just a small town. It is a mining town in fact. But the people were wonderful.

Cane Ridge Meeting Starts Sunday At Historic Boubon Meeting-House

Rev. Edwin Dahlberg

The third annual Cane Ridge Meeting at the old Cane Ridge Meeting-House, near Paris, will be held from August 10-24. Services will be held each evening (except Saturday) at 7:30 o'clock. There will be no Sunday morning service at the grounds in order that all may attend services in their own church.

Large Crowds Attend

The meetings the last two summers have been attended by large and enthusiastic crowds of people from all over Kentucky and native many other states. The laymen of the Christian Church of Bourbon County are sponsoring this meeting as they have in other years. Cane Ridge is one of the historic places of Kentucky. The movement started here about 150 years ago under the leadership of Barton W. Stone has grown into the religious body known as the Christian Church or the Disciples of Christ.

Two Prominent Ministers

Two prominent ministers have been secured for this meeting. Dr. Edwin T. Dahlberg, minister of the Delmar Avenue Baptist (Northern) church will be speaker for the first six nights, from August 10 through Friday, August 15. He is a well known leader and one of the most influential ministers of this country. It was felt that his appearance at Cane Ridge would be in keeping with the interdenominational fellowship which is a cardinal principle of the Christian Church.

Noce From Tennessee

Dr. Roger T. Nooe, minister emeritus of the Vine Street Christian Church of Nashville, Tennessee will be the speaker for the week of August 17 through August 24. He has also traveled widely and filled many positions of leadership in the Christian Church. A Kentuckian, he formerly served as minister of the Frankfort Christian Church.

The services will be held in a large tent on the grounds near the meeting-house. In the cemetery back of the church are the graves of Barton W. Stone and many other pioneer leaders. Many people will come to the services early in time to inspect the Church and visit graves in the cemetery. As in other years many Churches from a distance will be arranging for a large delegation to come to the meeting in a body.
