Blackberry Cobbler

Warren R. Fisher Sr.

A paragrapher in the Louisville Times:

The only trouble with blackberry cobbler is that there isn't enough cobbler if you have any room left, and there isn't room enough if you have any cobbler left.

Here's a writer who sits up and takes notice. We had wondered frequently why and from whence came that feeling of satisfaction which we have more than often confronted a cobbler withering in its crimson gore. We should not have been sad, being all fortified with fried chicken and creamed gravy and salt rising and corn pone and tomatoes and butter beans and cucumbers sliced to a gnat's eyebrow, when the cobbler was brought on. One should feel glad at such times and in harmony with Nature and in tune with the Infinite. But we know that the cobbler was an anti-climax. Being shelf a midsummer's masterpiece of the art culinary, it is not fit for blackberry cobbler to play second fiddle, even to fried chicken and cream gravy.

Now our up-stage neighbors to the west and south, having clothed the hillsides of old Nicholas with blackberry briars and the nonsuch and purveral varieties, through the medium of song and story and poet paragraph, and this newspaper being duly appointed arbiter of forms and fashions and things au fett in the matter of blackberries and the by-products thereof, said paragraphers pert and pertinacious, we do hereby lay down the following arbitrament, to-wit, pealing all judgments, recipes and dictums of all authorities in Wild Asbery, Mrs. Johnson and Emily Post's etiquette book.

And we do allow that cobbler should be eaten or et or otherwise taken internally, first and foremost, before a man has had his interior economy all filled up with chicken and old ham and hoe cake, beans, corn, cucumbers and tomatoes, buttermilk, iced tea and what have you. All these have a tendency to maintain person in every family, to know polished, and avoid using electrical, first and practices; see that waxed equipment, such as radio, fan or floors are thoroughly rubbed and shine in the bathroom.

squatter's rights upon the domain so occupied, to have and to hold, and to resist any invasion of their freehold by later tenants. This is no way to treat blackberry cobbler!

No sir! a cobbler, a real cobbler, its blue blood ebbing away there on the dish, martyred by an artist culinary to make a poem for the palate of an epicure, deserves top of the menu as well as top of the column next reading matter. It should be flanked by platters of golden honey, pitchers of creamy milk, tankards of foaming buttermilk, waiting goblets in which the ice tinkles. It should be taken preferably at high noon on an old back porch, where the climbing roses riot and the honey-suckle wreaths its festoons, where the breeze comes laden with the heavy sweetness of mid-summer and one may hear the musical drip of water from the buckets of a pump.

With such an atmosphere one may proceed at once to loosen his collar, roll up his sleeves, pun back his ears and get a firm grip on fork, spoon or his pet means of food conveyance, and honey to taste and fall to. There can be no question of room when the cobbler constitutes the bill-of fare from soup to nuts; there can be no question of enough cobbler if you live in these parts. Just shove up your chair and eat hearty.

Tomorrow? Well tomorrow you may be yourself with yesterday's ten thousand years, as the poet has it, or you may be talking to someone and suddenly there will come a dreamy look in your eyes and you will fold your arms rather suddenly at a point south of the lower ribs and you will bow gracefully to the memory of that pastry par excellence, that poem culinary. You will feel like going away somewhere and lying down and being alone with your thoughts. But it won't be the cobbler that did it. You can blame it on the boney. And think, you will have settled the question of how much cobbler a man can eat, given the necessary amount of anatomy to wrap around it!

Nine-Year-Old Slain Accidently While Playing "Cowboy" Thursday

Funeral services for nine-year-old Bobby Snapp, who was accidentally killed Thursday afternoon while playing "cowboy" were held Saturday morning at ten o'clock in the Mathers-Shearer chapel and burial was in the Battenville cemetery. Rev. Hugh B. Beaver conducted the services.

Young Snapp was killed accidentally Thursday when shot with a .22 calibre rifle by his playmate, nine-year-old Benny Dotson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Dotson.

The two boys were playing in a bedroom of the Dotson house when the accident occurred. Mrs. Dotson said that Bobby ran from the bedroom into the back porch of a restaurant her husband operates, which adjoins the residence, and screamed "Benny shot me."

Died Instantly

He then fell to the floor and died almost instantly. The bullet pierced his left shoulder and died though his heart and lodged near the surface on his right side.

Deputy Sheriff Fryman said that there were no witnesses to the shooting and at a coroner's inquest held by Coroner Ralph Sherator Friday morning, young Dotson told the jury that he and the victim were playing "cowboy" with the weapon when the accident occurred. He said that they had agreed to shoot each other twice with the gun. He pointed the rifle at Bobby and pulled the trigger once and the gun snapped. When he pulled the trigger again, the rifle fired and struck Snapp.

Benny said that he didn't know the gun was loaded. The jury returned a verdict of "accidental death".

Deputy Sheriff Fryman said that the Dotson boy's father, Bernard, had used the gun Wednesday to shoot at rats and had left two cartridges in the magazine. He said the children evidently found the rifle in the bedroom.

Inquest Held Friday

The inquest was held at 9 a. m. Friday and six people were summoned to the scene serving as jurors. They were Stanley Galbraith, Maurice King, Andrew Gray, Walter Crawford, Jerry Moore and Mrs. Christine Mitcheltree.

The Snapp child is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Watson Snapp; two sisters, Dorothy and Susan Snapp; five brothers, Paul, Grover, Junior, Jimmy Ray and Marion Clyde Snapp.

Garrett, VanBever Buy Furniture Store

Paul Garrett and Earl A. VanBever, Carlisle businessmen, Tuesday announced the purchase of the Hall and Waddell Furniture store in Carlisle.

The transaction was concluded Monday and possession was given immediately. Price paid for the business was undisclosed.

Mr. VanBever, who has been assistant manager of the concern since Hall and Waddell took possession from Caswell Furniture Co., will continue to manage the store.

The new owners announced that the name of the store would be changed to the Modern Furniture Company, effective Tuesday.

"Goodbye, 'Betsy'

Last rites for Fureman & Son's soft drink box, Carlisle's first victim of the summer heat, were held Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock. Charles C. "Soda" Shrout presided at the ceremony, which was conducted among a few close friends and recipients of 'many a cold one' over a span of the past few years.

Medical attention to 'Betsy' proved ineffective in many of the town's local plumbers and drug store soda jerkers and straitsticians attempted their various and sundry remedies to no avail. In her final illness the past few weeks she had proved downright cantankerous and ornery and in the past few days refused to even put a straw into a bottle placed in her tender care.

Even a new red paint job, administered by O. T. Gatewood several months ago, failed to bolster her sagging spirits and it was with a note of despair and regret that the proprietor finally threw in the towel and pulled out his check-book and let her go to her final resting place.

In her footsteps today, however, stands a bright, glistening box, purchased after several hours hoggling with you Lexington merchants and with more than a few misgivings but carrying a guarantee even unto the fifth year. Whether she will take the place of the late departed is a question which only the future will decide.

Fire Razes Barn Of George Richey

A 36 by 60 hay and storage barn was completely destroyed by fire a little after 12 p. m. Monday during the electrical rain storm which swept Carlisle and parts of Nicholas county.

It is believed that lightning struck the barn and started the fire. It belonged to George H. Ritchey and was located on his farm in the Rose Hill section of the county.

The bins, contained three bins of alfalfa, 6000 tobacco sticks, a binder, tobacco setter, harrow, mower, two wagons, several plows and other smaller articles.

Estimated loss on the contents of the barn was set conservatively at $1200. The barn was insured for $500 but the contents were not covered.

The barn was located about a quarter of a mile from the residence.
