Wait For Notices To Mail Tax Payments

To make sure their payments are credited properly, Kentucky's 40,000 installment income taxpayers were advised today by Commissioner of Revenue H. Clyde Reeves to wait until they get their July notices and then mail the payments with the notices.

Hundreds of installment checks mailed without the bills, can't be identified by signatures and matching of the quarterly income tax accounts, the Commissioner explained.

This lack of identification of payments leads to the department's later making demands for full payments and invoking the penalty called for by law. Taxpayers then protest they've already paid. Unless the payments are paid on time, the entire balance plus penalty becomes due.

Reeves also requested that exact amounts of the payment be made in the installment payers or the entire balance be paid.

Notices to income tax installment payers have been mailed. This installment payment is due July 15. The final installment payment becomes due November 15.

Fire Destroys Barn Wednesday Afternoon

A hay barn belonging to Stanley Wagoner on the Upper Jacksontown pike opposite Nate Young Brick plant, was completely destroyed by fire Wednesday afternoon about 4 o'clock.

An undetermined amount of hay was in the barn. It contained no machinery.

The fire, which was extremely hot, caught the trees afire in the yard of the Young's and also damaged Kentucky Utility and telephone lines in that vicinity.

The Carlisle fire department answered the alarm.

Origin of the fire was unknown.
