Over The First Hurdle

Tuesday's sale at the Nicholas County Stockyards marked the first anniversary of the opening of this company, operated from its inauguration "By the Farmer, For the Farmer."

Since its opening, after many meetings and hard work by all involved, the stockyard has grown with each sale and week by week is steadily gaining the confidence of everyone. The stockyards has been well managed, both on a business level and on a personal level, by men who have the interest of Nicholas county at heart.

With the coming of each Tuesday's sales we have no reason not to believe that the stockyards will continue to grow and prosper. Under its present efficient management, the local company, we believe, will continue on its upward climb, until one day it will rank in its rightful place as one of the best stockyards in this part of the state.

With the opening of any new business the first year is always the hardest. Now that obstacle has been successfully hurdled. We believe the stockyard has met the queries of the skeptical and congratulate those who held the reins during its initial year.

Somewhere there is a point at which earnings can be knocked down by taxation to the point where they are inadequate to pay the taxes. Which is to ask, what happens to the miner when the cow goes dry?"(Oskaloose, Ia. Herald).

Our men are fighting and dying in the mud and slush of the Korean battlefields, in the air and on the seas, yet official Washington fails to acknowledge that they are engaged in war.

Those young men are undergoing as severe hardships as any were called upon to make in World War II. They are fighting the battle against Communism in the face of terrible odds. Many are being left hopeless cripples, are returning wounded for long periods of hospitalization. Still others are being called upon to make the supreme sacrifice.

Uncle Sam and the citizens of the United States owe these men a grave debt. They are giving and have given just as much as those who have served the cause of freedom in other wars. Yet no provision has been made by Congress to provide compensation for them in a manner similar to the benefits which were offered the veterans of World War II.

Certainly those who have been engaged in combat in Korea or have been on duty in combat zones are entitled to that which was extended to the G. I.'s of World War II. It is only fair that as far as possible they be treated alike.

A Korean Bill of Rights should be enacted by Congress. Our boys who have fought there are entitled to it just as much as were the veterans of World War II.—The Kentucky Standard, Bardstown.

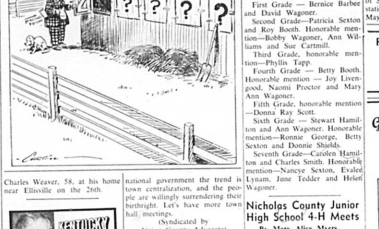
MY KINGDOM FOR A HORSE!

Charles Weaver, 58, at his home near Ellisville on the 26th.



An older Henderson resident was composing the commission form of government of today with the 12 councilmen and mayor of bygone years.

"The people elected councilmen from 12 districts in the city," he said. "There were two meetings a month, and most of them were lively. The council had an auditorium and sometimes it was crowded. There was always a fair sized audience. Non-members were given a chance to address the council when they had something special to say.

"Now we have a mayor and two commissioners. Meetings are nearly all star chamber affairs. The public sits in very little. The mayor and commissioners get token pay only—the mayor $2,000 a year, the commissioners $1,800. These officials run a million-dollar business enterprise as a sideline. It is centralized government if there ever was such a thing. It's the next thing to government by one dictator.

"The councilmanic system, on the other hand," he continued, "is the next thing to a town hall government, which in the early years of the nation was the nearest approach to real democracy in action.

"Somebody has said truly that good government begins at home. And it may be added that in following catchword slogans, newfangled systems, we have moved a long way from self-government. Commission form meant centralization, but the magic phrase was out. And the voting public willingly surrendered much of its sacred right to rule. Political cowardice and civic laziness and indifference won out. It was a case of citizens backing away from responsibility."

The town hall meeting could be revived rather easily if civic leaders would inaugurate monthly meetings for open discussions of public affairs. Mayors and commissioners or councilmen would sit in, of course.

Four years ago Henderson had a big town hall meeting to organize a committee for city betterment and more interest in civic affairs was aroused on that one occasion than had been manifested in their city in the previous 10 years. Unfortunately, the meeting was never repeated.

In municipal, county, state and national government the trend is town centralization, and the people are willingly surrendering their birthright. Let's have more town hall meetings.

If you're still wondering why that big cargo plane circled Carlisle two weeks ago, we'll proceed to solve the mystery. The plane was a C-124 Globemaster, the largest of the Air Force transports, and can carry 200 troops and their equipment. The plane that flew over here had gone on to the flood area in the midwest and was returning to its base at Hunter Field in Savannah, Georgia. The crew had just seen President Truman and were feeling rather "cocky." Reason for the flight over Carlisle — Robert Johnson, husband of Ann Colliver, was the navigator of the plane and brought it over his wife's old home town...in a rather spectacular fashion. We'd say.

Quite a few fishing tales have been circulating around town since the showing of several nice strings from Wolf Creek Dam and other fishing haunts in this state and Tennessee, but the one that caught our fancy was this one which happened to "Lucky" Mathias several years ago while fishing at the reservoir..."Lucky" was fishing for bream with a fly when he kept noticing a bass playing around nearby...After watching him for several minutes "Lucky" got an idea and threw his fly in the direction of the bass and hooked him by the tail. "Lucky" had him nearly to the bank when the bass wriggled loose and slipped back into the water.

Dan Wells, Gaylord Barton and Jimmy Everman of Paris dining in a 43 pound catfish last week while fishing in Douglas Lake in Tennessee. Dan said they caught the monster on a drag line with two welded-together snatch hooks baited with liver. Tok about an hour of pulling and tugging to get him in. They also caught around 100 perch, crappie and bass at Douglas Lake and Dale Hollow.

• • •

Raymond Wesley, son Raymond, and G. E. Duncan lit out for Wolf Creek Friday after hearing the good reports and brought home 27 bass and weighing Saturday. Raymond Sr. got his biggest kick out of fishing when he pulled in a 16-inch largemouth bass. His largest recorded catch, he said.

• • •

Herrington Lake produced a 45 pound gar as Bill Straw, Bro. Whitehouse and B. C. Clark "simply overpowered" it and hauled it in.

Guess that's enough fishing reports for this week, huh?

New Circular On Farm Home

A new circular of the UK College of Agriculture and Home Economics deals with "Material and Construction Specifications for Kentucky Farm Homes." Included is practical information on all phases of house building.

"Substantial construction and proper materials are necessary for a lasting and attractive home that will give many years of satisfaction," it is stated. Specifications are given for a substantial structure—"one that will provide for convenient, comfortable living with adequate sanitary facilities and a minimum of expenditure for upkeep."

Copies of Circular 492 may be had at offices of county agents and home demonstration agents or by writing to the College of Agriculture and Home Economics Lexington.

Farmers Realize Value Of Timber

That Green county farmers are realizing the economic value of their forests is seen in the reports made by Wilson J. Mitchell, county assistant in forestry with the University of Kentucky.

Twenty farmers toured the forest areas of the J. H. Howell farm where 195,000 board feet were marked in 954 hardwood trees and 9,800 board feet in 298 red cedar trees. Some of the higher grade material will be sold for veneer. Other timber will be used for repair and improvement of buildings on the farm.

Mr. Mitchell notes that tree planting has been a major activity this spring, the county having bought a mechanical tree planter in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service.

In Greensburg schools, 55 4-H club boys signed up for the forestry project. Twenty-one of them assisted farmers in planting trees in March. They will also plant an additional 1,000 locust trees in their 4-H club forest.

LISTS GARDEN JOBS FOR MONTH OF MAY

In his University of Kentucky circular called "Your Vegetable Garden Month by Month," John Gardner lists the following jobs for May: Plant squashes, cucumbers, cantaloupes, watermelons, summer squash, okra and summer lettuce; plant sweet corn, beans and lima beans May 15 to 30; set tomatoes and sweet potatoes.

Keep watch for green worms on cabbage and similar crops, and for Colorado beetles and fleabeetles on potatoes.

Recipe of the Week

A cheese sauce may be added to almost any vegetable. Of first importance is its food value, but it also adds flavor and eye appeal, notes Mrs. Pearl Haak, food specialist at UK.

Asparagus with Cheese Sauce

16 to 20 stalks asparagus
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup grated cheese
3 hard cooked eggs
4 slices toast
4 slices bacon

Wash asparagus and remove scales if sandy. Leave whole or cut in inch pieces. Cook the lower part of the stalks for five minutes in boiling salted water before adding the tops. Cook until tender, but do not overcook. Make a white sauce of the butter, flour, milk and salt. When thickened, add the cheese and cut-up eggs. Place drained asparagus on buttered toast and top with cheese-egg mixture. Serve with bacon strips.

Supper menu: Asparagus with cheese-egg sauce, harvard beets, lettuce salad, whole wheat muffins, butter and rhubarb shortcake.

To Convert Wasteland To Grass In Owen

It is expected that between 3,500 and 4,000 acres of waste land in Owen county will be converted to pasture this spring and fall, according to J. C. Feltner, University of Kentucky county agent. More than 75 farmers are enrolled in the Green Pastures Program in that county.

More work is being done this year on clearing up bush and brush land than ever before. Four custom operators have dozers and bog harrows in use continuously. Three operators have dozers and two others have crawler type tractors.

Fescue Provides Winter Grazing

Hughes Goodmin of Breckinridge county pastured 50 head of Angus cattle on 200 acres of Kentucky 31 fescue during the entire winter without additional grain, hay or supplement. The cattle were in good condition, said Kenneth Brabant, county agent with the University of Kentucky. Mr. Goodman will harvest the field for seed this summer.

Continued heavy applications of lime, phosphate, nitrate and complete fertilizer have been used to build up the pasture and keep it in good condition. It is unusual in that part of the state to see a field of that size unbroken by plowed areas or fences, notes Brabant.

UK MUSIC FESTIVAL ATTENDED BY 3,000

Almost 3,000 Kentucky high school musicians attended the vocal and piano section of the 28th annual Kentucky High School Music Festival last week at the University of Kentucky. The event, sponsored by the University Department of Extension and Department of Music, drew approximately 350 individual and group entries with about 100 glee clubs and choirs competing for ratings. The festival ended Saturday afternoon with a special concert by outstanding choruses and choirs. The instrumental section of the festival will be held at U.K. May 9 and 10.

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Exodus 20:1; Matthew 5:33-37; 23:16-22; Mark 7:1-9; Luke 6:46; 11:1-4.

By Alfred J. Buescher

Moses came down from the mountain and read God's laws to the people. "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain, for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh His name in vain."

Talking to the multitude Jesus said, Whoso shall swear by the temple, sweareth by it, and by Him that dwelleth therein. And he that shall swear by heaven, sweareth by the throne of God, and by Him that sitteth thereon."

The scribes and Pharisees asked Jesus why His disciples transgressed the tradition of the elders and ate with unwashed hands? He told them they were hypocrites who honored God with their lips but their hearts were far from Him.

As Jesus prayed, one of His disciples asked Him to teach them how to pray, and Jesus said, "When ye pray, say, Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name." Thy kingdom come."

MEMORY VERSE—Exodus 20:7.
