C-ncda Wins $700 In Statewide Contest

Award Made Wednesday At Noon At Ky. Chamber of Commerce Meet

LOUISVILLE, KY. (SPECIAL TO THE CARLISLE MERCURY)—Carlisle and Nicholas County were named Wednesday among Kentucky's most progressive areas, and was awarded second place in the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce's Community Development Contest.

The award—a $700 cash prize, given by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, Louisville—was presented to Charles Cox, vice-president of the Carlisle-Nicholas County Development Association, at the luncheon session of the Kentucky Chamber's Annual Meeting here Wednesday noon.

First prize in Carlisle's category—Group One, those areas having up to 15,000 population—went to Cynthiana-Harrison County. Third prize was awarded to Clinton-Hickman County.

Cynthiana received $1,000, donated by Kentucky Utilities Company, and Clinton was given $300 by Knoxville Fertilizer Company. Prize money is to be spent on a community-wide development program.

Winners in Group Two of the contest — those areas having 15,000 or more population — were: Maysville (Mason County), $1,000 donated by Standard Oil Co. of Ky.; Central City (Muhlenberg County), $700, given by Union Light, Heat and Power Co., Covington; and Glasgow (Barren County), $300, sponsored by Bandmaster-Vogel, Inc., Harrodsburg.

The Carlisle-Nicholas County Development Association competed with 31 other areas in the contest. Fifteen communities were entered in Group Two of the KCC-sponsored contest.

Those attending the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce luncheon from here besides Cox were his wife, Mrs. Phyllis Cox; Mrs. Marie Lowe, president of the Carlisle Younger Woman's Club; Mrs. Ben Pumphrey Jr., chairman of the social committee of the Younger Woman's Club; Robert Coatney, treasurer of the C-NCDA and wife, Mrs. Virginia Lee Coatney; and Mr. and Mrs. Joerris Whitely.

A board of judges studied scrapbooks submitted by development organizations of 47 communities. The Carlisle entry was submitted by the Carlisle-Nicholas County Development Association and prepared by the Carlisle Younger Woman's Club.

Bill Power, president of the Carlisle-Nicholas County Development Association, when informed of the award, said that he was a "little surprised at the amount won," and then added that it just "shows what can be done when a lot of people begin working together."

He lauded the Carlisle Younger Woman's Club for their efforts and time in gathering and assembling the material for the scrapbook and said that he "wished to thank them and to thank everyone who has helped in any way with the projects sponsored by the development group."

Criteria for judging, outlined by the Industrial Development Committee of the Kentucky Chamber, which sponsored the contest, gave 20 points for general plan and procedure of development, 25 points for community initiative, organization and action, 35 points for beneficial value and degree of accomplishment of the projects, and ten points on presentation of material.

Judges were: S. Albert Phillips, Louisville, president of the Kentucky Bankers Association; Dr. Leo Chamberlain, Lexington, vice president of the University of Kentucky; D. C. Carpenter, Lexington, president of the Lexington Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. I. D. Thompson, Monticello, president of the Kenucky Federation of Women's Clubs; and Mrs. James O. Sheehan, Dunville, president of the Kentucky Congress of Parents and Teachers.
