I Poem

Mrs. Hamilton had five singers,
Of which she was proud.
They sang soft and sweet,
But never too loud.
She took them to churches,
To sing to the people
And their melody they sang,
Brought down the steeple.
To Miss Elsie Williams; written by her grandmother, Mrs. Bettie Johnson.

II Poem

The Leader went to Mt. Sterling, to attend a ball.
She met a young soldier,
And in love they did fall.
Now Mrs. Hamilton is heart sick and sore;
She did have five singers,
And now she has four.

Ky. Deer Hunting Possible In 3 Years

Deer hunting, absent from the Kentucky scene since the days of the early settlers, loomed as a fast approaching certainty today as Larry Gale, director of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' Division of Game, released overall plans for 1954.

"One of the primary projects of the Division will be the continuation of our deer stocking program, which, if all goes according to plan, will mean Kentucky hunters can take to the field after whitetail and fallow deer within the next three to five years", Gale declared from Division headquarters here.

Deer hunting in Kentucky currently is limited to one two-week session a year at Kentucky Woodlands Forest in western Kentucky. That hunt is open only to archers.

The planet Mercury revolves about the sun like the moon around the earth, presenting always the same face to the sun, says the National Geographic Society. Mercury's temperature in consequence stays over 800 degrees Fahrenheit on one side and near absolute zero on the other.

BIRD RUNS UP BILL WITH CABBIE

NORMAN SINCLAIR, a taxi driver in Victoria, Australia, finds a thrush that is willing to take a flyer at riding in an automobile. The bird attracted Norman's attention when it perched on the rear of his cab. He took it inside the car and, as shown, the hitch-hiker makes itself at home on the wheel. Below, in the same Australian city, three collie from a baby's pram. They all know how to use a nipple. (International)

Barnes Warnes 'Lien Law' Repeal Would Lower Assistance Payments

Kentucky may have to find up to $1,600,000 a year in new revenue to keep the Public Assistance program at its current level, should the State's so-called "lien law" be repealed at the coming session of the legislature.

This warning was made today by Commissioner of Economic Security Virgil E. Barnes, who said he understood there would be some pressure on the General Assembly to repeal the statute enacted in 1952.

"Since the law went into effect, the average of payments made to Old Age Assistance recipients has gone steadily upward and the law has been one of the main reasons," Barnes said.

He estimated that it would take $1,600,000 extra a year out of state funds and an additional $4,000,000 in federal funds to maintain the new averages if the law were to be repealed—and that the figure may go even higher in years to come.

The act has helped raise average payments because it has reduced the number of persons drawing assistance—in many cases by turning the task of supporting the aged over to those who will be heirs to their property—and because it is putting back into the assistance funds money that is recovered from the estates of deceased property owners, Barnes explained.

The law, which is not actually a "lien law", provides that the state may recover, at the time of death, funds paid property owners in Old Age Assistance. No claim may be made against the property of a recipient while he or his spouse is still alive or while there is still dependent children.

Assistance payments under the program have risen from about $6 to $15, 1953, to about $35 to $40. Federal aid has been increased but the recovery act has also been an important factor in the rise.

Under the act, in some locations claims may be given to persons who own up to $5,000 worth of real estate, and, on death, the State may recover the amount paid after Jan. 1, 1952, without interest. Widow and last illness expenses are first taken out of the estate of the deceased, the state then makes its claim and the remainder goes to the heirs.

The law thus places more responsibility on relatives who stand to inherit property from persons getting assistance, and since it went into effect some 5,500 recipients have withdrawn from the rolls because of its provisions, Barnes said.

"Under the terms of the act, children of the aged can no longer neglect them and still collect full estates when their parents die," Barnes explained.

"Those who have withdrawn from aid programs because of the law have enabled larger payments to be made to those remaining and repeal of the law would decrease the payments unless a large appropriation to cover them is made by the General Assembly," the commissioner pointed out.

Another angle to be considered is that money recovered under the law is put back into the assistance fund to make payments to others. This money would be lost forever to the State if the law were to be repealed, Barnes said.

Kentucky is only one of some 30 states that has a means of recovering assistance money paid persons who will leave estates, and the laws are considered sound legislation for administering fair and fraud-free assistance programs", the commissioner continued.

Public Assistance funds are provided by the Department of Economic Security from a set appropriation voted by the Legislature, and the payment average is determined by the number of assistance recipients on the rolls, he pointed out.

"Repeal of the act would either reduce the help being given our needy at the present or put a new burden on an already over-burdened budget and the taxpayers who must provide the money", Barnes concluded.

Foreign Youths Visit Kentucky

Three International Farm Youth Exchangees who recently arrived in Kentucky are Henri Guez of Tunisia, Mikhail Khoury of Syria and Antonio Sotomayer of Chili. Guez and Khoury came here from Oregon where they studied fruit growing and dairying. They had stopped in Chicago to attend the National 4-H Club Congress and International Live Stock Exposition.

Sotomayer has spent some time in Kansas, where he observed wheat growing and general agriculture.

The University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics arranged for the young foreigners to stay on farms to see tobacco culture, dairying, beef cattle and sheep production and other farm activities. They will be here until about the middle of February, when they will return to their native lands.

Women Take Modern Equipment Lessons

In lessons in electric equipment, members of homemakers clubs in Warren county learned how to select and wire lamps and repair appliances. Included were the repairing of iron cords, wiring of sockets, wiring of kerosene lamps, making shades and tying the universal's knot. Fourteen lamps were wired in one session of the Smiths Grove Club and 28 at a meeting of the Rockfield Club. The instructor was Miss Vivian Garnett of the University of Kentucky, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Word, the county's home demonstration agent.

Because of drought, most dairymen in Boyle county have had to feed hay usually reserved for midwinter.

Kentucky Announces 4-H Club Winners

EXCEPTIONAL records in the 1953 National 4-H Awards programs have earned state distinction for four Kentucky club members in Tractor Maintenance, Poultry, Food Preparation, and Dairy Achievement. Each will receive a trip to Chicago as winner receives an all-expenses trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago. The winners are:

Roy Fuqua

Roy Huffman

Elizabeth Moore

John Dawson

Production on the Page farm near Bowling Green has been kept at a high level because tractor work has been kept rolling by Roy, 16, who has earned an all-expense trip to the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago as a guest of Standard Oil Company of Kentucky.

Kentucky winner in the 4-H Tractor Maintenance program, Roy has devoted three years to the study and practice of tractor operation and maintenance. In this program, which emphasizes care—not repair—Roy has won the county award three successive times. He operates and cares for the tractor on a 244-acre farm. Roy also carries projects in swine, dairy, farm labor and junior leadership. He is president of both the Barnett 4-H Club and the County Council.

Roy Huffman, 16, of Hyden, has been selected as State winner in the 1953 Poultry Achievement program. His trip award to the National 4-H Club Congress was provided by Ford Tractor Dealers of Kentucky.

His record shows that he has won six times in the Leslie County Fair in poultry and went to the state fair in 1952-53. He had about 100 chicks in 1949 and last only two. In 1950 he went into partnership with his brother and bought a second-hand electric brooder. In 1951 Roy bought his brother out and raised 500 chicks without losing any. He accounted to only a few chicks in 1952, but in 1953 he lost 95 out of 200 chicks with pullorum. He is set on poultry raising because his profits were good even when a number of his flock was wiped out. Roy is junior leader of the Hyden 4-H Club in 1952.

Planning, selecting and preparing nourishing foods has been a challenge to Elizabeth Moore, 17, of Augusta, during her six years in 4-H Club work. Due to her outstanding record, she has been selected State winner in the 4-H Food Preparation program. The trip award was provided by Kelvinator.

Elizabeth has cooked and served 486 meals during her six years in 4-H. She has given demonstrations on "You Can Make Rich Rolls," "Ice Cream," "Floating Salad Dessert," "Milk Drinks," and "Setting the Table." These demonstrations have reached 1,750 people, and have won her county, district and state championships. She entered the Bracken County foods judging contest for four years, placing three blue and one white ribbon. She is now secretary and junior leader of the Bracken County High 4-H Club.

Excellent work in dairy production and management has earned John Dawson in Kentucky 4-H Club competition in Alexandria. As Dairy Achievement winner, John will attend the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago as guest of the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work.

A 4-H Club member for nine years, John learned the application of the principles of breeding, and the importance of cleanliness and sanitation in the handling of dairy animals. He has carried a dairy project for nine years, his herd increasing from 1 to 12 animals in 1953. His records show perseverance in striving for better production. He is now serving as representative this year. John is president of Grants Lick 4-H Club, of which Mrs. John Grimm is adult leader.
