CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Having no other gods but the one Mind which is God, man reflects God as the true spiritual idea. This will be brought out in Christian Science services next Sunday. Subject of the Lesson-Sermon is "Mind."

Selections from the Bible include the flowing verse from Isaiah 140: 28: "Hast thou not known? hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of His understanding."

Correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be read: "God is Mind, and God is infinite; hence all is Mind. On this statement rests the Science of being. . . " (p. 492).

The Golden Text is from Psalms (147:5) "Great is our Lord, and of great power: his understanding is infinite."

How Jesus Answered Questions

HIS REPLIES SILENCED HIS ENEMIES

Scripture—Matthew 22: 15-46.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

WE ALL ask questions. We begin in early childhood when we are filled with curiosity to know the what and the why of everything we see or hear, in order to gain a knowledge of this strange world in which we find ourselves. We go to school and then the teachers ask us questions to discover what our growing minds retain of the subjects which have been taught.

The questioning does not cease when we become adult. In fact, there are more questions, more important ones, that keep us asking all our lives. We ask questions about religion that we may know the truth and live by its teachings. We ask about right and wrong and justice, and we try to solve our personal problems by the knowledge obtained by our questionings.

In our free country we ask questions of the lawmakers whom we have elected to make and administer our laws and give them approval or disapproval at the polls at the next election. Do we appreciate fully this great privilege?

However, Jesus, whose life on earth is our example and answer to our moral queries, was asked questions merely to confound Him. His answers He would say something by which they could trap Him to His death. His wise and brilliant answers usually silenced His tormentors.

After taking counsel with one another as to how they might entangle Him in His own words, the Pharisees sent some of their disciples with the Herodians (possibly principally Sadducees), to ask Him if it was lawful to give tribute unto Caesar or not?

Under the dominance of Rome Jews were naturally resentful and rebellious.

The messengers of the Pharisees began their question with the flattering words "Master, we know that Thou are true, and teached the way of God in truth, neither carest Thou for any man, for Thou regardest not the person of men."

"Tell us, therefore, what thinkest thou? Is it lawful to give tribute unto Caesar or not?"

Jesus knew what was in their wicked hearts, and He said "Why tempt ye Me, ye hypocrites?"

He then asked someone to bring Him a coin, and when He had it in His hand, He said, "Whose image and superscription?"

They answered Caesar's. Then saith He unto them, render therefore unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's; and unto God the things that are God's."

They marveled at His answer which gave them nothing by which they could accuse Him, and they left Him and went their way.

What are the things we owe to "Caesar," in other words to those in authority—to our government and society? We owe obedience to the laws of our land, we should gladly pay for the things we get, and which our business we provide. We should pay our taxes and also give support various philanthropic or cultural agencies which are designed to benefit all our fellow citizens.

And to God we owe obedience to His will even if it means self-sacrifice; we owe to Christ a faith in Him and our most earnest efforts to live as He did while He was among men.

Then came Sadducees to Him asking a most ridiculous question —if, they said, all a "hypothetical" one If the oldest of seven brothers married and then died, the law said the second brother should marry the widow and bring forth children. In this case, they said the second brother was wed to the woman and he, too, died, and the next brother married her. One by one the brothers each married the same woman, and all finally the woman herself passed away. Whose wife, they asked, would she be in the Resurrection?

Jesus rebuked them for not knowing the Scriptures and the power of God. In the Resurrection, He told them, there is neither marrying nor giving in marriage, but all are as angels. And the Scriptures say that God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

They were astonished at His doctrine.

The next question, concerning the greatest commandment, is discussed very fully in our next lesson, so we will not devote space to it today. The last question, that the Pharisees were unable to answer, will also be discussed in the lesson of March 1, and as our people here in Bible school will leave that one, too, to the next lesson.

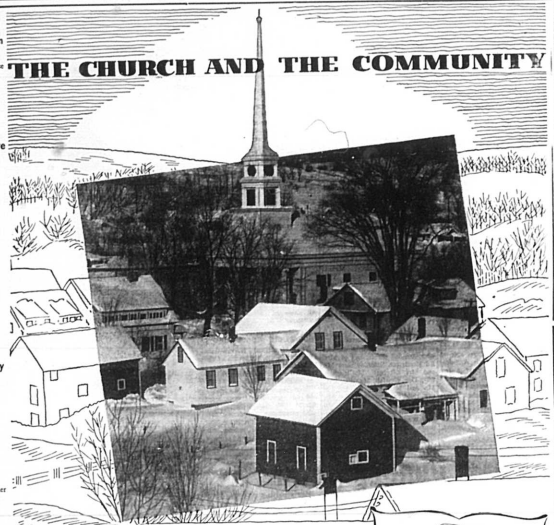
THE CHURCH AND THE COMMUNITY



The Church on the corner or at the crossroads stands for three of the most important phases of community life—the social, intellectual and spiritual development of its people.

Within its hallowed precincts the rich and the poor, the high and the low meet on common ground and learn to share each other's joys and sorrows. It is the social center of the community, where people learn to mingle and cooperate and be friendly.

The accumulated knowledge of past ages was preserved and transmitted to us by the Church and its religious institutions. The Church pioneered in modern education, built great colleges and universities, and works in full harmony with the schools in every community.

But the Church performs its highest and holiest mission in the realm of the spirit. All its other services are contributory to this supreme end, that it may teach men to know God and love and serve Him. It opens up a vast new world of faith and hope and joy.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Anderson Farmers Produce More Milk

Despite the dry year, better feeding, culling and low-producing cows and a general improvement program directed by UK County Agent Laymon Miller have boosted milk production 8 percent in Anderson county. Results of artificial breeding, began several years ago, are beginning to show up in higher production in many herds. Once just a tobacco and general-farming county, Anderson farmers now get most of their income from dairying.
