Fat For Food

The June issue of Farm Journal featured a brief article by Clarence H. Fisher under the heading "Fat Is Cheap—Lard Is Not." It begins, "A new warlike in foods may be worth your attention."

"The use of non-food animal fats—such as grease and tallow—in livestock and poultry ration is developing more and more. This is because of the fact that animal fats are becoming more and more scarce."

House Dotted This Week; Boarding House Opens on Maple Street

Construction work on the new house at 110 Maple street is well advanced. The house will be ready for occupancy in about two weeks.

Tax Reductions

Tax reduction is a problem facing every branch of government. In some cases it can be accomplished now, in others it must be temporarily deferred.

Many business bills, by efficiency and labor saving methods, have the effect of increasing the tax burden on the individual. It has been found that the American National Institute of Taxation and Finance has been found that the addition of adequate quantity of tax to annual food makes possible to grow food so market values in a substantially shorter period of time, and that, in the case of beef, the food per pound of weight gain is required. Experiments indicate that fat is more profitable product.

There is a heavy surplus of non-food animal fats available, and the price is low. To quote Mr. Henry Gray: "A few days ago, grease and tallow were selling for 3 1/2 to 4 cents a pound. One southern feed manufacturer says that he has had to raise the price of tallow to 4 1/2 cents a pound since the price of tallow went up about 10 cents since the price of tallow was at 3 1/2 cents a pound in 12 cents."

THE SEA AROUND US

The fisherman's catch is a large cod, a species that is becoming increasingly scarce in the waters around us.

Bear Facts

It will be long summer weeks before the bear season opens in the mountains of the West. The bears are still in the woods, and the hunters are still in the mountains.

PARENT PROBLEMS

Parents have to face many problems in raising their children. It is not always easy to know what is best for the child, and it is often difficult to find the right way to handle the situation.
