Carlisle FHA Installs Officers

The Carlisle chapter of Future Homemakers of America held its regular meeting May 19 for the purpose of installing officers for the coming year.

Barbara Hunt was installed as president. Other officers installed were Mary P. Smith, vice president; Wanda Mattox, secretary; Anna Mary Clinkenbeard, treasurer; Barbara Reid, historian; Claudia Hardin, parliamentarian; Betty Blake, song leader; Helen Capps, reporter; Jane Flora, recreational leader; Mary Catherine Allison, pianist. Each officer was presented with a rose.

6200 Homemakers At District Meets

More than 6,200 Kentucky homemakers registered at the 12 annual district meetings held throughout the state from April 20 to May 2, and many additional women were in attendance, according to Miss Myrtle Weldon, state leader of home demonstration work at the University of Kentucky. The largest number registering, 824, was at Eminence in the North Central District.

Guest speakers were Mrs. Jack Truitt of Lexington and Mrs. Lloyd White of Kansas City, Mo., each speaking at six of the meetings. Mrs. Wade Holt of Bloomfield, state president of the Kentucky Federation of Homemakers Clubs, and Miss Weldon had a part in all programs.

Progress Reports

Said Miss Weldon:

Of the progress reports by Federation chairmen for the year 1952-53, the work in citizenship was outstanding. Homemakers have taken an active interest in the many fields of community development and welfare, and in a study of international relationships.

Publicity prepared by club chairmen showed improvement, particularly in radio and television.

Originality in ways of interesting women in good reading material was noted, suitcase libraries and book and magazine exchanges being encouraged where there were no libraries. Many clubs included at least one book review in the year's program, providing better reading for children was noted.

In areas where employment outside the home is effecting membership in clubs, the homemakers are making personal contact or other wise seeing that absentees receive the lesson material.

Much local talent was noted in the presentation of skits, readings and vocal and instrumental selections.

Ky. FFA Contest Begins This Week

State high-school vocational-agriculture students will share $325 in prizes offered in the 1953 Kentucky Future Farmers of America Contest, sponsored by The Courier-Journal, The Louisville Times and Station WHAS.

Announcement of the seventh annual contest was made by W. C. Montgomery, executive secretary of the Kentucky Association of F. F. A., and Barry Bingham, president of the newspapers and radio-television station.

The grand-prize winner will receive $100 to buy farm equipment or livestock and an all expense-paid trip to the annual Farm Awards Luncheon in Louisville.

A $25 Savings Bond will go to the winner in each of the nine F. F. A. districts. Each chapter winner will receive a special certificate. A gold-seal certificate will go to each chapter having 100 per cent representation in the contest.

Brochures and contest record books will be sent to vocational agriculture teachers in the state for F. F. A. members regularly enrolled in their high school classes, including those students graduating this spring.

October 31 is the deadline for entries. Each contestant must submit a summary of his farming program, projects, leadership accomplishments, high school activities and plans for the future.

Your Garden

John S. Gardner, University of Kentucky.

Beans—The next two or three fortnightly plantings of beans might well be made double for surpluses to can or freeze. Those who like their beans deep green could use Contender, a flat variety that does not, however, share Tennessee Greenpod's shuckiness and toughness. Not to be overlooked are Top Crop and Logan that gave accounts of themselves during last summer's dry time. Also not to be neglected in keeping the Mexican beetles in check; that's drought insurance" of a sort.

Sweet Corn

Now that a "rotation" is established, Golden Cross Bantam might well be the variety from now on. Many gardeners remarked last summer that Golden Cross "seemed to lose less size" than some of the fancier sorts, when moisture was scarce.

Summer Greens

Any time now, New Zealand spinach may be started. The seeds should be sown in pairs at 30-inch spacing in 3-foot rows, one plant left at a place. The end-leaf clusters are the harvested parts that continuously renew themselves all summer long, and unbelievable yields are made. The New Zealand variety cans and freezes well.

Summer Lettuce

There is, of course, the old standby, Cos or "deer tongue," well liked because of its drought resistance; but in this regard, the newcomer, "Salad Bowl," did itself proud last summer. Because of the open structure of the heads, soil dust seems to accumulate there, but washing presents no great difficulty. Some gardeners who last year used it as "spinach," liked it with very light cooking.

Tomato Blight

Tomato plants not sprayed should be watched closely for first sign of the lowest leaves turning brown. This is Early Blight starting. With it should start the spraying program discussed in The Garden, Month by Month, Circular 376, a copy of which may be found at all county agricultural extension offices. If dusting must be the practice, only those dusts should be used that are based on oxychloride copper or on the carbamates, Dithane Z-78 or Parzate. It bears repeating, however, that only spraying can be depended upon to give wholly satisfactory results.

The Mexican Bean Beetle

The 1953 Mexican bean beetle season has started off well, judging from letters telling of someone's "fattening" the beetles, as in other years. It is possible that if rotenone dust is used that was exposed to air all winter and has become "cakey," it could have lost its savor and be no longer effective, except by sheer force of impact. But fresh rotenone, 1 percent, is still the unqualified Mexican bean beetle control when applied in the under sides of the leaves, and on a schedule based on the beetle's life habit.

Adult beetles (1/4 spots light tan to deep mahogany in color) lay eggs over a period of about 10 days, 1,000 eggs per female's beetle. In 5 to 10 days, the eggs hatch into spiny, brown-colored larvae. Thesearv what the gardener should aim to stop, the adults being for the most part too tough to kill.

The schedule is this: When adults are first seen on the beans, the first dusting should be given, as eggs then may be expected any time. Rotenone has a staying land er of about 10 days, and as egg clusters laid on the leaves conscievably are surrounded with the material, and the larvae should find a killing dose close at hand.

However, as egg laying can continue for 10 days, and as beans likely put out at least a pair of new leaves during that time, and as the last batches of eggs might have been laid thereon, a second dusting should follow 10 days after the first, completely covering all the leaves. The dust should surround all the eggs laid ec that generation, thus wiping out the insect in one swoop, depending of course on the thoroughness of the dusting and on the how unanimously all gardeners in the neighborhood did the dusting. But those two dustings on that schedule have made 93 percent kill experimentally. If the material were applied as a "wet" spray, rather than a dust, the covering would be just that much more sure.

Titanium, fourth most common metal in the earth's crust defied man's efforts to refine it for more than 150 years. The United States produced only 1400 tons in 1952 but has scheduled 22,000 tons for 1955.

The meeting was called to order by the president. We stood and repeated together the 4-H pledge. Then the song leaders led us in the songs, "Star Spangled Banner" and "I'm Looking Over a 4-H Clover."

Then the president turned the meeting over to the secretary. We answered the roll call with the name of a former president. The minutes stood approved as read.

The president then turned the meeting over to the vice president. Those who were in the program were: "Story of the Stars and Stripes,"—Joan Smart; "How to Display the Flag."—Barbara Wills; "The Hand Salute and Special Flag Day,"—Wayne Gum; "I'm Old Glory," — Gene Hamilton; "History of the Statue of the Flag."—Kenneth Mitchell; "The Flags in 4-H Club Work."—Alice Clary.

The president turned the meeting over to the game leaders.

After the games we went outside to take pictures of the winners and officers.
