A Year Of Progress

The Carlisle-Nicholas County Development Association closed out its first year of operation with the election of officers for the coming year at a meeting last week.

Under the able leadership of Bill Power, the infant organization promoted several civic improvements during its initial twelve months, and shows no sign at this point of letting up.

One of the first projects undertaken by the group was the erection of a promotional sign at the intersection of Highways 36 and 68, encouraging traffic to Maysville to make the trip through Carlisle.

This immediately brought down the wrath of the Highway 68 Association. Repeated meetings between the C-NCDA and the State Highway Department brought local people to one conclusion: let the sign remain. And so it did, and a little while later, vandals painted the sign red.

This was cleaned off as best as possible and later the sign was completely repainted. It is still at the intersection fighting for its place in the sun among the many Highway Department signs directing traffic the other way.

A tax control program sponsored by the development group was fairly successful and helped to clear the town of a good number of rodents.

A worthwhile Christmas program, featuring visits of Santa Claus on four successive Saturday afternoons, home decoration contests in city and county, new Yule season lights and the repairing of the old lights, was carried out by the group.

The biggest shot in the arm that the civic organization received during its first year was the winning of $750.00 as second prize in the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce Community Development Contest.

Most of the credit for this, however, must be given to the Carlisle Younger Woman's club who prepared the scrapbook depicting community improvements for entry into the contest.

In cooperation with the Younger Women and the City Council the development association helped share the cost of six trash disposal cans which were placed on the streets of Carlisle and help to keep the town cleaner.

Looking toward the American Legion's Fourth of July celebration, the C-NCDA and the Nicholas County Fiscal Court each put up $100.00 to have the electric flag on the court house repaired and repainted. The flag was a beautiful sight, indeed, during the patriotic celebration.

In another project of a cooperative nature, the development association joined with eight merchants, the county road department and the State Highway Department in laying a tile drainage line from the Main-Sycamore intersection to Brushy Fork Creek. After the area is rooked in the near future by the county, it will provide an off-the-road parking lot for employees of Goldcrip Manufacturing Co.

The latest, and perhaps the project that received the most attention from residents, was the spraying of the entire city and its outlying suburbs for the control of mosquitoes, flies and other insects. Carlisle was probably the first town in Kentucky to have its entire city area treated in this manner.

Other projects undertaken by the group which have not yet been completed are closer to their realization now than at this time a year ago, or five years ago.

All in all, the Carlisle-Nicholas County Development Association has contributed a great deal to the civic life of the community in the past year. It is our hope that they may continue to do so.

We Need More King's

Our hats go off this week to C. R. King, retired Carlisle hardware dealer.

Although Mr. King retired from active business several years ago, he is yet to retire from the civic life of the community. An authority on what Brushy Fork Crack can do when flooded, Mr. King started with the beginning of the summer to try to find some means of getting the creek cleaned.

When all efforts seemed doomed to failure, Mr. King himself undertook to raise the money for the project. At last reports he had gotten, through personal solicitation, some $700.00 from various business and civic minded individuals. Mr. King expects the city to match the amount of money he finally raises.

Work on cleaning the creek, which at this point is overgrown with willows, brush and other weeds, is estimated to cost between $1600 and $1800. Thus, Mr. King is nearing his goal.

Carlisle needs more Charlie King's.

National Newspaper Week

This is National Newspaper Week, a time set aside each year during which we might discuss with you the merits, the problems and the philosophy of our free press.

And, during this week, many articles will be published on the freedom of access by the press to information which directly affects the general public. We have seen suppression of the news by politicians of the press, and while we associate such censorship with other countries, it does in fact exist in America.

To limit the press in its attempts to obtain accurate and factual information is to limit the freedom of information.

And, just as the reporters should not be harried from meetings having public interest, neither should anyone with a legitimate interest be deprived of information which is essential as a board basis for investing his advertising dollars.

It is fair to assume that few advertisers have the time to inspect our circulation records. To obtain and report the facts is a task that can best be accomplished by an experienced circulation auditor. That's why this newspaper is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations. As a member of the Bureau, a non-profit, cooperative association of 3,450 advertisers, agencies and publishers in the United States and Canada, we agree to subject all of our records to a complete and authentic circulation audit, by a member of the Bureau's staff.

Following his visit to our office, the A. B. C. circulation auditor makes a report of his findings. These facts are then published by the Bureau as our A. B. C. Audit Report.

Just as we believe that complete information regarding the advertising value of this newspaper should be available to our advertisers, we believe that the public should be fully informed regarding subjects affecting their interests.

The press, as the recognized medium for informing the people, should be given every opportunity to obtain the facts. Only after every door closed by a public official has been opened to the press shall we have complete freedom of information.

Bear Facts

By Paul Bryant

Along with about 35,000 other Kentucky fans who witnessed our heartbreaking, one-point loss to the Texas Aggies in the season's opener the other night, I have had my first good look at the new era in football, and I can't say that I liked what I saw.

Undoubtedly many of my critics didn't like what they saw either. But, for the subject matter at hand, I am referring to the style of football as it must be played under the rules. The best way I can express my feeling of helplessness under the new system of play is that it's got like building sand over coffin.

I have no intention of offering an alibi for our erratic performance and eventual defeat by the Maroons on the new substitution ruling. While it undoubtedly had some effect, I feel that our highly inexperienced boys just made a few costly mistakes that might easily have happened, new rule or not. Let me assure you true fans, however, that these boys were in there scrapping like they meant to win and I personally am sure that they are going to improve and with their share if I can help them to iron out a few things we are doing wrong.

But this new rule is not going to help one bit a team such as ours which does not have the depth others have. Undoubtedly, the fan in the stands enjoyed being better able to keep track of the men in the game—not having to keep changing the program every time the ball changed hands and a host of new men came into the game. The coach—or at least this one—feels a little differently. I felt up here before when the rule prevented the substitution of a player or two at the particular stage of the game when it would materially help our cause. You just couldn't do things you wanted to do at the time you wanted to do them.

Another interesting sidelight on the effect of the new rules is the indicated prospect of less scoring and shorter games. Certainly our 7-6 game was low scoring and somewhat shorter, but this is not so much due to the new rules as good defensive work. Under the two platoon, free substitution rules, the clock was stopped some 25 to 30 times to allow substitutes to come in while now the ball changes hands instantly on punts with the clock ticking right along. And neither boys served more than will our present men who can't afford to wear themselves out on offense.

I don't know but what I'll change my mind again regarding the rule if I was qualifiedly in favor of it a week ago. The main confusion was one of dislike and the feeling of being about as lost and helpless as a brook trout in a goldfish bowl.

Even the rain and gray skies couldn't dampen the spirits of the kids as they made their way Friday and from the Youth Fair.

Up and down the streets of Carlisle you could hear their laughter and light-hearted talk.

After all, school was out for the day! and can you think of a better way to spend a day than seeing a Fair?

Bill Galley, we are told, had an experience at the auto show one morning last week that would break any fisherman's heart.

Seems he hooked this big bass and after quite a battle got it to the bank when the fish jerked loose from the hooks and made his way back into the water.

Bill jumped in after him in an attempt to capture his prize.

Those that saw the fish believed it would have weighed several seven pounds.

The Lexington Herald came out with this bland statement Monday morning in its news columns: "In the poultry year ending Sept. 1, 200 hens owned by Harry Pottenger ate 30 tons of corn and eggs worth 55 each above feed costs."

Everett Harney, who some months ago caught an eagle, now has another feathered friend, a golden-feathered pheasant.

Harney shot the bird on a hunting trip that he took a twisters, which will sit on his shoulder and eat from his hand. Harney even gave a way with the birds. Incidentally, the eagle he caught was donated to the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife and was kept for awhile at their farm near Frankfort. Unfortunately, it died a couple of months back. The officials had it stuffed and mounted and it is still on display there.

A Scotchman had to send an urgent telegram and, not wishing to spend more money than necessary, wrote like this:

"Bruises hurt erased afford erected analysis hurt to infectious dead."

The Scotchman who received it immediately knew that it said: "Bruce is hurt. He raced a Ford. He wrecked it; and Alice is hurt, too. In fact, she's dead."

Absent-minded college professors are the butt of quite a few jokes around college towns and it appears the malady may have infected at least one high school instructor who we know . . . No doubt many of you saw the classified ad in The Mercury last week where someone had left his fishing tackle box at the city reservoir . . . Mr. Joe Clay found the missing item and returned it to us and we in turn gave it to its rightful owner . . . So everything ended in a sweet note.
