A Simple Solution

Three wrecks in one week, killing one person and injuring five others, as well as considerably damaging three automobiles, should indicate to the State Highway Department and the Highway 68 Association that that portion of Highway 68 where the wrecks occurred should be straightened out or otherwise improved to make it less dangerous.

Although this feat might call for some very expert engineering calculations, we have no doubt that the disarmonids of the above two organizations could figure out the solution.

Also a simpler solution for them might be to consult some of the local citizenry, who could probably tell them of the "best (and less dangerous) route" around those hairpin curves.

A Decision To Make

The letter received by the city last week from the Kentucky Inspection Bureau concerning the city fire truck answering county fire calls, seems to indicate that in the future this practice will cease.

Although the city council had made no statement as yet on the matter, the request from the Inspection Bureau is one which will almost have to be complied with. As the inspection bureau determines insurance rates in the community, non-compliance would probably mean a hike in the rates for Carlisle.

The letter also points up a need here for county fire protection. There has been a movement underway for sometime by the Carlisle-Nicholas County Development Association and the Nicholas County Farm Bureau to see if the residents of the county want fire protection badly enough to finance it themselves, thru a popular subscription method.

So far these efforts have not gone any farther than the "discussing" stage.

The Nicholas County Fiscal Court, upon whose backs the burden of maintaining a county fire department, once it was established here, would fall, have indicated that at present they could allocate some $1500 per year for that purpose. This sum should be sufficient.

Directors of the Nicholas County Farm Bureau have been making a survey of the people in their various districts to see whether or not they would financially back the organization of a county fire department.

With the recent letter from the Kentucky Inspection Bureau, it would seem that the decision now, more than ever, would rest squarely upon the shoulders of county residents.

Broadly-Educated Citizen

It is often said that this is an age of specialists. Enormously complex scientific and technological discoveries and developments have resulted in a demand on the part of both business and government for legions of men and women whose educations have been specialized to an extreme in chemistry, physics, engineering and allied fields.

But this trend has created serious problems of its own. For necessary as he is, the specialist, because of his training and his basic attitude, often is too immersed in a narrow channel to see the world and its problems as a whole.

As a result, there is a renewed emphasis on liberal education. President Goddard of Hartford University, St Paul, described this recently in words: "Important though the development and training of the mind may be, there is more to education than this. At Hamline we endeavor to prepare students to live a well-balanced life, not merely to make a living. All phases of life—the intellectual, spiritual, social, cultural, and vocational—are emphasized. Our aim is to develop broadly-educated citizens. Never in the history of our country or the world have we needed so much as now liberally-educated men and women as citizens—in business, the professions, and in government."

TYRANNY ENLIGHTENING THE WORLD

Although "Sometimes" was off to a somewhat shaky start it soon got into the swing of things as the comments pleased.

The committee, which welcomed the Louisville Chamber of Commerce on the "Get-Acquainted Tour" to Carlisle last May, as well as the town itself, gave an unexpected and unsolicited pat on the back recently. Mayor Blanche McIntosh, who had been riding splatives in Evansville, Ind., boarded the bus for her return trip home. She noticed that the bus driver looked at her ticket, stamped "Destination, Carlisle, Ky.," a little longer than usual, but thought nothing of it.

Having a seat near the front of the bus, she was a little surprised when the bus driver asked her along the route if she was from Carlisle. When she replied in the affirmative, he told her that he was the driver that brought the Louisvillians here on their tour and that he was really "impressed by the friendliness of the people and the town in general," adding that it was certainly "a nice town."

Mr. neighbor, Sam Elfridge, brought me over some of the biggest tomatoes I had seen this season, one night last week. They tasted as good as they looked . . . And speaking of tomatoes, Cowie Curtis said he had some yellow ones which weighed a pound and three quarters . . . some tomatoes.

* * * *

Overheard at the Carlisle-Paris football game, two local rabid fans talking to one another . . . One said that no matter how much the score was against the Musketeers, he always stayed to the end of the fourth quarter . . . His partner said that that was nothing, he "always stayed to the end of the fifth."

We just heard about the drunk that fell off over a six story window and landed in the street without apparent harm. A crowd gathered around him and a cop rushed up and said, "What happened?"

"I don't know," said the drunk, rising and brushing himself off, "I just got here myself."

Tidbits Of Kentucky Folklore

In almost every morning or evening newspaper there is an item that some folk mind carried with very little time or trouble, turn into a ballad, echoic of "old, unhappy, far-off things and battles long ago." I regret that I have not saved many of these as typical ballad situations. Fortunately, for me, I still recall many of them and have actually wished that I could forget some on my bookishness long enough to turn some of them to account. Books, ——— know, often make us a little too self-conscious; we know too ——— good poems to try our hands at making even a little one; we know too many good songs to attempt to write one on an event that ——— know a lot about.

Suppose we run over some events that were and still are worthy of a good ballad. Down on Tennessee River, some six miles below Fidelity, lived a prosperous merchant-farmer who did not have an enemy in the world, so far as his neighbors knew. He was well-to-do and honest, he was generous with his wealth, he was in no sense grasping. One autumn Sunday he went to his tobacco barn to see whether the fires needed drawing. When he failed to return by dinner hour he met his death. His nearchildren after him. He was found dead, his head battered with heavy object, probably a singlebit axe. To this day no one knows how he met his death. ——— phew, as he was the last man known to have been with him, was arrested and tried endlessly, but nothing ever was proved. And to this day the unsolved riddle of John Fry's death is a puzzle. How wouldn't that make a good ballad: you could picture his honesty, his devoted wife and children, his prominence in the neighborhood, his happiness on that autumn ——— Then you could describe, circumstantially, all the horrors of the murder and, maybe, bring in a vivid scene where the murderer, many years later, tells his story on his deathbed.

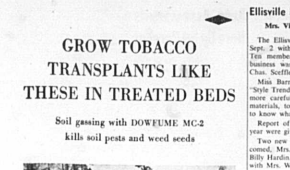
GROW TOBACCO TRANSPLANTS LIKE THESE IN TREATED BEDS

Soil gassing with DOWFUME MC-2 kills soil pests and weed seeds



There are many important reasons why gassing tobacco bed soil with Dowfume® MC-2 before planting improves the quality of your plants. It gives positive control of grass seeds and stolons of perennial grasses such as quack and Johnson grass—and it gives freedom from most weeds for extended periods of time.

Root-attacking insects such as wireworms and grubs are killed in all life stages at time of application. Dowfume MC-2 controls nematodes even in inrotted galls in crop refuse. It also controls certain soil-borne fungi. You get strong, healthy plants for setting. Dowfume MC-2 and the simple applicator, tubing and gasproof cover for its use are available at your Dow dealer.

Ellisville Homemakers

Mrs. Victor Day

The Ellisville Homemakers met Sept. 2 with Mrs. Victor Day. Ten members were present. The business was conducted by Mrs. Chas. Sceffler, president.

Miss Barnes gave a talk on "Style Trends," to inform us to be more careful of our colors and materials, to read labels carefully to know what we are buying.

Report of goals set up for the year were given by the chairmen.

Two new members were welcomed, Mrs. Ovel Day and Mrs. Billy Hardin. Next meeting will be with Mrs. Walter Martin, Oct. 7.

Dates Sets For 8 Beef Cattle Shows

Eight district 4-H club and FFA beef cattle shows are scheduled to be held in Kentucky in September, October, and November. In support of the shows, Commissioner of Agriculture Ben Adams has allocated $1,000 to each show, this sum to be matched by an equal amount raised locally.

The shows will be held as follows: Princeton, Sept. 26; Owensboro, Oct. 3; London, Oct. 7; Maysville Oct. 19-20; Bowling Green, Oct. 28; Elizabethtown, Nov. 2; Murray Nov. 4; and Lexington, Nov. 5-6.

GAS CURING OF TOBACCO

The use of natural gas and bottled gas in curing tobacco is discussed in University of Kentucky Circular 496, "Heating Practices and Equipment for Curing Burley Tobacco." Both have been used successfully. Bottled gas, however, is nearly three times as expensive as natural gas and almost twice as much as coke. Ask a county agent or write to the College of Agriculture and Home Economics, Lexington, for a copy of the publication.

NOW Even Faster Long Distance

Direct dialing of Long Distance calls between cities speeds telephone service . . . and helps keep the cost low.

By this method, the Long Distance operator quickly punches a few buttons. Then, intricate and costly automatic equipment goes to work to put the call straight through to the telephone in the distant city, without going through another operator. It's fast!

"Punch-button" Long Distance and other new advances are part of our continuing job of bringing you more and better telephone service. It's a job that takes a financially healthy Telephone Company, with enough earnings to keep service good today—and growing tomorrow.

Fire Prevention Week Set For October 4-10

Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby proclaimed the week of October 4-10 as "Fire Prevention Week in Kentucky" and called on all organizations to "alert every citizen to the danger of fire which strikes homes, churches, schools, forests, factories and places of entertainment."

He called on all agencies of state government to assist private groups in the "vital crusade."

"Fire last year claimed the lives of 192 Kentuckians, injured 1,000 and destroyed property worth more than $13,812,000," the governor said, pointing to the fact that "fire losses continue to increase with 90 per cent of them definitely the result of human carelessness."

The Governor said that it is imperative that citizens learn of fire hazards and precautions necessary for fire safety."

The President has proclaimed the same time as National Fire Prevention Week.

West Homemakers

Mrs. W. M. Kendall

Mrs. Frank Henry gave some interesting suggestions on the trend of the styles for the coming season, showing many of the new materials and color combinations to a group of fourteen homemakers. After the business session the recently remodled house of the hostess, Mrs. J. R. Hamilton, Millers Station road.

Our new president, Mrs. James Williams, asked for the reading of the recomendations of the membership, citizenship, reading and publicity chairmen.

The major project, braided rugs, will be started at the next meeting October 9, at the home of Mrs. Omer Berry with Mrs. Frank Henry and Mrs. Grimes Caywood as leaders.

We had two new members and one visitor.

Miranda Homemakers

Mrs. O. R. Cannon

Mrs. George Scott, the club leader, presented the lesson on new fall materials and fashion hints to the Miranda Homemakers Club at the home of Mrs. W. W. Rigg on Wednesday, September 9. Invited two visitors and Miss Barnes twelve members were present, and answered the roll call by telling what they could do to improve their club.

The reading, citizenship, publicity, and membership chairmen gave the goals and recommendations as set up at their county meeting.

A picture for the coming year was presented, by filling out the homemakers calendars for 1953-54.

An auction was held in the afternoon and another one will be held on October 14, when our club hostess at the home of Mrs. Otho Scott and Mrs. Edgar Scott.

WILL VISIT AT UK

A group of 17 high school teachers from Germany will visit the University of Kentucky from Oct. 1 through Feb. 1, under an educational exchange program carried on by the U. S. Department of State and the U. S. Office of Education. While in Lexington the German teachers will be housed in private homes and will be introduced to different phases of American life. Special emphasis for the visitors are being prepared by UK faculty members.

Summer Hatching Shows Increase

More summer hatching increased response to egg prices and stable feed costs was brought out at the 29th annual poultry short course at the University of Kentucky. Kentucky hatcheries showed an increase of 120 percent in one month.

While the increased hatching will increase meat supplies in fall and early winter, it will not affect egg prices until next spring. Farmers with high-laying flocks were urged to cash in on current ——— demand. Economist predicted good times for flockowners at least through the rest of the year, and probably in 1954.
