A Letter To The Editor

CHARLES M. COX
Attorney At Law
Carlisle, Kentucky
August 5, 1954

Mr. Warren Fisher, Editor
The Carlisle Mercury
Carlisle, Kentucky

Dear Warren:

It was called to my attention today that in last week's paper there appeared a report concerning the furnishing of Fire Department Protection for farm people at a meeting of the City Council held on Tuesday, August 3 and in the article it was reported that I had in answer to a suggestion made by Councilman Shrout that the question be taken up with the Fiscal Court of Nicholas County that "let the farmer pick himself up by his own boot strap."

I think it is only fair that the contents of all of the discussion held at the meeting of the City Council be presented to the general public and to the best of my recollection the following contains in substance the various matters that were discussed at the Council meeting relating to Fire Protection for the farmers of Nicholas County:

(1) As President of the Carlisle-Nicholas County Development Association I called to the attention of the City Council that during the year 1953 considerable effort was put forth to try and arouse some interest in forming a County Fire Department. Through the efforts of the members of the Development Association a Committee was appointed by the former President of the association, Mr. William Power and the Committee was headed by Paul Coatney, present Chief of Fire Chief of Carlisle. The Committee headed by Mr. Coatney made inquiry of other counties in the State as to how they had financed a County Fire Department and it was determined that the Farm Bureau of each county had been instrumental in assisting in this work.

(2) The Nicholas County Farm Bureau was contacted and to the best of my recollection several committies were appointed by the local Farm Bureau organization to sound out the feeling of the people in various sections of the county to see what response could be obtained towards the purchasing of a fire truck and the establishment of a County Fire Department. At least upon one occassion Mr. Coatney, and to the best of my recollection, one or two members of the Farm Bureau met with the Nicholas County Fiscal Court to see what assistance the court might be able to give towards the establishment of a County Fire Department. Also, I know that at least during one meeting of the Nicholas Fiscal Court in the year 1953 representatives of at least two companies furnishing fire equipment and trucks submitted prices to the court which were in the vicinity of $15,000 for the type of equipment that would be needed in this county.

(3) It was the feeling of the members of the Development Association during 1953 that in order to successfully establish a county fire department it would be necessary to raise practically all of the money to finance the project from the farmers themselves and it was this reason that caused the development association to meet with the Nicholas County Farm Bureau to see if sufficient interest could be aroused to successfully carry out the project. To this date we unfortunately seem to be no closer to a solution of the problem.

(4) Mr. Paul Coatney, Fire Chief of Carlisle in his efforts to see what could be done in establishing a County Fire Department not only reviewed the method being used in other places but I believe contacted the Kentucky Inspection Bureau to see what sort of plan they would approve to put into effect a County Fire Department in Nicholas County. It is my further recollection that Mr. Coatney was able to determine that there would have to be at least two regularly employed persons who would be on 12 hour shifts each at the fire house for the purpose of answering fire calls. The Carlisle Fire Department working in cooperation with the Fiscal Court and through its Fire Chief, Mr. Coatney would train at least 24 men in the art of fire fighting so that if a call was received from a place in the county at least 12 men could go to the fire thereby leaving at least 12 other trained men in the city to answer any call in the event of any call in the city at the same time there was one in the county. Mr. Coatney even went further to suggest that in addition to training 24 men in the city the plan called for the training of additional men in each of the small communities in the county so that if there was a fire in one of the small communities, the local trained men in each of the communities could try and take any fire prevention measures possible to keep the fire at a minimum until the truck arrived.

(5) The financing of the training of the various men through out the county and the maintenance of two regularly employed men on a full time basis was to be worked out by the Nicholas County Fiscal court and the City of Carlisle if there was sufficient response from the people in the county through the medium of the Farm Bureau to indicate that the people were willing to subscribe the original cost of purchasing a fire truck.

It is my recollection that the greater portion of all of the above information was laid before the City Council at its meeting on Tuesday Night, August 3, and I think it is only fair that the people in the county know that all of these facts were laid before the Council by the undersigned as part of the discussion on a Fire Department for Nicholas County.

Very truly yours,
Charles M. Cox

Weekly Recipe

Finely cut, uncooked yellow squash makes a pleasing addition to cabbage salad, say home economists at the University of Kentucky. Its bright color adds to the attractiveness, particularly when contrasted with a generous amount of minced parsley.

Fresh Vegetable Salad

3 c shredded cabbage
1 c finely-cut yellow squash
1 c cut-up celery
½ c minced parsley
1 T minced onion
French dressing

Chill the cabbage, squash and celery in ice water for crispness. Shred the cabbage very fine with a sharp knife, then add cut-up squash, celery, parsley and onion. Toss lightly with French dressing immediately before serving.

FRENCH DRESSING: Mix 1 T sugar, ¾ t salt and ¼ t paprika, then add ¼ c mild vinegar and ½ c salad oil. Shake ingredients together in a tightly covered jar.

Menu: Cold meat loaf, potato salad, green beans, fresh vegetable salad, biscuits, butter and peaches with cream.

Tid Bits Of Kentucky Folklore

By Glenwood Creech

Eastern Kentucky's coal business is sick. Many families are practically no income. Some are hungry. But one group of men—out-of-work because of mine shutdowns—is proving that miners can make a living outside the mines. It's the Lotts Creek Fresh Vegetable Growers Association. Its 21 members live in Perry and Knott counties.

When four of these men found themselves without work, they didn't apply for unemployment benefits. Instead, since each owned a few acres of tillable land, they sought technical help in farming from their county agents. They thought they might be able to raise enough vegetables on their limited acreages to supply their tables and to have some left to sell. Their neighbors became interested, and the group grew.

Specialists in marketing and gardening from the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics were asked to help. Gardening experts discussed the best practices to use in producing vegetables, while marketing specialists warned the group to "sell only top-grade produce and package it attractively." Grading and packaging demonstration were held.

Encouraged by local businessmen, the members formed a growers' co-operative. To reduce costs they bought fertilizer and seed co-operatively. Each member, without exception, gathered seed samples from his fields, had them tested, and selected and used fertilizer according to U.K. recommendations. Only recommended varieties of vegetables were purchased. The co-operative built a receiving and grading shed and bought baskets for marketing the produce. A local wholesale firm contracted to buy the vegetables for prices being paid on the Cincinnati market.

On July 30, with the marketing season just well under way, members of the group had sold, among other things, 150 bushels of beans, 2,500 pounds of cabbage, 12,000 pounds of potatoes, 1,500 pounds of tomatoes, 250 dozen ears of sweet corn, 200 pounds of cucumbers, and 50 pounds of peppers. One member sold 339 gallons of strawberries from 400 plants from a tenth acre at $1.25 for total of $23.75.

The Lotts Creek co-operative is off to a good start. It is setting an example for the entire area that has relied on one saleable commodity—coal.

UK Announces Date For Commencement

Dr. Henry H. Hill, president of George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tenn., will deliver the principal address at the University of Kentucky summer commencement program at 7:30 p.m. (DST) Friday, August 20, in Memorial Coliseum.

"A Time for Young Men" will be the topic of the address by the Nashville educator, a former professor and dean at UK, approximately 350 students will receive degrees at the ceremony.

Presiding at the event will be UK President H. L. Donovan, and the invocation and benediction will be given by Dr. George M. Troutt, pastor of the Grace Baptist church, Lexington.

ROTC Staff At UK Directs Workshops

The Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps detachment at the University of Kentucky is conducting two separate six-day workshops for ROTC instructors, which will continue through August 14.

Six other colleges and universities have sent representatives to the training classes. They are the University of Louisville, Western Kentucky State College, Memphis State Teachers College, Tennessee Agriculture and Industrial State University, University of the South and the University of Kentucky.

Serving as directors for the workshops are Major Bernard M. Smith and Capt. Crawford E. Hicks, both of the UK staff.

Barren county farmers have found that it is much easier to apply a liquid spray than a dust to tobacco, with a saving of money and work, and better insect control.
