By Paul H. Little

Make your music store your Christmas shopping headquarters this year! There will play a tune for everyone in the family from the Grandmother! Your music store dealer works to build music into the family. He goes beyond the mere selling of records and records, but he is a music store and orchestra.

For the kindergarten, your first music store holds trained in scale and color to correspond colored notes on the short music. This is a toy piano, with a cowbell scene on the drum set, and mounted gold and plastic toy trumpets, tin whistles, tin horns, and a xylophone.

Thank to the major and medium record stores, you will hear your favorite jazz selections and symphonic music, sounding as if the performers were right in your living room. One of the year's most beautiful recordings of the year just past was the "The First Christmas in Carols," magnificently sung by the Moscow Societa Musica Choei of Copenhagen under the direction of Jorgen Kræmer Hansen.
