

money to spend because of an expected leveling off of production, and in some industries a decline in employment and wages. Growth will pay about as much for machinery, equipment, supplies, gas, oil and services, and only slightly less for food, production and governmental programs next summer and fall when the demand for turkey will be greatest.

Producers who grow poults and produce hatching eggs can anticipate an active market, but competition for poults will be keen. The price of production will be only slightly less and the net income per bird smaller this year than in 1953. Other commodities in this economic follow-up have been
