Farmers in Nicholas and Boone counties in the Eden Shale Hills Area of Northern Kentucky are looking forward to the establishment of a sub-station in this area. O. D. Hawkins, Extension Agent, said that this work is a part of the responsibility of the Farmers in the Eden Shale Hills Agricultural Sub-Station Project.

The purpose of the Sub-Station is to provide a center for extension and demonstration in the various phases of agriculture, including agronomy, horticulture, and crop rotation, as well as animal husbandry. The sub-station will be located in the Eden Shale Hills area.

The University of Kentucky College of Agriculture advises that the Eden Shale Hills sub-station is the only kind of its type in the world. Experimental work in this type of soil has been neglected, Mr. Hawkins said.

The Eden Shale Hills sub-station is a part of the Eden Shale Hills Agricultural Sub-Station Project. It is located in the Eden Shale Hills area of Northern Kentucky. The project is a joint effort of the University of Kentucky and the State of Kentucky.

Mr. Hawkins explains work of the sub-station will be done as soon as the land has been acquired and turned over to the Kentucky State Legislature.
