Take Away The Abuse ...And What's Left?

In the heat of a primary campaign, many people accept statements blindly as being true. This is the case, in the matter of the many charges being made against the present State Administration.

Governor Lawrence Wetherby has made mistakes of course. What man, what Governor, what Senator, what President hasn't? But he has made Kentucky a good chief executive, as is shown when one discounts the criticism and abuse of his administration, the source of which may be traced to a concerted effort by Happy Chandler to cloud the issues in the governor's race.

Take away the abuse of the Governor, abuse of Bert T. Combs, abuse of the Democratic administration. Listen any speech made by Mr. Chandler in this campaign, and there is nothing left. Mr. Chandler offers nothing but destructive criticism. He has no plan to keep Kentucky abreast of the times—nothing but wild promises, and it is beyond our comprehension why anyone would want to return to the depression era of 1935-39.

Throughout the primary campaign Combs has stressed the issue of integrity, and has stated that he would rather lose the election than to win and go out of office with a record of broken promises. As the days roll by more citizens in every section of Kentucky recognize the ability of Bert T. Combs, an ability born of experience; they admire his courage, his frankness and his unblemished record of loyalty to the Democratic party.

We think the Democrats of Nicholas County will not be fooled by wild promises and abuse. They will vote for Bert T. Combs for the Democratic nomination for governor at the August 6 primary.

It Can Be Done

In a recent magazine article, Senator Byrd had this to say about federal spending: "Sometimes you may get the discouraged feeling that forces are now loose in the growth of the federal octopus that are beyond the power of mere man to halt.

"I say they can be halted, and reversed . . . But I might as well warn that it will be done only if you, the taxpayers, make your sentiments known this month and next. Make them known to friends. And make them known to elected officials. You can be more powerful than you realize. Elected officials generally are eager to do what they feel the public wants. The trouble is that the only 'public' they hear from consists of the 'gimme' groups which camp in their anteroooms."

If we can't balance the budget in a time of booming business and enormous tax collections, when can it be balanced?

The Cost Of Medical Care

Human nature being what it is, people will complain about paying a comparatively modest sum for something they don't enjoy but must have—and will cheerfully spend much more for something they want, but don't urgently need.

The cost of medical care is certainly a fine case in point. At regular intervals, we hear better criticism of the bills charged by doctors and hospitals and pharmacists. An uninformed person might conclude that these costs are one of the very biggest budget problems in the life of the average person.

Well, it just isn't so—as a brief pictorial chart published in the June issue of Medical Economics, based on Department of Commerce estimates, proves.

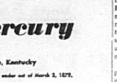
Each year we spend $1,600,000,000 for drugs—and $2,600,000,000 for items involved in personal care, such as hair lotions and toilet waters.

Each year we spend 2,600,000,000 in hospitals—and nearly twice as much, $5,300,900,000, for tobacco.

Each year we spend $2,800,000,000 for physicians' services— and well over three times as much, $8,800,000,000, on alcoholic drinks.

Each year we spend $2,900,000,000 for health care other than that mentioned above—and over four times as much, $11,900,000,000, on recreation.

The fact that we have more fun smoking or drinking or playing games than in visiting the doctor shouldn't be allowed to warp our attitude toward the facts.



Kefauver Holds 4-to-3 Margin Over Nixon In Trial Heat Poll

BY KENNETH FINK, DIRECTOR.

Princeton Research Service

Princeton, New Jersey—Suppose Senator Kefauver of Tennessee and Vice President Nixon were the rival candidates for President. How would the nation vote if the election were held today?

Results of the latest United States Poll survey findings indicate that Senator Kefauver would win a decisive victory over Vice President Nixon.

Using sampling methods that enabled the United States Poll to predict the 1954 Congressional Elections within seven-tenths of one hundredths of one per cent of the actual results, the Poll had its reporters pose this question to a representative cross-section of the nation's voters.

"Suppose the election for President were being held today. If Vice President Nixon were the Republican candidate and Senator Kefauver of Tennessee were the Democratic, which one would you like to see win—the Republican Nixon or the Democrat Kefauver?"

The results:

NATIONWIDE
Kefauver	52%
Nixon	39
Undecided	9

Eliminating the 9 per cent undecided, the figures become:

Kefauver	57%
Nixon	43

Of special interest in today's trial heat race is the fact that Independents—those who consider themselves neither Republicans nor Democrats and who hold the balance of power in every nationwide election—prefer Kefauver to Nixon by a margin of exactly three to two.

INDEPENDENTS ONLY, NATIONWIDE
Kefauver	60%
Nixon	40

Of importance, too, is that one out of every five Republicans questioned in the survey say they would vote for Kefauver.

REPUBLICANS ONLY, NATIONWIDE
Kefauver	20%
Nixon	80

At the same time, Vice President Nixon can win over to his camp about one out of every six Democrats.

DEMOCRATS ONLY, NATIONWIDE
Kefauver	84%
Nixon	16

Today's trial heat is the fourth of a series in recent weeks running various candidates against each other.

Results are as follows:

EISENHOWER vs. STEVENSON
Eisenhower	56.5%
Stevenson	43.9
EISENHOWER vs. KEFAUVER
Eisenhower	61%
Kefauver	39
STEVENSON vs. NIXON
Stevenson	58.5%
Nixon	41.5
KEFAUVER vs. NIXON
Kefauver	57%
Nixon	43

Eclipse Of Moon Was Viewed Monday Night; Runaway Horse Fatal To Downing Youth

Thursday, July 18, 1935

Many local people Monday night viewed the total eclipse of the moon, which lasted approximately an hour. The moon remained obscured for the longest period of any eclipse in fifty years.

Considerable wheat has been threshed throughout the county during the past week and farmers report it is turning out only fairly well. Dealers here yesterday were offering 72 cents per bushel.

Miss Lucille Bustin was purchaser of the residence of the late Mrs. Eliza Hinds on 10th street Saturday. The sale was conducted by the Scott-Kendall Sales Company.

The Royal Ambassadors Camp of the Bracken Association of Baptists opened at Camp Black Hawk Monday morning and will close Friday afternoon.

Clayton Cannon has been awarded the contract to drive the bus to the Miranda school this year.

Seven Nicholas County teachers are enrolled at the University of Kentucky Monday to take special training in adult education work. The teachers are Mrs. W. B. Burton, Mrs. Walter Feeback, Mrs. Lillian Paris, Mrs. Ruth Wasson, Miss Nettye McClanahan, Miss Hallye Griffin and Milton Galbraith.

MARRIED—Seth Conway Gilvin, farmer of the Sharpsburg section, and Miss Lillie Willoughby, of the East Union section, here Monday morning—Miss Wynona Wilson, of Cincinnati, and Delphion K. Robinson on Wednesday, July 3.—Miss Alice Rose Bellew, Kansas City, and Harvey J. Whitehouse, of Carlisle on June 1 at Winchester, Ky.

DIED—Mrs. Bessie Earlywine Poe, 31, at the Johnson Memorial hospital last Thursday night following several days illness.

Thursday, July 22, 1915

William Downing, 15, met a tragic death on the farm of P. W. Berry, near Moorefield Friday morning, when the horse he was riding became frightened and threw him, his foot hanging in the stirrup. The boy was dragged about half a mile and horribly mangled.

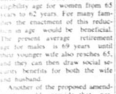
J. T. Blount, of Moorefield, was painfully injured Tuesday afternoon, when the horse he was driving ran away, throwing him from the buggy, breaking four ribs and cutting a bad gash in his head.

There will be a seven months school term next year with a per capita of $5.25.

Lightning struck a chimney at the home of Eli Westfall Friday night. The family was on the porch at the time. No one was injured.

Quite a number of people from Carlisle motored over to High Bridge last Sunday in Mr. Millard Branch's big touring car that day. They were Mrs. Max Maher, Mrs. Pevie Feebeck, Mrs. Mayme Lavelette, Misses Lucille Henry, Anna Tunc, Elizabeth Lawless, Jennie Henry, Lorleighan, Rosa Collins, Lyda Grayson, Mary Chadwick, Alice Mc-Messrs. R. M. Tune, Stanley Hutchings, Elbert Tune, Daniel Blake, Fayne Masten, Millard Branch, "Soda" Shrout, and Robbie Maher.

DIED—Mrs. George Wood, 38, at the Good Samaritan hospital, in Lexington, Monday morning, following several weeks illness.



KENTUCKIANS IN WASHINGTON

By Gil Kingsbury

Majority Leader:

We consider now the case of Earle Clements, for the second time this year the acting majority leader of the senate. It appears likely that he'll continue in that post for a year as Senator Johnson of Texas, stricken with a heart attack, must take a long, long rest.

Although the honor is a great one, it poses problems for the Kentuckian who is up for election next year. Four of the last five Democratic senate leaders suffered defeat. It seems that the job takes so much of their time they can't return home to mend political fences.

Lots Of Publicity:

The elevation of Earle Clements drew a lot of publicity in newspapers in all parts of the country. One lawmaker, Congressman Brown, Ohio Republican, wrote in his weekly newsletter to Buckeye papers 1,841 Senator Clements is "considered highly skilled in parliamentary procedures."

The New York Times, doing the second story on the Kentuckian, declared that in spite of being a first-termer, he is on the Democratic "Board of Directors." He shared such honors with Senator Russell of Georgia, Senator Hill of Alabama and Senator Humphrey of Minnesota.

Another Story:

The Washington Evening Star, a Republican paper, carried a lengthy Sunday edition story. It headlined Earle Clements Well Qualified to Fill Lyndon Johnson's Shoes."

After recapping his career in Kentucky politics, it gave him credit for healing the breach between the North and South at the last Democratic convention. Not many politicians and reporters realized his part until long after the convention was over, the Star said.

New Office:

The new job rated a new office for the Kentuckian. He is now established in the Capitol itself in a third floor suite overlooking the Mall and the Washington monument. However, the office is not luxurious. It contains a medium-size waiting room and a smallish office for the senator.

He still maintains his senatorial office in the Senate Office Building. However, Miss Catherine Hampson, Lexington, a former member of the Barkley staff, is acting as the majority leader's secretary.

Two homemakers clubs in Livingston county improved local cemeteries by a general cleanup, sending and erecting gate posts.

Because of continuous use of fertilizers in recent years, some farmers in Grant county used only a manure this season.

Greater Social Security Benefits Proposed!

This week the House Committee on Ways and Means reported legislation to liberalize the Social Security Act. One important change recommended amends the name which would reduce the retirement age of women from 65 years to 62 years. For many families the enactment of this reduction in age would be beneficial. The present average retirement age for males is 69 years until their younger wife also reaches 65 and they can then draw social security benefits for both the wife and husband.

Another of the proposed amendments would provide that persons currently and totally disabled in covered workers could draw benefits at age 50 instead of depending upon straight monthly benefits for charity, until they reach 65. The privilege when that person becomes disabled before reaching 50 and until 5½ of those years are work-connected disability and thus covered by workmen's compensation laws.

In order to provide for these benefits, the committee also at the same time maintain the fiscal solvency of the social security fund. The Committee also had to provide in the bill for an increase in the social security payroll tax. The present tax rate is 4% with the employee and employer each contributing 2%. This rate would be increased by one-half per cent for each in 1956 and by an additional one-half per cent in 1960, 1965, 1970, reaching a total of 4½% for each by 1975.

The Committee also recommended extending social security coverage to optometrists, dentists, lawyers, veterinarians, chiropractors, naturopaths and osteopaths.

Because of the short time remaining in this session, it is unlikely that this legislation will be enacted prior to the adjournment of Congress. Nevertheless, I believe that many people will probably be interested in knowing that this matter is being considered by Congress, so that they may advise their Congressman of their opinion on the proposals.

I am, of course, very pleased to receive the valued opinions of my constituents, at any time, on the many legislative and policy matters which come before Congress.

The Olympic Games

Of universal interest to sportsmen-minded Americans youths are the Olympic Games. On June 29, the House of Representatives passed House Joint Resolution 339, which authorizes the President of the United States to designate October 22, 1955, as National Olympic Day. The designation of October 22 as National Olympic Day will provide us an opportunity to pause, as a Nation, to dedicate our country to the amateur ideals of individual competition, honor and goodwill which are embodied in the Olympic Games, and to pledge our support to the American teams we will send to compete in the great Games.

The much anticipated coming XVI-th Olympic Games will be held in Melbourne, Australia, November 22 to December 8, 1956, with the Winter Games held at Cortina d'Ampezzo, Italy, January 26 to February 5, 1956.

In my opinion, the Olympic Games are the roots deep in those ideals which command our respect of all of us, are a very remarkable and wonderful international event. Here the athlete transcends all nationality, color and stands alone as a single individual to compete for the Olympic championship and the acclaim of the entire world. Here the individual athlete is limited only by his own ability. At the festivals the athletes willingly obey the international standards and requirements for competition, as proclaimed by the International Olympic Committee composed of persons from the more than 70 nations represented at the festival. It is the honor and integrity of good sportsmanship which unites in comradeship all the contenders for the Olympic crown.

Olympic Origin

The beginning of the modern Olympic Games occurred with the first Olympiad at Athens, Greece, in 1896, held on the site where the ancient festivals had concluded 1,500 years before. They have continued since 1896 every four years, except for the interruptions caused by World Wars I and II. The scenes of the modern festivals have girdled the earth—occurring in such cities as Paris, Stockholm, St. Louis, Los Angeles, Berlin and most recently in Helsinki.

The origin of the early Greek Olympic Festivals can be traced back to the Greek mythological Gods and there is interesting country.

It is interesting to note that the rise and fall of the early Olympic Games, which flourished for nearly 1200 years, paralled the rise and fall of a great civilization. During the Dark Ages, the Olympic fire was extinguished. It was 1500 years before it was relighted.

I hope that the world as we know it may continue to hold its Olympic Festivals and that the honor, integrity and goodwill among individuals, so evident at the international Games, may also extend to the United Nations round-tables; that we may all respect the rights, privileges and freedom of all persons; and that we may live in peace together.

Woodsman, Spare That Tree!

The last of the old trees on the west side of the courthouse has been cut. Just why one old, leaning, hollow tree was left when others were felled as a safety measure a month ago, can only set men to wonder, while a few days later gave a little advice Mr. Watkins, foreman of the courthouse force, told me confidentially, privately, noting my own puzzled expression, there's a nest of baby squirrels in that tree. Maybe later, as he mopped his brow and began mowing.

"CYCLES OF NAMES"

One of my grandmothers was named Nancy, a common enough name in the early eighteen hundreds, when she was born. So far as I now recall, only one of her numerous sisters, or her grandchildren bore her name; Nancy had temporarily gone out of style. But now Nancy is so common a name that it almost rivals Mary and Elizabeth and Virginia. But in my generation Nancys were very, very rare. My children would snicker if someone mentioned a funny-sounding name like that; it suggested somebody very old or very backwoody. The other grandmother was named Charity. That name has not risen into common use as yet. In fact, I never know of any one by that name except one little girl somewhere near Fidelity, and she was a very ordinary person, so much so that I never heard of her having a namesake. For all I know, that name Charity may become very average and common as a name again. Maybe Jonathan will come back with it. Jonathan was the name of my father's father. Jonathan Wilson. But seems to have had great currency away back in the early eighteenth century, as I have found in records. Imagine being introduced to a child named Jonathan and Charity Wilson. Both are distinctly normal here from Detroit or Chicago or Kansas City.

Down on Dog Creek there was one long Dolly short for Dorothy. But I don't recall in the whole reach of Fidelity, or I cannot recall any such. Dorothy was a name out of the past, we thought, from our history books that Mrs. James Madison was called Dolly. Our Dolly's mother was called Patsy—short for Patricia, again the only person by that name I ever saw until I left Fidelity. In a typical crowd of students at Western twenty years ago, there would have been one Dorothy or four other names, right now that would be the percentage of Patricias. Dolly and Dorothy is now just itself or Dot, Patricia is Patty or Pattie, Patsy, or Pat.

Just around the corner is a crop of Sandras; about five years hence Miss Freshman in many a college will be named Sandra. I have one freshman this year with that name. She first in my class. A fortune that awakes memories. Mother had a first cousin named Cas-
