

Suggests Generous Use Of Vegetables
This is the season when it seems to have a generous supply of fresh vegetables. Eat them raw, add appetizing toppings, flavor and color to the menu. In general, the greater or more colorful the vegetable, the flatter it is in vitamin C. Use vegetables, quickly after gathering, as the fiber, it is in vitamin C. THE WEATHER
HOT WEATHER GREENS
By John S. Gardner, University of Kentucky
Spring greens are in abundance. Hot greens can be grown in the best weather lands. New Zealand spinach and Swiss Chard are the best to grow in the hot weather. Being late crops, both need frequent watering. If chemical fertilizers are used, they should be applied in small amounts, such as poultry manure, or complete fertilizers with at least a percent of nitrogen included. He also suggested the UK audience to remember that all additions in our civilization have been due to exchange of ideas.
