MAN ON THE STREET

Public Approves Of Having Car Inspections Regularly; Believes Car Inspections Would Help Reduce Accidents.

By Kenneth Fink, Director, Princeton Service

Princeton, New Jersey—Today's column deals with people's views on state car inspections. The problem of car inspections is one that a number of state legislatures have considered or are considering.

Already the District of Columbia and some states, Delaware and New Jersey, have state owned and operated stations that inspect all cars registered there.

Eleven other states: Pennsylvania, Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Virginia, West Virginia, Texas, New Mexico, Colorado, and Utah—require all cars registered in their states to be inspected at private garages.

In the state of Illinois, all commercial vehicles are inspected at private garages. And South Dakota requires all cars on the road to have their headlights inspected at private garages.

South Dakota also requires all cars registered in its state to have a more thorough inspection at private garages.

In all fifteen states plus the District of Columbia, at the present time, require some form of car inspections.

Princeton, New Jersey—How do rank and file citizens feel about having all cars inspected regularly for lights, brakes, steering equipment, etc.?

This is the way MAN ON THE STREET feels. An overwhelming majority of those MAN ON THE STREET has talked to both those living in states that require some form of car inspection and those in states with no car inspections express approval of

Letters to the Editor

December 7, 1956

Mr. Warren B. Fisher,
The Carlisle Mercury,
Carlisle, Kentucky

Coming to work on my car almost got into a real tangle. The driver of the car pulled out and I tried around a little way on the highway and I got stuck in the mud.

The editorial was well written and certainly do appreciate it. I was glad to see it printed and I am sure it will be read by many of our people.

This is my first opportunity to express my appreciation to you and your staff. I am sure that you will be especially helpful in the future.

Thank you for the paper and for the editorial. I am sure that you will be especially helpful in the future.

Thank you for the paper and for the editorial. I am sure that you will be especially helpful in the future.
